PORTLAND GAS

This magic flame worked harder in 1943 than ever before...

...SERVING MORE CUSTOMERS
...HELPING SPEED WAR PRODUCTION
...SUPPLYING MORE BY-PRODUCTS

Portland Gas & Coke Company set many records in its 85th year of service. Those of especial interest are summarized in this report:

THE DEMAND for Portland gas was greater than in any other year of the Company's history, totaling 6,391,449,000 cubic feet. This was 12.3% more than in 1942, 43.2% more than in 1941. This huge volume of gas went to 99,509 customers, more than 10,000 of whom have been added since the outbreak of the war. Meeting the tremendously expanded needs of a crowded war production area has been our big responsibility for the past two years and will continue to be our major job in 1944.

IN THE TWO YEARS America has been at war, Portland Gas & Coke Company has produced 181,000 tons of Gasco Briquets. This is almost as much as were manufactured in the previous four years. This greatly stepped-up production means that Gasco Briquet manufacturing and delivery crews have kept operations at full speed, making every movement and every minute count. Thanks to their good work, hundreds of families who might otherwise have been cold enjoy the even, economical, ash-free warmth of Gasco Briquets, the Northwest's best solid fuel.

REMEMBER when you could drive up to a Gasco Motor Fuel pump and say, "Fill 'er up," knowing you were getting miles of quiet, powerful performance. The benzol that gave Gasco Motor Fuel its anti-knock qualities is still made by your Gas Company... but it's all going into vitally needed aviation gasoline and synthetic rubber. After the war, though, Gasco Motor Fuel will again be waiting for you at your service station... Portland Gas & Coke Company is also contributing substantial quantities of other by-products to the war, including coke and pitch for aluminum production, solvents and naphthalene.

WITHOUT CAPABLE PEOPLE to operate them, even the best of equipment and materials are worth nothing. So the major credit for our achievements in 1943 must go to the 680 skilled and experienced men and women who are responsible for giving you such good service. We're proud of them. We're proud, too, of the 81 absent members of the Gas Company organization who are now serving in the armed forces of the United States. Just as soon as their war service is completed, they'll be welcomed back to jobs with a future in this progressive, long-established Oregon industry.

OVER-ALL LIVING COSTS have increased greatly in three years. Our costs for labor and materials have gone up, too. But none of our prices have been increased. You still buy Portland gas at prewar bargain prices, the lowest in the entire Pacific Northwest. Gasco Briquets haven't gone up, either, which makes them a bigger value than ever.
