Sou Promoted

Mrs. C. Balfe has received a letter from her son, Bud Balfe, stating that he now has the rank of staff sergeant. He has served 3 years in the army. He is in Italy and has been in the hospital 5 months with an injured foot which he says still gives him trouble and may necessitate a change in his duties. Bud feels that another stripe on the arm means more to him than another bar on the shoulder means to an officer. He says that the work of the lowly "dog facer" is an important part on the road to victory.

Complete Data Needed On Used Car Deals

Local OPA boards are having to hold up applications for gasoline on many used car sales because the certificate of transfer, which is signed jointly by the buyer and seller is too often incomplete and does not contain all the required information. Ernest J. Klein, district OPA automotive price specialist, announced today.

Incomplete certificates have to be returned to the buyer, causing not only an additional work load on the boards, but delay and consequent annoyances on the part of the applicant, Klein said.

Klein emphasized particularly that the model and serial number must be given so the board can determine whether sale is in compliance with price.

New Policy Set On Gasoline For Service Men

A new policy on granting gasoline rations to members of the armed services on leave or furlough has been announced by McDannell Brown, district OPA director.

A member of the armed services on leave or furlough for a period of three days or more will be entitled to one gallon of gasoline for each day of his leave or furlough up to a maximum of 30 gallons.

The new rule replaces one granting a flat five gallons to every member of the armed services on leave, furlough or pass, regardless of the length of the leave.

It has become evident that the old policy, which resulted in giving much more gasoline to a member of the armed forces who got many short leaves than to one who received one long one, was unfair to the man serving out of the country and returning after a long absence. To eliminate this unfairness, the new rule, tailoring the amount of the ration to the length of the leave or furlough was worked out by OPA in conjunction with representatives of the army and the navy.

Furlough rations will now range between a minimum of three gallons, for a three-day leave or furlough to a maximum of 30 gallons for 30 days. At the suggestion of the army and navy, no ration will be granted for passes (to army personnel) or liberties (to navy personnel), or for leaves or furloughs of less than three days.

To receive his ration, the member of the armed services should apply to the war price and rationing board having jurisdiction over the automobile he expects to drive, and present proper leave or furlough papers. The ration will be
