Grain Crop Shift Seen for County

(Continued from page 4) balance between animals and feed. All of the hay that could be grown would be needed, they contended, but felt that the shortage of labor and machinery would necessitate the estimated reduction. Regarding chicken and turkey production, those present at the meeting felt that a decrease would be in line with good agricultural procedure since the number of these birds now being raised was exceeding the feed supply. In predicting a reduction in the fresh vegetable production, the group stressed the warning that anyone raising fresh vegetables for market or processing should be sure of a market before planting. Last year many growers were caught without a market when victory gardens started to ripen. That county farmers had achieved the highest production in history last year with less labor and machinery was the declaration of Palmer S. Torvond, county agent, in reporting a summary of the crop program for 1944. He pointed out that 1943 marked the climax of three years of increasing agricultural production. This, he declared, was due to favorable crop years and the fact that farmers tried to do their best to live up to the "Food for Freedom" program. An additional stimulus will be necessary to prevent a decrease in production in war industry. Some stimuli may be forthcoming in the nature of a relaxing of government regulations controlling fertilizers and insecticides, coupled with the availability of some farm machinery and a possibility of some improvement in the labor supply as a result of war industry decreases. One of the principal handicaps to dairy, swine and fresh vegetable farmers has been the OPA and other government regulations affecting the balance between prices received for the products and the expenses involved in production. Review of state and national aspects of the 1944 food production program in line with the minimum production program was presented by Clifford Smith, assistant county agent leader from Corvallis. That Oregon's crop production in 1943 was out of balance in livestock numbers and feed available was the report of Willis Bogli, farmer field man for the AAA also of Corvallis. General circumstances and more favorable monetary returns for certain crops could make it possible to achieve a better balance between animals and feed, he declared. John W. Kamna, chairman of the county AAA committee, presided at the all-day meeting.

REEDVILLE—Communion will be observed at the Reedville church Sunday morning, 11 o'clock service, with Dr. David Hare of Portland in charge. This service, originally planned for January 9, was postponed because of the illness of Dr. Hare. Women Meet January 27: Church Women's association will meet January 27 at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. E. J. Isom. Mrs. Otto Grange will have charge of the program on China, which will be of special interest. This is the annual birthday meeting and a large attendance is desired. Those attending are asked to wear a Chinese costume or bring some article of Chinese origin. House Warming Given: Mr. and Mrs. Jay Frost were surprised at their new home Saturday night, at a house warming party sponsored by members of Aloha Grange, with about 40 guests in attendance. Games provided entertainment, with Willy Heinrich in charge. Mrs. Emma Tribbenow and Mrs. A. J. Gaunt won prizes. A lovely picture for the living room was presented by the group. In making the presentation Mr. Heinrich complimented Mr. Frost on his splendid achievement in building the fine new home single-handed in two and one-half years, while working long hours in the shipyard. Refreshments were served with Mesdames Harold Bergman, Joseph Lorenzen, Willy Heinrich, R. W. Andross and T. J. Nault in charge.
