Inspection Slated For Pasteurization

Inspection of all pasteurization plants in Oregon to determine compliance with rules and regulations for the pasteurization of milk and milk products will be started immediately by the state department of agriculture's division of foods and dairies.

At the same time the department announced that examinations will be scheduled beginning in August for the licensing of pasteurizer operators. These tests will be given in several sections of the state, place and time to be announced.

The department warned that every applicant for a pasteurizer operator's license or permit will be expected to have a good knowledge of the law and regulations under which the license or permit is granted as well as a good technical knowledge of bacteria, flavor defects, pasteurizing and cooling, cleaning and sterilizing equipment and utensils used in pasteurizing standard plate count and the direct microscopic count.

In connection with enforcement of the rules and regulations, the officials say that pasteurizing plants should be particular to exercise greatest care on these three points:

1. Temperature control equipment. All vats must be equipped with both indicating and recording thermometers.
2. On high temperature short time pasteurization, the apparatus must be equipped with a flow dilution valve. This is a safety control which automatically diverts milk back through the pasteurizer if temperature is below that required for thorough pasteurization.
3. No milk or milk product may be labeled pasteurized if it does not meet all the requirements of the rules and regulations.

All pasteurization plants in the state have been supplied with copies of the rules and regulations and requirements for obtaining pasteurizer operator's license or permit. Further information may be obtained from the department headquarters at Salem.

Food Prospects In World Said Showing Gain

World crop prospects indicate somewhat larger food production in 1946 than in 1945-46, according to a summary by L. R. Brethaupt, O. S. C. extension economist, based on reports early in May from 28 countries to the USDA office of foreign agricultural relations. A significant increase in total crop acreage and better yields are expected generally.

Although world food production is expected to be considerably larger than last year, it is likely still to be considerably under present requirements. Although food production may not be fully restored in Europe for several years, it is not to be expected that the United States will be called upon to continue shipping foodstuffs overseas in any volume near the present volume. When the acute need for imports in the war-torn countries is over surpluses will appear where now there is scarcity.

Shipments of wheat from this country during the 1945-46 marketing year, supplemented with some corn, are expected to be only a little short of the high goal set last fall and the greatest for any country in all history. Although food production may not be fully restored in Europe for several years, it is not to be expected that the United States will be called upon to continue shipping foodstuffs overseas in any volume near the present volume. When the acute need for imports in the war-torn countries is over surpluses will appear where now there is scarcity.

Lt. Foelker Home On Terminal Leave

Suver Services Held on Tuesday

CORNELIUS—Bertha L. McClaughry Suver, wife of Joseph Suver, died June 8 at a Hillsboro hospital following a short illness. She was born in Seogogus valley, March 18, 1883, moving to Cornelius with her parents, Charles and Sarah McClaughry, who preceded her in death. She graduated from the local grade school and Forest Grove high school, and attended Pacific university, majoring in piano and voice. She graduated from normal school in Mountmouth. She taught school in the county a short while and then married Joseph W. Suver on June 23, 1928. She is survived by her husband and her grandmother, Mrs. Martha Ingebrigtsen.

Funeral services were held Tuesday in the Cornelius Methodist church. Pastor Fred Rav in charge. Lester Mosberry was organist and Mrs. Frank Doehner sang "Beautiful Garden of Prayer." Pallbearers were the Messrs. W. Lympus, A. J. Oliver, H. Olanie, R. Geizer, C. Schmeider and E. Phillips.

PARADE CAPITAL

(By Murray Wade)

General Joseph W. (Vinegar) Joe Stilwell, commander of the sixth army, western defense command, landed at McNary field Thursday and proceeded to the capital to see Governor Earl Sniel and confer with Brig. Gen. H. F. Olson of the adjutant general's office on the reactivation of the Oregon national guard.

The famed fighting leader of the Burma-India-China theater of war thinks the nation should train its young men "for at least a year." "If you are going to do it at all, you should do it right," said the general, commenting on "watered down" patterns of training.

"If you are going to train them, give them hard training. Don't be soft," he advised.

Accent on Veterans' Fathers
In dedicating Sunday, June 16, as Father's Day in Oregon Governor Earl Sniel's promulgation reads: "It is highly appropriate that the theme of Father's Day observance this year is 'Honor Our Veterans.' For 36 years, Father's Day has been set aside as an occasion to honor the men who are the providers and heads of families. This year, with so many fathers wearing the lapel button of honorable service in defense of their country, it is doubly fitting that the day be dedicated to them."

Governors attending the national convention of governors at Oklahoma City are unhappy over federal handling of reconversion and veterans housing, said Governor Earl Sniel on his return from the conv. held last week.

He said the governors favored more uniform highway laws as a means of reducing accidents, and urged a military training program that calls for national standard training, college military training, reserve officers' training, or a year in the regular army.

So-Long Solons
Three state legislators who hold positions on state boards and commissions, in answer to a suit filed against them for holding two state offices, told the Marion county circuit court this week that if the court finds they can't hold two jobs, then they should give up their legislative positions and keep their other jobs.

The three who have been sued are Senator Merle Chesman, Astoria, a state highway commissioner; Senator W. H. Strayer, Baker, member of the state board of geology and mineral industries; and Representative Earl Hill, Cushman, a state fish commissioner.

Vet's Administration To Send Worker Here

A representative from the Portland regional office of the United States Veterans' administration will be in Hillsboro each Friday for the benefit of local veterans, according to Tom Craig, contract representative.

He will be at the council chamber on the second floor of the city hall from 8 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. to handle such questions on matters as pensions, hospitalization and medical care for the vets.
