Limit 25 Pounds For Home Canning

ant foods." Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown stated.

"The fruit and vegetable put up at home, the demand there will be on the limited civilian supply of commercially packed foods. I earnestly appeal to those who home-can fruits and vegetables to use their processed food rations sparingly. It must be remembered that millions of war workers and others in essential industries have neither the time nor the facilities to put up fruits and vegetables at home. They must depend entirely on commercially-packed foods. Every can of the commercial pack that is saved for these folks through home canning is a direct and important contribution to our war effort. We can run the total into hundreds of millions of cans. Let's do it."

We have allowed increased amounts of sugar this year for jellies and preserves so that these can be used more extensively as a spread to stretch the butter and margarine ration.

"The method by which housewives will get their home-canning sugar this year has been simplified considerably. Result will be a saving of time and trouble for them as well as for the local boards."

Must Give Data
Local boards throughout the country will receive written applications under the new provisions on and after May 15. No special form is required unless it is planned to sell the home product and application may be made in person or by mail.

The applicant must furnish the following:

1. A copy of war ration book one for each person for whom home-canning sugar is sought;

2. The total number of quarts or pounds of finished fruit to be put up;

3. The amount of sugar to be used for making jams and jellies (not more than five pounds per person, within the 25-pound overall maximum.)

The board will record the number of pounds of sugar granted each person on the cover of his or her war ration book one.

Last year, housewives were required to fill out an official form in considerably greater detail.

Allotment in Coupons
Home canning sugar allotments under the new program will be in the form of "sugar allowance coupons" in denominations of 1, 3, 5 and 10 pounds. Housewives thus can spread their sugar buying over the entire canning season, instead of making a single large purchase as they did last season when boards had only purchase certificates for buying in quantity to issue.

Each sugar allowance coupon will be marked with the serial number of war ration book one and the book itself must be presented to the retailer for checking whenever a sugar allowance coupon is "spent." Unless the numbers on the books and the coupons correspond, the coupon is not valid and the retailer cannot complete the sugar sale.

To make it possible for consumers to continue to use outside canning facilities if they have done so before, and to make it possible for persons who have grown their own fruits and vegetables to have them commercially canned, if they wish, special provisions are made in the new regulations. A person whose family has grown its own fruits or vegetables and supplies all necessary ingredients for processing, including sugar, may have them commercially canned, and may acquire 100 quarts of such canned food for each member of his family without surrendering ration points.

The revised home-canning regulations also make provisions whereby small boarding houses, hotels, and restaurants, as well as government-owned and privately-operated institutions (such as schools, prisons, hospitals, etc.) may get sugar and make other necessary arrangements to do their own canning. In these cases, the amount of sugar allowed, as well as the provisions for reporting and using processed foods, depend largely on the size and function of the institution. No special provision is made for making jellies and jams. Sugar used for this purpose must be provided out of the institution's regular sugar allotment.
