Dairy Officials Threaten Cut In Milk Supply

A threat to divert fluid milk of the Portland area to other uses unless OPA grants price increases on Grade A milk was voiced at Tuesday's session of the Dairy Co-operative association in Portland.

Application for a price increase will be filed with OPA within a week as a result of a resolution passed at the organization's 16th annual meeting. The resolution stated that the "frozen" milk price has resulted in a large reduction in the supply of grade A milk and called for "an upward scale in the price of grade A milk . . . sufficient to assure an adequate supply of that type of milk."

Will W. Henry, manager of the association, said an increase of 25 cents per pound of butterfat would be sought over the present price of 95 cents per pound butterfat F.O.B. the distributors' plants.

Adding punch to the threat to divert fluid milk to other uses unless the price increase is granted, was the report of officials that the association's capacity to convert fluid milk into powdered milk could easily be doubled.

An increase of the butter shortage was forecast by G. A. Brown, manager of Interstate Associated Creameries. Brown stated that the 1945 butter production by his organization was 3,000,000 pounds less than in 1943.

The Dairy Co-operative association did a business of $9,241,209 last year, of which sales of milk and cream amounted to $7,886,740, it was revealed by Ralf Bodding, comptroller, in his treasurer's report. The organization's 1944 total volume of business was $8,565,578.

In the organization's annual elections, Arthur P. Ireland, Forest Grove, was returned to the board of directors for a two-year period. Henry Hagg, Reedville, is a holdover member.

Two Plead Not Guilty To Recent Indictments

Cases are pending on three of the four true bills returned by the grand jury January 24. One of the indictments was secret. Two entered pleas of not guilty and one files demurrer to indictment.

Claude Edward Smith, Forest Grove, entered a plea of not guilty, February 1, before Circuit Judge R. Frank Peters. His trial will be later. He was indicted on a charge of assault with intent to kill. Lewis E. White, Forest Grove, filed a demurrer through his attorney to the indictment which charged him with threatening commission of a felony. Charles Todd of Buxton, who was charged in the indictment with contributing to the delinquency of a minor, entered a plea of not guilty through his attorney.

Cover Crops Seeds Sale by Oregon Producers to Government Decreases

Oregon producers have sold only slightly more than two million pounds of cover crop seeds to the government under the 1945 seed purchase program to date. This is the smallest total since the program started in 1940, and only a fraction of the 100 million pounds purchased in 1943, according to a report from the Oregon State college extension office.

Committeemen see the small volume of government buying as indicative of the firm demand for Oregon cover crop seed, with the trade handling nearly all of the 1945 crop. The purchase program closes on April 30, giving producers another three months to sell their seed to the government if they desire.

The program was established six years ago to guarantee minimum prices to Oregon producers, and to assure supplies of seeds for expanded cover cropping in the southern states.

AAA committeemen this month are making a grass-roots appraisal of conservation measures needed on Oregon's farmlands. The check will include all practices needed to make repairs on land damaged by erosion and depletion, as well as the measures necessary on good lands to keep them that way. In addition to the work needed the survey will show the extent to which assistance is necessary to get the job done.

This state-wide check-up on the condition of agricultural resources is being launched in most counties with a general meeting of all community committeemen and other representative farmers and leaders. At this meeting basic figures on acreages and production are turned over to the committeemen who will do the job in each community. The information gathered in each district will be put together into a county report at a second meeting later this month.

Driving Hazards Increased by Cold Weather

Winter conditions of ice and snow, particularly in the eastern part of the state and in mountain areas, are adding serious hazards to Oregon traffic, already complicated by sharply increased vehicle use, older cars and increased travel pace, according to Secretary of State Robert S. Farrell.

"Your life may depend on how well you can stop and see this winter," said Mr. Farrell. "Because traffic experts predict that auto accidents will set a new all time high during this snow-ice season."

The reason, he said, is a combination of more cars, more gas and more "restraint weary" drivers. If practical precautions are not taken for protection against the two major hazards—inadequate traction and reduced visibility—this will result in the worst traffic accident winter in history.

