MAKE THESE 3 SIMPLE TESTS

..and You'll Always Use M.C.P. Powdered PECTIN

ODOR

Let your nose be your guide as to whether your jams and jellies will be better when made with M.C.P. PECTIN or strong-smelling "old-fashioned" liquid pectins.

COLOR

The pronounced brownish color of "old-fashioned" liquid pectins will startle you when you compare them with the pure whiteness of M.C.P. PECTIN.

TASTE

Compare the strong, disagreeable flavor of liquid pectins with the pleasing, faint lemon taste of M.C.P. Think what this means in preserving true fruit flavor.

JAM and JELLY MAKERS!

-Save Sugar By Switching to M.C.P. Powdered PECTIN

TO OUR food-short Allies, the Government is sending huge amounts of powdered pectin to make energy-rich jams and jellies. Help relieve your own shortage of such rich foods as meat, eggs, butter, etc., (and help the war effort, too), by making plenty of jams and jellies. Jams, especially, are excellent spreads...and far more economical than butter or margarine.

SAVES SUGAR AND FRUIT

M.C.P. PECTIN jells more sugar both sugar and fruit...easy-to-use recipes eliminate guesswork, prevent spoilage due to too short a boil, assure jams and jellies of champion ship quality, with true-fruit flavor... M.C.P. eliminates disposing of messy bottles...means jam and jelly success...at less cost.

FOOD AUTHORITIES AGREE

"Jams and jellies are not just 'sweets', but rich, healthful foods...easy and inexpensive to make. For wartime health, economy, and to help save food, containers, and shipping space, make all you can NOW!"
