

Hillsboro Boy Enjoys Flying In United States Marine Corps

One of two Oregon men to recently receive navy wings as "flying marines" from the new flight training school at Corpus Christi, Texas, Thomas Gerald Bronleewe Jr. of Hillsboro, will leave here soon for Quantico, Virginia, where he is assigned to the first fighting group in the United States marine corps.

Thomas is spending a 23-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bronleewe, and completes it on November 23.

He is one of 45 flying cadets who were the first class to complete the basic and advanced flying course at Corpus Christi. The Texas station, which cost the government approximately $3 million dollars, is called "University of the Air" and plans on training 3000 aviators annually.

Enthusiastic about the business of flying for Uncle Sam? Just ask Tom. "I've always more or less favored aviation," he said. "I began my flying career out at the local airport during the summer of 1937 when I took my first solo."

Prior to being transferred to the station at Corpus Christi from Seattle's thirteenth naval district headquarters, Second Lieutenant Bronleewe had piloted up approximately 50 or 60 hours of solo during his time at Hillsboro and Oregon State college, where he graduated in 1939 with a bachelor of science degree in aeronautical engineering.

He now has more than 300 hours, which includes work in the Curtis five-engine, Grumman fighter planes, and a host of other navy ships.

Corpus Christi was in its early stages when Tom arrived there in March, but the unit was 95 per cent completed when the first class graduated, he said.

An amazing safety record has been noted up by the station during the past seven months, according to Tom. Only two fatal crashes have resulted from an aggregate of 15,000 hours of flying time. He believes most of the present crashes of training ships in the army, navy, and marine branches can be attributed to human error rather than mechanical defects of planes.

In basic training, the pilots do about 40 hours of solo, of which 20 are in formation work. Much time is spent in the "link trainers," plane-like affairs which are used on the ground but indicate actual flying results. Twenty hours of actual flying is done "under the hood" on radio beams.

In this training, fliers receive an instrument rating comparable to that required for pilots of airlines, Bronleewe said.

Recreation facilities for trainees at Corpus Christi are extremely good and they have evenings and week-ends to themselves, he said. Only requirement is that the boys answer the call of taps at 9:30 p. m.

He isn't quite positive yet whether to make flying a life career but readily recommends it for any chap with two years of college training who is looking for a valuable experience under profitable conditions.

Thomas graduated from Hillsboro high in 1933 and was a former Spartan athlete in football and track. He spoke briefly at the school's Armistice assembly program Monday afternoon.

Prepare Now for Machinery Lack, Farmers Advised

Faced with a possible shortage of farm machinery for next year, and inability to get prompt delivery of repairs, Oregon farmers are being advised by Robert Taylor of Adams, chairman of the state U. S. D. A. agricultural defense board to make plans now to force their 1942 equipment requirements.

The days when a grower can rush to town and buy a new piece of equipment, or even get the right replacement part on a moment's notice, are probably over for the duration of the emergency, says Taylor. On the other hand, the government is making every effort to see that needed farm machinery and repairs are provided for as adequately as possible through favorable priorities.

Need to Expand
A statewide equipment survey recently conducted by county U. S. D. A. defense boards shows that Oregon farmers expect to need more than the usual amount of farm machinery next year, both because of the farm labor shortage and the increased production under the "food for freedom" program.

The big expansion of cover crop needs, the need for more food crops to supply the needed increases in pork, dairy, poultry and beef products, and the general farm labor problem are all factors in the indicated need for more equipment, the defense board chairman said.

The results of the machinery survey will be used to establish new priority ratings for materials to manufacture new equipment classed as absolutely necessary. These priorities, the chairman said, are designed to maintain the existing farm plant at a high level of efficiency by assuring supplies of needed repair and maintenance parts and of essential new equipment. Accordingly, he advises farmers to repair old machinery whenever possible, and to utilize all suitable farm equipment. Purchases of new equipment, he said, will best be held to a bare minimum.

Farsighted farmers can head off a lot of harvest time trouble by advance planning now, Taylor declared, pointing out that attention to repairs and ordering of needed parts during the coming winter months will do a lot to prevent hardships arising from shortages or delays next summer.

By the Rockets Red Glare
According to the Oregon State Motor association, one of the early "Anti-Auto" proposals was a law requiring motorists driving at night to send up a red rocket every mile, and then wait for ten minutes before proceeding carefully on their way blowing their horns and shooting Roman candles.

Visitor Leaves For New York

The Rock Creek home extension unit meets with Mrs. Fred Jossy today (Thursday). The project leaders are Mrs. Jossy and Mrs. Ernest Staehle, who will present "Meeting Home Emergencies."

This unit decided to leave the serving of the lunch to three members, allowing others to pay the cost by donation. Mrs. Chris Reichen, Mrs. Fred Zahler and Mrs. Frank Jeffries are serving the lunch for this meeting.

The Goffrey family have moved into the Haley house vacated by the Dennetts. The Goffreys are from Shasta, Cal., but recently lived a short time near Reedville.

