

Cedar Mill Park Shopping Center Progress Told

The first two shops of 38 planned have been opened formally in Fred McLain's Village Shops, now under construction at Cedar Mill Park.

Morgan's Village store, featuring variety goods, hardware and household supplies, and Anderson's Village Cleaners, with complete cleaning and pressing service, are now open for business in the first unit of the rustic designed center which will ultimately house 38 shops with 90 rooms for living quarters above.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Morgan, who formerly operated a food store in Klamath Falls, are the owners of Morgan's Village store while Anderson's Village Cleaners is being operated by J. W. Anderson.

The high shopping center is expected to be a show place of the area when it is completed. Designed to be built in a "U" shape, all construction will be in rustic style, reminiscent of building a century ago. The center of the "U" will be paved to provide a large space for parking and a covered sidewalk will encircle the inside of the "U".

McLain plans construction of an old mill with a water wheel along the Sunset highway, which will serve as a museum and recreation center for shoppers.

McLain said that 66 homes of the planned 300 in the adjacent Cedar Mill Park development have been finished.

Construction of a 14-unit bungalow court will be undertaken within the next year on land adjacent to the shopping center, McLain announced.

Police Changes Told by Chief

Two changes in the Hillsboro Police department were announced Tuesday by Police Chief Melvin DeRock. Dan Sizer, Hillsboro, was added to the force Friday as a night patrolman and Kenneth Dyrud was appointed desk sergeant. Sgt. Dyrud has been handling the office for the past month.

Personnel of the force now includes six men, DeRock said. This includes the chief, one sergeant and four patrolmen. The other members of the force include Officers Earl Humphrey, John Zabinski and Vern Simmons.

The 1939 bicycle licenses are now available at the police department, Sgt. Dyrud announced. City ordinance requires that all bicycles be licensed. The cost is 25 cents, the sergeant said.

Last Rites Held For Genwood Man

Funeral services were held in Forest Grove Monday for Julius William Moreland, 74, of Glenwood, who died December 15. Interment was in Forest View cemetery. Mr. Moreland was born August 17, 1874, at Needy.

Surviving are a son, Kenneth W. of Glenwood and a sister, Lela Kerns, of Portland.

to the shopping center, McLain announced.

Compromise Shaping Up On Civil Rights Legislation

Marshall to Be Switched From State to Defense?

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—A compromise is shaping up on civil rights legislation—a compromise that will have a slight connection with President Truman, and actually take shape in the new State Congress.

One of the first moves was a letter from Senator Burnet R. Maybank (D), South Carolina, to the Democratic high command that he will work all-out for the president's economic program when Congress convenes.

Maybank is a key man in that picture, inasmuch as he probably will become chairman of the Senate banking committee, which will write such legislation in place of the ailing and elderly Senator Robert Wagner (D), New York.

Maybank's statement is construed to mean that southern Senate Democrats may be willing to support the Truman economic program in exchange for a "deal" on civil rights. This deal might mean acceptance of anti-poll tax and anti-lynch legislation in exchange for an understanding that FEPC and anti-segregation legislation will not be pressed.

President Truman will not budge from his program, but when the matter is in the hands of his leaders in the House and Senate, the deal might be engineered.

NEW TWIST ON CABINET SHIFTS—Out of the swirl of speculation on possible changes in the Truman cabinet comes a report that the president would like to move State Secretary George C. Marshall into the national defense post and get a new state secretary.

These sources represent the president's line of thinking as follows: Marshall, with his lifetime of military experience, bolstered by two years as secretary of state, would make the most effective defense secretary obtainable.

The shift would remove Marshall from the foreign policy post where he has been subjected to criticism in connection with his handling of several key issues, including aid to China and the Palestine situation. Forrestal has expressed his unwillingness to stay on for four more years as defense secretary.

STATES TO SUPERVISE D.P.'S—The displaced persons commission is toying with the idea of asking states to set up groups to take a hand in the placement and supervision of newcomers from Europe under the DP act.

Its plan is in a formative stage and will be kept under wraps until Capitol Hill legislators most interested in the program are sounded out.

It was learned that some commission officials would like to enlist some state and local responsibility to prevent the "exploitation" of D.P.'s who come into the areas and take jobs and to co-ordinate the national and local levels.

In general, the idea apparently would fit into the pattern favored by such Capitol Hill leaders who like to leave as much responsibility and authority as possible with state and local governments.

WELFARE FUND REGULATION—Some government labor officials have been talking about a provision in the new labor law to regulate union welfare funds but there is no sign yet that the administration will adopt the idea.

One proposal would create a new division in the labor department to supervise and control union pension programs much as insurance companies are now regulated.

The division's chief purpose would be to audit the books at regular intervals and check up to see that the union welfare funds are being expended properly. Unions could be expected to kick up a fuss with John L. Lewis in the forefront of the opposition.

The Taft-Hartley Law provides for joint employer-union administration of industry-financed welfare funds and the miners' fund is so supervised. However, Lewis would fight the creation of any new government regulatory bureau.

Masons Install Officers at Meet

Royal Arch Masons held election and installation of new officers at a meeting last Thursday at the Masonic temple. William Gabenmiller, former king, was installed as high priest. Retiring high priest was C. H. Winjum. Installing officer was Donald Megargel and La Verne Faynter acted as marshal.

Other officers installed were C. Henry Nelson, king; Ray Ostlund, scribe; V. W. Gardner, treasurer; William Hargrave, secretary; Howard Olanie, captain of the host; Willis Pyle, principal supporter; Lester Johanson, royal arch captain; Glen Powers, master of the third veil; Paul Matteson, master of the second veil; Perry Dumas, master of the first veil; C. H. Winjum, sentinal; Steen Whitehead, chaplain; and Nelson, Ostlund and Robert Pence, auditing committee.

Luncheon was served after the meeting.
