Proposed Legislation Would Hurt County

Huffman shows that the Portland plan anticipates about $1,850,000 more in the total state fund than there actually will be, and amounts under this plan largely for the districts above have been scaled down accordingly, the Register-Guard analysis indicates.

The measure approved by the people provides for distribution of $50 per pupil per year and the expressed aim of the act is to equalize educational opportunity so that poorer districts can provide better educational programs.

Analysis of the figures shows that the Portland plan would take about $1,331,000 of the basic fund from 60 districts which have relatively low ability to support schools and transfer this amount to 32 districts which have relatively high ability. These 32 districts have 69.2 per cent of the ability of the state to support schools, and only 46.8 per cent of the total days' membership, the figures reveal. If each of these districts were a separate mill levy on the basis of 100 per cent valuation, the county school funds and district levies combined produce the amount for each day's membership. The same levy in the 69 relatively poorer districts, which would benefit under House Bill 9, would produce only 31.3 cents per day's membership, according to the Register-Guard.

Legion to Entertain Boy Scouts at Show

Decision was made at the American Legion meeting here Tuesday night to entertain the members of the Legion-sponsored Boy Scout troop at a theater party in observance of Boy Scout week.

A committee will be named by Commander Neal Bush to investigate the possibility of reviving the amateur shows which were sponsored by the American Legion a number of years ago.

Dolph Stuart, county service officer, reported on wireless purchases by the post in behalf of veterans.

Vice-Commander Mervin Brink presided in the absence of Commander Bush.

International Harvester 40th Anniversary

International Harvester has just announced a new line of motor trucks. The initial showing of these new "KB" models was in Fort Wayne, Ind., a few days ago before a gathering of several hundred members of the press from all parts of the United States and officials and department heads of the company. Included in the exhibit were Harvester's recently introduced "Western" models.

At the same time, according to Tom Doyle of Hillsboro Sales company, local International Truck dealer, ceremonies depicting the company's 40 years of progress in the truck industry were conducted.

Contrast between the first International and the new 40th anniversary models is marked. I assure you that as antique-looking as the 1907 International Harvester Auto Wagon is, it was the grand wagon of its day, and served American business and farmers both profitably and well," Doyle said.

He also called attention to the fact that there are 21 basic models in the International truck line—13 "KB" models and six "W" or "Western" models. The gross vehicle weight ratings of these 21 models range from 4400 to 90,000 pounds.

Student Safety Council Slated

Organization of high school Student Safety Councils has been suggested by Secretary of State Robert S. Farrell Jr. as a means of supplementing classroom instruction in driver training.

"Drivers and pedestrians must learn that safety in today's traffic is to a great degree, a matter of acceptance of individual responsibility for the efficient, comfortable movement of vehicles and walkers," Farrell declared. "One of the best methods of teaching young people these responsibilities is to give them the responsibility for safety in their own environment."

The secretary of state said that his office now is distributing a series of high school safety manuals, designed to help student safety councils organize and conduct traffic accident prevention programs. These manuals give detailed instructions in such fields as accident reporting, analysis and maintenance of accident statistics.

Several Oregon high schools now are making plans to organize student safety councils and others interested are urged to contact the Traffic Safety Division, Secretary

"Only Child" Takes Great Share of Time

Mothers with small families have often wondered how pioneer women managed to care for their large broods. Now science has uncovered the fact that only children sometimes take a greater share of their mother's time than a family of brothers and sisters, reports Mrs. Erma H. Little, of the University of California.

A recent study in Vermont showed that the mother with a single child spent from four to 35 hours per week in caring for that child, the time required varying according to the age of the child. If there were several children, the time required in caring for all of them varied according to the age of the youngest. When the youngest was six or seven, the time was only three hours a week.