"NAVY TRADE TRAINING GAVE ME MY START" SAYS PRESIDENT, SPERRY CORPORATION

THOMAS A. MORGAN (pictured in insert), president of the Sperry Corporation, world's largest manufacturer of aeronautical and marine instruments, received his early technical training in the U. S. Navy, in which he enlisted as a young man. "This has proved of great value to me in later years," said ex-sailor Morgan. Pictured above are new Navy recruits receiving electrical training at one of the modern equipped Navy Trade Schools. The Navy offers training to young men in nearly 50 different trades and vocations.

Opportunities for advancement, to learn skilled trades, for travel and adventure are identical whether a man enlists in the regular Navy or the Naval Reserve—and his pay, food, clothing, medical and dental care are the same.

Burner Study Reported
OREGON STATE COLLEGE—The use of sawdust burners too large for the furnace and too large to be heated in the most common cause of difficulty with these heating plants so popular in the Pacific northwest, reports Earl Willey, assistant professor of mechanical engineering here, in a new engineering experiment station bulletin entitled "Rating and Care of Domestic Sawdust Burners." This is the first piece of technical literature dealing with the domestic sawdust burner and is already in considerable demand from manufacturers, dealers, and users.

Plea Issued For Adult Help In Scout Work

Citing President Roosevelt's statement, "the nation is confident that the Boy Scouts stand ready to contribute to the national welfare in these critical hours," Dr. James E. West, chief scout executive, has appealed to volunteer adult leaders of the movement to make scouting and cubbing available to more boys as a patriotic service.

According to information received by the Portland Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, in a survey has found that three out of every four boys in America desire to be Scouts. G. H. Oberbauer, scout executive of the Portland Area Council, said that scouting nationally is now reaching but approximately one out of every three.

Number Given
The Portland Council, Oberbauer said, now has an active enrollment of 5561 Boy Scouts in 292 troops, 2665 Cubs in 70 Cub packs, and 2007 adults serving as volunteer leaders.

Oberbauer said "the Boy Scouts of America occupy a singular position in the social structure of this country in its ability to contribute much to our present national defense, in that the large membership of the organization and the training of its members fits it for the tasks which make strengthen our national effort."

Main problem, he stated, is not that of securing boys for membership in the movement, but rather it involves the securing of sufficient adult leaders to provide an adequate and active program for the boys in this council territory, who are or wish to be Scouts.

Holly Shipments Need Approval

Commercial holly orchardists have been advised to keep in mind the fact that holly must be inspected before the state department of agriculture will issue certificates for its shipment. Holly moving from the state in commercial lots must all bear the certificate, according to a statement from the state office.

All holly that is inspected and found to be scaly must be dipped in an oil dip before it is eligible for shipment, the department says. The approved formula for dipping holly is two gallons of medium summer oil to 98 gallons of water. Orchardists who do not use these proportions for smaller quantities. A detergent (one-half pound of pomol or saxonol) is recommended but not required for the dip. Holly should be dipped three minutes, drained five minutes, and washed in and out in fresh water, according to the statement, and the solution should be fresh.

Oregon has approximately 250 acres of commercial holly in bearing.

Watt Rites Held
Services were held Thursday afternoon at the Christian church in Hillsboro for James Henry Watt, 4, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Watt, who died Monday at Salem.

Gipsy Girl

(By Rev. George Taylor)
In the moonlight beside the campfire, the gipsy girl sings of her lover, the highborn prince. I dream I dwell in marble halls with vassals and slaves by my side," so ran the words. But Gipsy Girl, even though the dream came true you would not be happy for long. Deep down in the human heart is a lonesome place that this world can never fill.

Now back to another scene. At noonline as Christ sat on the wellbent to rest, there came a woman from the village to draw water. He that drinketh of this water shall thirst again, Jesus tells her. But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into eternal life. "Never thirst... eternal life." What did he mean? He meant his own God-self breathed into every soul.

I am the bread of life... I am the true vine... I am the way truth and the life... I am the good shepherd... I am the light of the world... I am the resurrection and the life. In all of this Christ is naming himself the eternal God, knocking at the heart's door. Open and he will come in and sup with you and you with him.

Again travel back, this time to the district of ten cities, Decapolis. Above the sea of Galilee are the tombs where wandered the mar possessed of the demons. Legions were these demons who had made his body their dwelling place and no chain could bind the man. Always he goes shrieking and cutting himself. At Christ's word, the demons leave the man and enter a herd of swine that dashes down into the sea. The word is carried into the city whereat the crowd flocks out to find the man no longer possessed but clothed and in his right mind and sitting at Jesus' feet.

The scene closes with the mar begging to follow in Christ's train. "Go home and tell how great things the Lord hath done for thee," Jesus commands. And he departed and began to publish in Decapolis how great things Jesus had done for him.

And you, have you opened your heart to Him and has He proved his Godself to you? Do your friends see what great things he hath done for you? Quit trying in your own strength and let him become your joy, hope, peace, cheer, wisdom, love every hour of the lifelong day.—(This space paid for by Oregon businessmen.)
