

U. S. Clothes for Britain Babes

Safe from air raiders in an English countryside billet, this young London evacuee, dressed in clothes from the American Red Cross, pauses at tea time for a cup of milk. The attractive woman's voluntary services worker is one of the thousands of gallant British women who are distributing clothes made by Red Cross volunteers in the United States.

Red Cross Workers Receive Thanks

Mrs. Isabelle Warren, production chairman of the County Red Cross chapter, received a letter last week from Stella Reeling of the Women's Voluntary Services for Civil Defense, London, England, which says:

"As chairman of the W. V. S. I want to thank every member of your chapter for the wonderful contributions you have sent to us and the help this has been to every one who has suffered. The gifts received have made it possible to assist people who have lost everything in the bombing of their homes, people who have lost not only their possessions, but often members of their family as well."

"While canteens given by you feed those who have been bombed, war nurseries, which take in the small children suffering from enemy action, have been started because your junior branches have sent us donations. Clothing you make is issued to persons as they emerge from the horrors of being bombed. I wonder if you realize how much the fact that each individual member of your group has shown self-sacrifice and understanding in that your gifts have helped to strengthen the courage and determination of the recipients of what you have sent."

"Every man, woman and child in this country is playing a definite part in the battle which is now raging, and it is because of your help and sympathy that battle is less bitter, suffering is less severe, and strain is less acute."

"It is for this reason that as chairman of W. V. S. acting for the American Red Cross in matters of civilian relief in this country, I thank you, both on behalf of those who benefit by your generosity and of the members who have the joy of handling your gifts."

In Love with Oregon

Mrs. Cora McConn and Mrs. Rose Mann of near Ontario, Neb., who have been visiting their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. Hall, for several weeks, left Thursday night for San Francisco, where they will visit Mrs. McConn's son, an editor in the city, and other relatives in Southern California before going home.

The visitors, who were taken to Timberline lodge and other scenic places in Oregon, were very enthusiastic about the climate and scenic beauty of the country.

Man Wins Degree By Perseverance

James H. Adamson, a Hillsboro high school graduate of 1924, just received his B. S. degree in social science after an interesting story of perseverance. He started his collegiate education at Albany college in 1924, but employment broke up the continuity of his studies and he began teaching in 1926. He kept an eye on his goal, however, and his first teaching position was at Alameda, Klamath county, where he taught three years as principal of the elementary school. He resigned and went to Sheridan as principal of that city's grade school until 1935. That fall he took a position with the Minnville Junior high and has been instructor there for the past six years. For the past three years he made three trips a week to take U. of O. extension work, and in June received his degree. He plans to continue his studies to qualify for a supervisor's certificate.

Adamson spent his boyhood days north of Hillsboro with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. James Adamson. He married a Medford girl and has three children.

Rubber stamps and office supplies—Hillsboro Argus

Shooting Attack Of Interest Here

An accident on the Federal Indian reservation about 30 miles from Klamath Falls is of interest to Hillsboro people inasmuch as the officer who was shot, Bud Wilson, is the husband of Eva Sorenson, who was born and reared in Hillsboro, and a cousin-in-law of Mrs. Bryce Plymate of this city.

Wilson, who in answer to the report of an Indian woman that her husband, a white man, was threatening to kill her, went with her to her home to quiet the disturbance. As the two went up on the porch, the door was opened and the husband shot Wilson twice through the chest, one bullet going clear through the right side and the other lodging in his arm. The outlaw made his get-away but was captured by a posse two hours later and is in custody.

Wilson, who was rushed to the Valley hospital in Klamath Falls, has been given five blood transfusions and at the present time is reported as improving.

30,000 Nurses For Defense Needed by U. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—In an appeal for young women to enter the nursing profession to strengthen the defenses of the United States, Surgeon General Thomas A. Parran of the U. S. Public Health Service, declared here that 30,000 nurses would be drained from civilian life to fill needs of the defense program.

Dr. Parran said the total of nurses in the United States does not begin to be enough to meet "all eventualities."

"We need to double or triple the number of women competent to do some nursing task," he declared.

He reported the Civil Defense Agency needs an unlimited number of women trained as nurses' aides. To meet this shortage of trained women, the American Red Cross has launched a program of instruction for nurses' aides in key metropolitan cities.

With funds allocated by the Congress, Dr. Parran said a four-point program was being developed to provide increased nursing power.

"First," he said, "we shall begin 'refresher' courses in various parts of the country to equip inactive nurses to return to duty, releasing younger women for military service."

"Second, we shall proceed as rapidly as possible to increase the capacity of nursing schools for training thousands of additional nurses yearly."

"Third, the Red Cross First Reserve of Nurses will mobilize for military needs the nurse power now available. This is the official register from which the Army and Navy select their nurses. Every nurse who is qualified to enroll in that Reserve owes it to herself, her profession and her country to enter her name upon the register immediately. She must not postpone it, thinking that there is no emergency. For the nurses of America there is a very real emergency. Their skilled help is needed now."

"The fourth front upon which it is proposed to increase our nurse power is in the training of nurses' aides. In England at war they have been able to meet their health and medical needs only by a dilution of professional services, with one trained person in charge of several less trained assistants who can do specific tasks competently and loyally."

"Start Early—Don't Hurry" is a good safety slogan. People who don't hurry, don't worry.

Most things you buy or sell now are weighed. But things that are free, such as words and thoughts, are not always weighed properly.

Statistics Show Publicity Value

If all the words used in the Argus during recent weeks to publicize Hillsboro's Golden Jubilee "Happy Days" were laid end to end, they'd reach around Shute park a number of times with enough left over to fill a vest pocket dictionary or two.

Such is the conclusion of an unscientific Argus statistician who, although too indolent to make an exact count of words, found that 145 column-inches of space—or nearly one full page—were devoted to "Happy Days" publicity in the July 3 issue of this newspaper.

Taking into account the many advance publicity stories published in weeks preceding, plus a few yards of reading matter in the current issue, the "end-to-end" word-count claim may be warranted, all of which may account in part for the fact that "Happy Days" celebrations in Hillsboro never fail to attract an impressive crowd of holiday visitors.

Of course, the story at hand has a publicity angle also, which is to point out a phase of public service rendered by your county newspaper that might otherwise be overlooked. The same sort of service in pictures as well as news, is being rendered week in and week out the year 'round for every civic campaign or activity tending toward community betterment or more extensive goals.

Tigard Couple Married Saturday

Miss LaVerne Mae Bauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Carl Bauer of Tigard, became the bride of Mr. Eugene Eaton Sharp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Sharp, also of Tigard, at 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening in the Tigard Evangelical church. The Rev. A. R. Schmalz officiated in a setting of white flowers.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was dressed in white with lace bodice and bouffant marquisette skirt. She wore a lace turban and carried a white prayer book with an orchid. The bride's attendants also wore white, with face veils held in place with wreaths matching their flowers. The maid of honor, Miss Shirley Patton, carried yellow dahlias, and the bridesmaids, Misses Betty Pilkington, Marian Lindley and Elaine Beach carried orchid-colored dahlias.

Morell Sharp was best man, and Harold Elliott, Robert Rue, Herbert Ehrhard and Robert Tarrant were ushers.

A reception followed the ceremony. After a short honeymoon trip the young couple will make their home in Portland.
