

Be Prepared When War Chest Workers Ask for Donations

The Oregon War Chest drive, a part of the National War Fund, is one of the smartest moves to come out of this war. Through this program repeated efforts to raise money for the many worthy charities in connection with the war are consolidated—it saves the time of volunteer solicitors and of those who are asked to give.

People should be prepared to make their donations to cover all when the solicitors call so that it will not be necessary for these volunteer workers to make repeat calls to those who have forgotten about the drive. Make it a pleasant, courteous business deal, for it is a definite responsibility of every individual to do his share.

Contributors are assured under this nationally-approved war chest program that their money is going into worthwhile channels and that it is going where it is needed most. After careful study the quota was made up to correspond to the demands of each of the 17 approved organizations in the National War Fund and the eight state-wide child caring agencies. In addition three character-building organizations for the youth of Washington county—Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and Girl Scouts—are also included.

The various agencies approved in this campaign are worthy of the wholehearted co-operation of every individual in Washington county and that should be forthcoming if the county is to meet its quota of $30,500. This county has consistently met obligations in the war program and this will be no exception.

President Roosevelt in a recent broadcast urging support of the drive said in part:

"I ask you to remember that the USO is your share of what we are doing for our own fighting men, and the forces behind the lines. I ask you to consider that War Prisoners' Aid does what no government can do. I ask you to think of the United Seamen's Service in terms of the people's debt to the men who took our ships across in the darkest hours of the war."

"And I ask you not to forget that the people of Russia and China, and of all the other United Nations—and especially the unfortunate, hungry men, women and children of all the overrun and enslaved countries—see in your personal and friendly concern the brightest ray of hope and the greatest power for good in the world today—the sovereign voice of the people of the United States."

"Living on the Home Front"

Last week marked the celebration of National Business Women's Week by 73,000 members of the Business and Professional Women's clubs in every state in the union, Alaska and Hawaii, the first observance of the week being in 1928. The week has been heralded by the chief executive of the United States, by governors and mayors as a national institution. It has been celebrated by the local club since the year in which the club was organized as one of the outstanding events of the year. Down through the years the focus has changed as the world has changed. This year's problems are so confusing, so complex that only trained minds and far-sighted orderly procedure can solve them.

"Living on the Home Front," this year's theme, is taking care of the people at home as the boys in the service would like to have them cared for, and to aid in every way possible to bring the end of the war closer and to bring a lasting peace to the world. To this end Business and Professional Women are dedicating themselves.

An Unhealthy Picture

That many American citizens are shirking their duties in the war effort is indicated by a recent survey by Dr. George Gallup. This survey reveals that about 13 1/2 million families own no war bonds or stamps. Percentages of non-bond buying according to sections were revealed as follows: Mountain states and Pacific coast, 15%; New England and Mid-Atlantic, 12%; East Central, 15%; West Central 18%, and South, 32%. The survey also showed that the greater number of non-bond buyers are in the lower income and educational brackets. Every family and individual should carry their proportionate share of the war's cost and some means should be found to change this very unhealthy picture.

A move to "draft" Eric Johnston of Spokane, Wash., president of the United States chamber of commerce, as a candidate for the republican presidential nomination is reported from Chicago. Johnston is one of the outstanding men in the country today and his views on national and international affairs have been widely printed and quoted. Furthermore, there is a lot of logic and good common horse sense in what he has to say. He would have a lot of popular appeal with the rank and file of the voters, much more so than most of those mentioned so far. In spite of his post as president of the U. S. chamber of commerce he is very liberal, believes firmly in the spirit of America and free enterprise. His youth, personality and intelligence should make him formidable.

Congratulations are in order for Fred J. Sewell, prominent local resident, who has been elevated to the high post of chancellor commander of the Knights of Pythias of Oregon. It brings further honors to the community. This position offers Mr. Sewell a fine opportunity for service in the fraternal field in which he has taken a keen interest for many years.

The navy department announces that the American fleet is now the mightiest in world history. This was true at the end of the last war but through arms conference agreements we sank some of our ships while others scuttled theirs on paper. Let us hope that it stays the mightiest, for it will serve as good insurance against war in the future.

Queen of U. S. Mothers

Editor's Note: The following letter, published October 4 in Hillsboro, is the work of a woman who has caused the writer to break a long-established precedent and write in the paragraph entitled "Long Live the Queen." All this discussion of whether Mrs. Roosevelt should travel hither and yon is rather a waste of breath as the independent lady in question will probably do as she thinks best regardless of public approval.

The sentence mentioned was "I think she is queen among American mothers." Before anyone starts picking queens it might be wise to visit every town and home in the country.

Our particular town is filled with "queens among American mothers," but few have had the money to fly through the skies and none have spoken over the radio nor "made the headlines."

The mothers of our town who have bravely sent their sons away are too busy to travel far afield. They have helped save the crops here at home. Their basements are filled with fruit they have canned. Their hands are calloused and their nails broken from unaccustomed labor. What queen could do more?

Women who have formerly been entirely occupied with home are now in our canneries, our restaurants and stores, working long hours to keep business on its weary feet so that there will be food for their sons overseas and industry into which those sons may enter when they return. Is this not queenly?

They are commuting great distances to the shipyards and working at strength-sapping jobs that there may be ships to carry supplies to their sons. The women on our neighboring farms are doing men's work, trying to keep those farms running till their sons come back to occupy them. Could a queen do more?

What of those mothers who have received telegrams that their sons will never return? Have they had time for grief? Those of our town have not. They have quietly gone
