

Hillsboro Argus

Hillsboro, Oregon, Thursday, March 16, 1944

Volume 50, No. 51 Section Two, Six Pages

RED CROSS ON JOB IN ITALY—WITH THE FIFTH ARMY. Somewhere in Italy—That's not coffee, coming up" as American Red Cross Hospital Worker, Lucy D. Englewood, N. J., and Mfc. Irving Autz, Cuero, Texas, tote the beverage through thick mud to a tent where it is served to patients in an advanced evacuation hospital here.

Progress Made In Red Cross Fund Campaign

SCHOLLS—Red Cross solicitors in Scholls are making progress on the drive, and hope to have it concluded by the end of the week. Reporting Monday morning were Mrs. Rhoda Hesse and Mrs. Ina Sutherland, solicitors for Grouer, with $45, Mountaineer district, under the direction of Mrs. Max Bennett and Mrs. Ed Wohlshiepel, reported $96, Midway, with Mrs. Ed Bolma and Mrs. Fred Aebischer, has $18.50.

Red Cross seamstresses have a total of 66 dirty bags completed, Mrs. Bennett, local chairman, reported.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Benson were Sunday hosts at a dinner honoring the birthday of their daughter, Mrs. Frank Lillienquist. Betty Benson is also at home for a week's vacation from her work in Portland.

Residents of Scholls and surrounding sections had a taste of several extremes in weather Sunday, the morning breaking clear and sunny, with rain later in the forenoon, followed by a brisk snowstorm in the afternoon. The mountain top section had considerably more snow than the lowlands and was still white in places Monday morning, with ice on ponds and pools. Despite the cold, however, there are definite signs of spring with trees budding, and grass showing. No crops seem to be hurt by the cold as yet.

The Misses Nadine and Virginia Bunnell left for San Francisco Monday to return to their work in the Tommy Harris cocktail lounge, where they have signed a new four months' contract. The two sisters will also appear for the fifth time Wednesday evening at the famous stage door canteen, singing for men and women of the service.

Mrs. Fred Smith (Lorraine Deming) and baby daughter, Patty, left for Sacramento, Cal., Friday for an indefinite stay with Pct. Smith, who is at an army camp there.

Mrs. Virgil Bash has as guest for an indefinite stay, her father, Alvin Arthaud, of Northwestern, Okla.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

Landmarks Cut Down
Two cherry trees, which have stood as landmarks in the field near the house on the Earl Stretcher place, were cut down last week, and made into firewood. It was estimated that the old tree were nearly 60 years old, having been planted by the great-grandfather of Louis Hesse, son of Mrs. Stretcher. One of the trees has continuously borne fruit though torn apart by a severe storm a few years ago, and many tons of cherries were sold to Portland people who liked their special flavor. The other tree died a number of years ago. At one time a small house stood between the two trees and while blasting the stumps out last week the top of an ancient sugar bowl was turned up with the dirt.

IN RACE—Charles A. Sprague, Salem newspaper publisher and former governor, who has announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for the United States senate.

Sprague First To Enter Race

Former Governor Charles A. Sprague, editor and publisher of the Oregon Statesman at Salem is the first person to announce his candidacy for the unexpired portion of the late Senator McNary's term in the United States senate. In his statement Sprague said:

"You may announce that I shall be a candidate for the office of United States senator at the republican primaries for the seat made vacant by the death of Charles L. McNary. As a loyal friend of the late senator I pledge myself to carry on his great work in behalf of Oregon and the Pacific coast."

"The coming years promise to be one of vital importance to our people and the grave problems of war and peace will come to a head in the senate. I am tremendously concerned with the vigorous prosecution of the war and with the working out of a constructive peace program."

"As governor, I witnessed and had a part in the change from peace to war. I saw our youth go out into military service. I am anxious to see that the transition from war to peace is made with a minimum of difficulty and particularly that our men in the service, as they are demobilized, be reestablished in the social and economic life of our communities."

"We will face critical situations on this coast particularly as rearmament of our industries and employment. As senator I would work to preserve and expand our industries, our agriculture and our utilization of power and water resources. Our wealth in timber must be conserved by wise policies such as I sponsored as governor. And at all times the personal well being of our citizens must be protected from exploitation."

