Fair Time Is Here Again
A bigger and better Washington county fair will be opened next Wednesday evening with new features that should attract wide interest among county residents. The big barbecue, proceeds of which go for the improvement of Boy Scout Camp Ireland, plus the selection of the Harvest Queen and grand opening of the fair will give the annual event a great start.

Fair time is an interesting and enjoyable occasion that contributes to the upbuilding and development of the county. Through the awarding of honors for superior products to 4-H and Future Farmers of America and other groups and open classes, a stimulus is given that makes for better production and better citizenship.

Probably the outstanding thing in connection with Washington county fair is that it is built on the firm foundation of community participation with so many having a hand in it. Fair Manager Leon S. Davis estimates that 5,000 persons are doing something in connection with this annual event, a condition that is bound to make for a well-rounded show.

As this paper has often mentioned, the fair and all the effort and expense that go into it are justified if for no other reason than that of youth participation through 4-H clubs, Future Farmer of America chapters and others. More than 700 boys and girls are expected to participate in the fair this year and for this reason alone full participation and support of the people of the county should be given.

A special invitation is extended to the thousands of newcomers in Washington county to attend the fair and to become better acquainted with everything that the county has to offer. It also provides an opportunity to get acquainted with other residents. Better acquaintance and better understanding will make for greater community harmony and co-operation, elements important to future development and progress.

The Argus will again have a booth at the fair in its old location in the Grange building, and publishers and staff members extend an invitation to everyone to visit the booth. There will be chairs there for those wanting to rest a few minutes and a fine showing of pictures taken during the year will make the visit interesting. Plan to meet your friends at the Argus booth. A registration book will be provided so that newcomers may register and at the same time this may assist people in locating their friends and acquaintances.

Advice from Moscow

A third party in the 1948 United States elections is favored by Moscow radio, official mouthpiece of totalitarian Soviet Russia, where only one party is permitted and criticism of government is speedily punished. Russia contends that the two-party system in America is anti-democratic and plays into the hands of Wall street.

Moscow charged both the democratic and republican parties now sought to do basically the same thing—satisfy expansionist aspirations of American monopolies which "are striving for world domination."

And all this coming from Russia, which through reckless use of the veto power has blocked all efforts at worldwide co-operation, and where every official move is indicative that it favors chaos to recovery because communism thrives on chaos. And where they have no conception of the true meaning of democracy and never have.

A woman writes to a Portland paper in opposition to the sales tax, saying in part, "Does the sales tax as proposed in the state of Oregon actually 'exempt necessities of life?' What about work overalls? Of course, they are not a necessity for those who do not work." Based on such reasoning anyone who does not wear overalls does not work. Well, many millions of Americans have been under a misapprehension as to what they have been doing all these years if such be the case.

Comments of Other Editors

"We see peace as necessary to the survival of civilization; the survival and spread of freedom as necessary to peace; a revived prosperity for all nations as necessary to the survival and spread of freedom. The eagle flies forth, not with menace but with hope and good-will for all men of good-will."—New York Times.

The master of the Washington State Grange says his real estate taxes are "virtually" the same now as they were before the sales tax was enacted in that state. What he fails to reveal is how much the property taxes would have been had they not been limited to 40 mills, as they were when the sales tax was enacted.—Oregon City Banner-Courier.

Howdy Seaman blanketed cattle around the valley and women in their kitchen busy preparing canned goods. The atmosphere of anticipation and excitement will reign hand in hand with the Harvest Queen over the "Land of Better Living."

Thought you might like to get better acquainted with the new assistant county agent, WILBUR W. BETHAN. He hails from a farm in Albany, having recently graduated from Oregon State, majoring in agriculture. Testimony of his active years as one of the state's most outstanding 4-H boys, enables him to have a keen insight into the farmers and dairymen's problems.

One of the oldest log houses in Oregon is on the old JOHN GRAF place at Bethany. It was erected in 1876 when John came to Oregon from Switzerland. His son BEN is the father of Cadet ROBERT GRAF.

REMEMBERED...
"I've marked this place that they be known,
That silence need not watch alone,
With memories shined in votive stone,
I have remembered them."

With flowers, a symbol of sentiment, we send a message in words. The cemetery memorial is a noble symbol of sentiment, and should be properly inscribed to become an inspiration to the living, no less than a tribute to those who have gone before.

Memorials we erect are from quarries producing stone of recognized monumental quality.
