Goal of Safety Program Given

Elimination of accidents in connection with farm motor vehicle transportation will be the goal of the safety program in Oregon in connection with observance of National Farm Safety Week, July 24-29, according to Secretary of State Bob Farrell. The safety division of his office is emphasizing this phase of safety throughout this month.

Thousands of young people from Oregon cities and towns go to the farms to assist the crop harvest during the summer season. Many of these young people are members of platoon groups with adult leaders. Farrell said, and most of these groups travel in school buses. Safety precautions are an integral part of the program of platoons.

However, the secretary of state said, there are hundreds of young people taken to farms in small trucks and in some instances, farm trailers. Since there is no organized program of safety in connection with this transportation, Farrell's office is making an effort to contact individual operators to suggest certain safety precautions to avoid accidents.

Farmers who transport workers in their trucks were urged to observe these precautions:
1. Inspect the vehicle regularly to make sure brakes are in good condition and that the body of the vehicle is in good shape.
2. Provide seats in bed of vehicle for passengers and make sure sideboards and end gate are in place for every trip.
3. If possible, have an adult ride in the truck with the passengers, if not, designate an older boy or girl as safety supervisor for each trip. Have this individual encourage passengers to sit quietly and avoid horse-play.
4. In loading and unloading passengers, do not dash across the road or street without looking for approaching cars.
5. Where possible, stop truck on the side of the road upon which passengers will be employed so they will not need to cross the highway.
6. Do not permit passengers to sit on the bed of the truck with their legs dangling over the end. The second most frequently reported type of traffic accident in rural areas is the rear-end collision type.

Trailers are not advised for hauling passengers. However, if they are used, the trailer hitch should be of the best type and should be inspected on every trip to insure safety.

Last year there were no serious traffic accidents involving young people going to and from farms in Oregon, said Secretary of State Bob Farrell said the observance of safety precautions would enable the state to repeat this record this year.