Motorists themselves, weary of wartime restraints, are inclined to be exuberant, and to take unnecessary chances. Millions of motorists fail to realize that during the years of the compulsory 35-mile-an-hour speed limit, their driving skill may have grown a bit rusty, particularly at higher speeds. On snow or ice, 25 miles per hour can be dangerous.

This is especially true, said Farrell, of their ability to judge the distance in which they can stop their cars on snow or ice covered pavements. As a result, he said, all motorists should exercise more than usual care this year, and the care should begin with getting their cars in the best possible condition for the added winter hazards.

This should include, he said, the checking of brakes, tire chains, windshield wipers, defrosters, headlights, electrical and cooling systems, and even the exhaust.

Statistics show that accidents increase from 24 to 53 per cent in winter, partly because of impaired visibility. Impaired visibility results not only from weather conditions, including frost, snow and sleet, but from the circumstances that there are more hours of darkness in winter than in summer.

"Night accidents account for two-thirds of all traffic deaths in winter time," he said. "In summer, night accidents account for less than half. Keep your windshield wiper and defroster in working order at all times, and never overdrive your light."

Farrell also warned motorists not to take chances by driving without tire chains when snow and ice prevails, just to avoid the bother of putting them on.

"The car with tire chains does not get stalled, and can stop in half the distance of the car without chains," he said, "and figures show that skids account for 17 per cent of all accidents in rural areas, and 12 per cent in urban areas."

Emphasizing that proper road maintenance also is an important factor in safe driving, he pointed out, however, that even best of snow removal crews cannot keep up with repeated storms, or keep all roads at all times clear of packed down snow.

The driver must realize this and drive accordingly.

He added these tips for individual drivers:

Adjust speed to weather conditions. Slow down before you reach a curve or intersection. Don't get too close to the car in front. Signal that you mean to turn or stop. See that your defroster and windshield wipers give you maximum visibility.

Suggestions Made For Making Over Clothing for Kids

Making over garments for smaller children is more than merely cutting them down to size reminds Miss Lucy Lane, extension clothing specialist at OSC. Colors, pattern, and weight of fabric all need to be considered in such cases.

Fabrics adults wear may be too heavy for a small child. If the material is not light enough in weight to be comfortable, use it for some other purpose, Miss Lane suggests. Avoid stripes, plaids, and prints that are too big for the child.

Grown-ups sometimes wear drab colors, but children like gaiety. Also there's a safety factor to consider — a child's bright clothes may give the first slow signal to a motorist, or, in rural sections, to a hunter. So, when the main part of an outfit must be dull, uninteresting fabric, try adding bright trim or accessories. Dress up a little girl's black or gray coat with a red collar or a plaid Ascot tie. Or complete the picture with a red cap or mittens. Add festive embroidery or pretty buttons to a dark dress.

When planning a make-over, says Miss Lane, consult the youngster who is going to wear it—and make sure it hits the spot. Think of the grown-ups who have none too fond memories of the make-overs they had to wear. Most of the time, too, it's just the little things that make clothes acceptable to children, it was pointed out.

Pheasant Hits Line; Cost High

When employes of Portland General Electric company's Hillsboro office totaled the expense caused by a pheasant that recently flew into power lines near Reedville, disrupting service in the area, they agreed that the result was not a particularly good example of electric cooking's economy.

The pheasant collided January 22 with two spans of a 24,000-volt transmission line, shorting it and roasting himself to a very "well done."

It was not stated whether the repair crew was able to salvage any edible portions of the bird, but if they did, it was an expensive meal. It took line crews two hours to restore electric service to the communities of Reedville, Aloha and Huber. Overtime wages alone cost $159.08. This plus damaged equipment and the inconvenience to customers placed an astronomical per pound value on this method of "electric cooking."

Rural Traffic Deaths Increase 48 Per Cent

Rural traffic deaths indicated a 48 per cent increase as a result of highway accidents in the month of December, Secretary of State Farrell said this week.

Of the 43 persons killed in traffic accidents in Oregon during the month, 29 or 67 per cent were killed in rural accidents. Nine fatalities resulted from accidents occurring in the city of Portland, one in Eugene, one in Salem, two in Albany and one in Hubbard. The remainder, or 29 fatalities occurred in the rural areas.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
