

State Vet Loan Funds Increased By Bond Issue

Authorization to issue a $1 million block of bonds to finance the Oregon state veterans' home and farm loan on which ex-servicemen of World War II are now borrowing at the rate of nearly $200,000 a month, has been granted State Veterans Affairs Director William F. Garretson. It was announced this week by Ralph Stuart, county veterans' service officer.

This authority, given by the seven-man advisory committee to the department at its regular quarterly meeting, represents a change in policy, according to retiring Chairman John Walker Jones of Milwaukie. Since the organization of the department, bonds have been sold in blocks of $1,000,000 at a time, but increasing demand by Oregon's veterans for the popular four per cent, $6,000 loan has made it necessary to increase the amount of funds available, Jones explained.

After preparation and sale of the newly authorized issue, expected in the near future, a total of $10,000,000 in bonds will have been sold since the start of department operations in the fall of 1945. More than $3,200,000 has been loaned to veterans in the first six months of 1948 to purchase homes and farms.

In state educational benefits to World War II veterans who were Oregon residents for one year prior to service, 2129 grants have been made amounting to $321,702. Garretson reported to the advisory committee. This benefit pays $25 a month to veterans for each month spent in active service, while attending academic or vocational schools.

In the annual election of advisory committee officers, William F. Toomey of Portland was named chairman to succeed Jones. Ray Dorris, Portland, succeeds Toomey as vice-chairman, and Roland Davis, Portland, replaces Carl F. Freilinger of Milwaukie as secretary.

Health for All

Infantile Paralysis
A mother worries about her child getting sick as confined to no particular season. For instance, once winter is over and there is less chance of such things as colds and influenza, there are possibilities of diseases that seem to come with warmer weather. One of her greatest "weather-time" fears is polio, or infantile paralysis.

"Polio" strikes most frequently during the summer months, usually reaching its peak in late summer or early fall. The disease is caused by a virus so small that it cannot be seen under the ordinary microscope. It attacks nerve cells that control the muscles, most commonly the muscles of the arms and legs. These muscles may become weakened and in the more serious cases, complete paralysis of the limb may result.

Most people think polio always brings about permanent crippling, but this is not necessarily the case. More than half of those who get the disease never suffer weakened muscles or paralysis and, among those whose muscles are paralyzed, more than half recover without serious crippling.

Despite its popular name, "infantile paralysis," the disease strikes people of all ages, although most cases reported are in children. Until now, very little about preventing polio, but if the disease is occurring in your community there are some precautions that will help lessen the chance of contracting it. Fatigue makes people more susceptible to the paralyzed form of polio, so avoid excessive work, hard or getting overtired. Sudden chill weakens a person's resistance to the disease, and we take chances when we stay too long in cold water or plunge into icy water after being in the hot sun. Swimming in dirty or polluted water, or allowing children to wade in it, is also dangerous.

During a polio outbreak, keep children out of crowds, away from polio patients and from all other sick children, no matter how slight their illnesses might seem, since symptoms in an unparalyzed case or early symptoms in a paralyzed case may merely be considered a "cold" or "flu." Doctors advise postponing toilet and adenoid operations during such times.

Drilling wells on their farms. Youth Enjoy Picnic
The young people of the Dixie Mountain Baptist church went to Pier park for a picnic last Saturday. Twenty-nine attended.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Cook, who have been living on the Roy Hennessy farm, moved to Gable, where they bought a farm. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Murray have moved into the Hennessy house.

Howard Nelson took his berry pickers on a picnic to Rippling Waters last Saturday.

Cuts Foot on Glass
Gordon Houscatt received a bad cut on his foot last Saturday when he stepped on a piece of glass.

A son, Richard, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Angie Potratz July 13 in a Portland hospital.

A daughter was born last Friday to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kay. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kay.

General habits of cleanliness are important, too. Protect all foods from flies. Garbage in the home and in the street should be kept covered and disposed of promptly. Remember to wash your hands before eating to avoid carrying germs into the mouth.

While we have no specific preventive for polio, we have learned much about treating it. Prompt medical care often wards off possible crippling effects, so the important thing for a victim of polio is to get him under the care of a good doctor at once. Early symptoms of polio include headache, listlessness, fever, upset stomach or a cold. When a child shows any of these signs, call the doctor at once so that he can make the wisest decisions for the sick child's care and treatment as early as possible.

For more information on infantile paralysis, consult your family doctor, or get in touch with your local chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis or write the national office of the Foundation, 120 Broadway, New York 5, N. Y.
