Tualatin Valley Air News

Hillsboro's two air show stars, Swede Ralston and Dick Martin, are keeping in trim for next summer's shows by frequently "wringing out" their stunt ships. Dick flies his Curtiss P-40 and Swede his Cub and AT-6. Dick is also grooming another ship, his XS-1, an all-wood, geodetic, basket-weave design low-wing job, to be used in a stunting act this coming air show season.

At the Inman Flying Service hangar we learned that Johnny Inman had flown to Dallas, Texas, for the Cotton Bowl game, with Mr. and Mrs. Earl McCracken as passengers.

Harry Waggoner of Portland who bases his Beech Bonanza here, is likewise football-minded. He and his personal pilot, Andy Piller, took off for Pasadena, Cal., to take in the Rose Bowl.

Instructor Hap Ostlund, operator of Ostlund Airways, reports that Gene Hamby, Hillsboroite attending the U. of O., received his private pilot's certificate after a flight test with Flight Examiner Ed Ball last Wednesday.

Another new private pilot is Roy "Putt" Putnam, A & E mechanic for Wika Air Service, who took his written and flight test with Examiner Ball last Tuesday and passed with "flying" colors.

"Cotton," the airport mascot, must not like airplanes. He took a bite of one the other day and a wing went flying off here and the tail group there. However, it was only a little model airplane thrown by Your Reporter's young son, Doug Whitmaker.

Ed Ball and Swede Ralston invited their employees and Ball-Ralston associates to the Ball home for a turkey dinner New Year's Day.

Two former Ball-Ralston instructors, ex-students of Ed Ball and now of Tulare, Cal., are currently visiting in Hillsboro. They are Lester Lackey, who is in charge of the Crop Dusting Division with Rankin Aviation Industries and James A. Meek, also connected with the dusting division, who is a grandson of Joseph Meek, early settler in Oregon.

Joyce Hoberg, instructor-ette for Ball-Ralston, soloed Flight Student Leland Heilman of Beaverton last Monday.

Herb Henderson of Eugene landed his Ryan ST (PT-22) here Thursday and "refueled" himself at Wika Inn.

It'll be a sad day if we ever see Ostlund Airways Commercial Student Leonard Cabe without his perpetual smile. "Cabe," as we call him, is president of Tualatin Valley Products Co. in Hillsboro.

Two new Ball-Ralston commercial students are Eugene Cecil of Gaston, who transferred here from Denver, Colo., and Irv Mohr, Hillsboro skating rink proprietor. Irv holds a private pilot's certificate.
