Superman to Step from "Funnies" Into "Happy Days" Show Ring

Superman will literally step from his place on funnies pages onto Hillsboro's front door step for "Happy Days," Wilbur Dillon, manager, announced last night, as he revealed signing of a third free act for a gay and complete circus program.

A man so strong that loaded cars can run over him and who for everyday practice bends bars of iron will appear here in person to entertain and amuse citizens and visitors in daily shows.

This latest act will complete a program, which also includes a genuine lion act by Captain Erick Vanderwald. Five lions and two cubs will be included in the captain's show as he sends his animals through their daily performance.

Last minute addition to a free program already overloaded with thrills may be a public wedding to be conducted in the captain's lion cage Saturday night, July 5. Success has crowned Dillon's efforts to find a fearless couple willing to scorn the wrath of lions in order to tie the nuptial knot in a new and different way. Arrangements are being made and the novel act is almost sure to go on, Dillon said.

Diversion in the form of thrills but in what is hoped won't be spills will be put on in a high aerial act. Dillon announced that no nets will be used.
