Beaverton Doctor Tells of Invasion

BEAVERTON—A letter from Dr. Herbert Mason, who is in service in France, to his wife here, contains some very interesting bits of information. He describes the trip across the channel as smooth, and devoid of danger from the enemy, but long and very unpleasant, as to living conditions.

An air raid in which they were shelled with artillery but escaped without harm. He says that artillery fire is much worse than bombing because of its accuracy.

The hospital area he says is in a cow pasture, and the country he describes as green and pretty, with warm days and cool nights. He states that allied planes are overhead all day, enemy planes all night. Dr. Mason says he is kept busy, almost continuously, with some of the surgery minor, some extremely serious, with wounds that are remarkable. Casualties are high and injuries severe. There is some of the surgery minor, some realized at home when wounded and crippled soldiers begin to arrive home. The average man has several wounds, and not just one.

Visit the Beach
Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stipe and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Summers spent last week at Yachats beach. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fleetwood of Mapleton have been guests of friends here. He is recuperating from a recent injury received in logging camp.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Huddleston are moving from their home on S. W. 8th avenue, recently sold, to their new home on Watson street.

Mr. and Mrs. Waibel Go to Pennsylvania
HIDDALE-IOWA HILL—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Waibel left Sunday night for a trip to Pennsylvania to visit Frank's oldest brother and other relatives. They expect to be gone several weeks. Grandma Eischen and Celestine Waibel, who is having a 2-weeks vacation, are staying at the Waibel home until they return.

Several ladies of the community met at the home of Mrs. Steve Schoenbacher Friday afternoon and presented her with a beautiful bedspread.

Farmers in the community are very busy getting their hay crop harvested and some are getting it baled.

Should Social Security Be Extended?

As debated by

Dr. Eduard C. Lindeman
Professor of Social Philosophy at the
New York School of Social Work,
Columbia University

Channing Pollock
Author Best-Selling Biography
"Horse of My Year"
Internationally Known Playwright

DR. LINDEMAN OPENS: I believe in social security. Not merely because of the benefits to those insured but also because it tends to stabilize our economy. Consequently, I believe in extending social security in order to bring about greater personal and national safety. When social security is sufficiently extended so as to include the majority of citizens, it will cease to be regarded as charity. Specifically, I should like to see our social security program follow much the same pattern as proposed in the British Beveridge Plan. Following are my suggestions for extension: (1) Old age and survivors' insurance should be extended to include employees of non-profit corporations, agricultural and domestic workers and those who are self-employed, including owners of small businesses. (2) Sickness and disability insurance should be extended to cover the entire employed population including the self-employed. (3) Unemployment insurance should be extended to include seamen, agricultural workers, employees of small business establishments and non-profit corporations. (4) Public assistance insurance should be extended so as to include all citizens who may be for any reason ineligible for other insurance benefits or those whose insurance benefits are not adequate for maintaining a good standard of living. In addition, I should approve of immediate steps to furnish social security for all ex-servicemen and women in order to avoid serious maladjustment in the period of demobilization.

MR. POLLOCK CHALLENGES: In his scholarly book, "We Go Marching," John T. Flynn demonstrates how surely a government's support of its citizens results in bankruptcy and fascism. This seems the answer to Dr. Lindeman's arbitrary assumption that the process "tends to stabilize our economy." Certainly, economy cannot be stabilized by any method that reduces the incentive of employers and the self-reliance of the employed. The latter himself indicated that by Dr. Lindeman's suggestion that government hand-outs "will cease to be regarded as charity." Many of us know from experience that when the beneficiaries cease regarding our gifts as charity their disintegration is well under way.

DR. LINDEMAN REPLIES: We were supposed to discuss the question: Should Social Security Be Extended? I say yes. Mr. Pollock not only says no, but wants existing social security abolished. I insist a comprehensive plan for social security would give stability to our economy because it would tend to prevent widespread unemployment—the need for large sums for relief purposes. Mr. Pollock claims our security will destroy all initiative. I believe quite the contrary; namely, that a basic security will release hitherto unused energies and will remove one of the basic causes of fear and, finally, I distinguish between two types of charity, whereas he thinks of all insurance as a form of charity. For the life of me, I cannot understand how he arrives at these conclusions.

MR. POLLOCK REPLIES: Replying to Dr. Lindeman's 4 fallacies: (1) One high priest of social security said, "I don't see a sucker worse than he has to." Recent experience indicates there are very few suckers. (2) Government beneficiaries from 1932 cost from $3 to $7 for every dollar collected. (3) In 1932, we had more than 26 million motor cars—approximately one for every family. The price and cost of maintaining a car would provide maintenance of a car would provide and repair a substantial number of existing insurance companies. (4) That national income of $150 billion has been attained by government spending of our savings through emergency taxation—the creation of a federal debt that may reach $300 billion—just as pre-war hand-outs created a debt of about $30 billion.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Judge, I've had a lot of calls for that book you took out last week. Tell the Boys Back Home. How did you like it?"
"Fine, Sarah, fine... it's just the kind of book I like to get hold of... I enjoyed every word of it. Wish I could have been along with the author myself... actually living with the men right on the fighting fronts. He got mighty close to them and they certainly opened up their minds and their hearts to him."

"There were lots of new things in the book I hadn't seen in any other reports from front-line writers. But there was one question the man asked the author that I have seen time and time again in these stories. That was 'Are you going to put prohibition over on our soldiers again... and without getting our vote?'"
"I noticed that, too, Judge, and I think the least we can do for those fighting men who are doing so much for us is to respect their wishes on that subject."
