Rotarians Hear Talk on Foods
All wars have stimulated food preservation because of the need for canned foods for the armed forces, asserted Prof. E. H. Weigand of Oregon State college in speaking before the Hillsboro Rotary club last Thursday. Food preservation was originally started during the Napoleonic wars.

The greatest growth in the food preservation industry came following World War I, according to Prof. Weigand, who pointed out that the major portion of the pack of all canners is now going to the armed forces.

Great development in the frozen food industry following the war is expected by the educator, who said that he also looks for considerable growth in the food locker business. Mr. Weigand declared that imagination was necessary in science and business.

W. C. Christensen and H. L. MacKenzie urged the purchase of the war bonds in order to put Washington county over the top. Keith Fenner was program chairman.

Building Plans Under Way
Oregon's ten million dollar building program recently sanctioned by the vote of the people is well along in the planning stage but construction will not begin until materials and labor are available. Approximately $8,000,000 of the sanctioned income tax surplus will be expended under the direction of the board of control. In addition to these voted funds $1,500,000 will be expended to build a new office building at the capital. This sum will be borrowed from the state land board and will be repaid out of rentals from state departments.

Several preliminary and prospective sketches have been submitted to the board of control by architects whose drawing boards have been dusted off for the first time since Pearl Harbor. Under pressure of dire necessity first consideration will be given to the construction of ward buildings and remodeling at the Oregon state hospital at Salem.

Allocations for the Eastern Oregon state hospital at Pendleton total $261,500 and for the Eastern Oregon tuberculosis hospital at The Dalles, total $60,000.

The white board of higher education is charged with the expenditure of about $4,000,000 for new buildings at Corvallis, Eugene, Monmouth, La Grande and Ashland.

Depreciation Rate Stable Five Years
Joseph D. Nason, Jr., commissioner of internal revenue, has authorized a plan under which businessmen can obtain advance assurance for five years on treatment of depreciation deductions for purposes of income tax and excess profits tax.

"It is another of our steps to make application of tax laws more definite and certain and at the same time to be of all possible assistance to businessmen insofar as statutes and regulations permit," Commissioner Nason said.

It is already the policy of the Bureau of Internal Revenue to avoid unnecessary changes in depreciation rates and methods. New plan carries this policy a step further by making it possible for businessmen to get written assurance that specific rates mutually agreed upon by him and the bureau will not be disturbed for at least five years, except on his own request.

"This plan was adopted after consultations with many businessmen and their representatives, and it looks forward to substantial mutual advantages as a result of it."

A businessman desiring to obtain such an agreement should consult the Internal Revenue Agent in charge in the district in which he normally files his income tax returns.

McKinley-Elmonica Bond Sales, $8,025
Bonds sold in the McKinley-Elmonica section was reported by the state treasurer, J. P. Meurer, area chairman, called last Quota for that section was $11,400.

There are five per cent more farms in the state than when the last census was taken in 1940, and that the farms average 3 per cent larger acreage per farm, according to John Kalkk, supervisor of the census in Oregon.

Figures in the report reveal Oregon has an all-time record in crop this year and verify the often heard statement that there are more beef cattle in the state than ever before.

A late cold spring followed by a late rainy season brought on the heavy hay crop and furnished ample grass for cattle that were in poor marketing condition. One of the potent contributing factors to the present meat shortage is that ranchers did not market cattle that were not in the best condition, preferring, for good financial reasons, to hold them to fatten on the lush crop.

Belton Acting Governor
President of the Senate Howard C. Belton, Canby, now acting governor of Oregon, will remain in Salem most of the time until about July 13, when Governor Earl Snell is expected to return from his San Francisco conference for the opening of the national conference. Belton is serving his second term as acting governor. The first time was in April when Governor Snell went to Reno, Nev. for a conference with western governors and on to San Francisco for the opening of the United Nations conference.

Tax Problems
At the next meeting of Governor Earl Snell's 13-member tax study commission, scheduled for July 23, the tax structures of other states will be available for study. Special attention will be given to the power of the state to increase income taxes and to the possibility of meeting postwar tax revenue shrinkages. The vision of diminishing liquor profits and dwindling income taxes are seven-sevenths of the commission's agenda.

Need for Recruits in SPARS Announced
Need for more men at sea as the Pacific war expands creates a necessity for more recruits in the SPARS, women's branch of the U. S. Coast Guard, reports the coast guard recruiting station at 806 S. W. Morrison street, Portland.

Thousands of coast guard men now serving at sea were made available by SPARS taking over jobs which they formerly held ashore, declares Recruiting Officer O. L. Pickett.

More women 20 to 35, especially those with office training and experience, are needed to help swell their ranks in men released from shore duties, according to the recruiter. "The war is far from ended and the demands on the coast guard grow greater as the battle line extends farther toward the Japanese home islands."

SPAR recruits must be American citizens, in good health, have at least two years of high school or business school education and have no dependents under 18 years of age.

Members of all military women's reserves are eligible for educational and other benefits of the GI bill of rights, the recruiting officer pointed out.