"I believe that the knowledge of Oregon, its people and its resources and its problems, gained during my term as governor and in my work as editor of a newspaper at the state capital, will be invaluable. If I am chosen to fill the high office of United States senator, I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

Special Program Given for Club

CEDAR MILL—Community club met Wednesday March 8 at St. Patrick's Day program was presented for the Community club March 8. The following participants: P. A. Thorne, vocal solo; Mrs. Lester Fuller, vocal solo; Thomas Galacher and L. W. Kingsley gave a short skit on the "Income Tax." Mrs. Lester Stark, interpretive poem. A question and answer leap year game was conducted by the women sewing the question printed on a green shamrock. The men wore the answers. Partners for supper were also acquired this way. Games were played with Mrs. L. W. Kingsley receiving high score. W. I. Heinrichs was master of ceremonies for a "Can You" feature. Frank Young was judged winner. A report on the recent benefit dance given by the club showed $14 net profit.

Hobby Show Planned
The P-T-A will hold its regular monthly meeting March 23 in the evening at the schoolhouse. A hobby show will be the main feature of the program with both parents and children displaying their hobbies.

Mrs. Carl Stark entertained a group of ladies March 14 with a luncheon. After lunch a kitchen shower was given for Grandpa Merritt.

A minimum of difficulty and particularly that our men in the service, as they are demobilized, be reestablished in the social and economic life of our communities."

"We will face critical situations on this coast particularly as rearmament of our industries and employment. As senator I would work to preserve and expand our industries, our agriculture and our utilization of power and water resources. Our wealth in timber must be conserved by wise policies such as I sponsored as governor. And at all times the personal well being of our citizens must be protected from exploitation."

"I believe that the knowledge of Oregon, its people and its resources and its problems, gained during my term as governor and in my work as editor of a newspaper at the state capital, will be invaluable. If I am chosen to fill the high office of United States senator, I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

"I shall make an active campaign and will appreciate the support of all republicans at the May primaries."

Volunteers Save Faubian Home

NORTH PLAINS—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Faubian caught fire Sunday March 12, but prompt work of volunteers put the fire out. Mr. and Mrs. William Joos entertained the "300" club Monday evening Mrs. J. R. Sanford, Andy Christensen having high scores; Mrs. H. Cypher and Claude Williams second. Mr. and Mrs. Andy Christensen will entertain the club March 20.

L. H. Brubane, who is in the St. Vincent hospital in Portland suffering from metal poisoning, is reported improving.

The two small sons of Mr. and Mrs. Faubian returned home from a visit with their grandparents in Texas. Mrs. Faubian's parents returned with them.

Pvt. Clifford Studebaker returned to Camp Chaffee, Arkansas, after spending a week with his parents. Mr. and Mrs. George Studebaker.

Hobart Kent was taken to the Jones hospital in Hillsboro last week suffering from an acute attack of appendicitis. He is reported improving.

Mrs. Della Cypher reports having collected $165.49 for the Red Cross during the past week. Glencoe lodge, Knights of Pythias making the largest single donation of $50.

Mrs. A. K. Reynolds was home over the week-end. She is staying with her son, Kyle, in Portland and taking treatments for a badly infected eye.

Ernest Hughes, who is stationed in California, was home over the week-end visiting his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hughes, and relatives.

Beware Coughs
from common colds
That Hang On
Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

CREOMULSION
for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

INSULATE WITH JOHNS-MANVILLE BLOWN ROCK WOOL for comfort that pays for itself! WEATHERSTRIP YOUR DOORS AND WINDOWS! Call or write for free information and survey! EAst 6104 Portland ROCK-WOOL INSULATING CO., Inc. 711 S. E. Alder St. Portland 14, Oregon

Eyes Examined - Glasses Fitted

We are fully equipped to give the best and latest in

PROFESSIONAL EYE CARE

DR. GEO. H. BUTTERFIELD OPTOMETRIST

Commercial Bldg., Hillsboro, Phone 2602 Office hours: 9:30 to 5 p. m. Closed Thursday afternoons.

Ken Wilcox

SUGGESTS:

This Year Dig Deep,