

Soil Conservation Expert Addresses Chamber, Guests

The problem of soil conservation and feeding of the world's people was discussed at the Tuesday meeting of the Hillsboro Chamber of Commerce at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Vanderburg.

The speaker, Dr. W. H. Vanderburg, of the Federal Soil Conservation Service, spoke to a group of about 200 people, including members of the chamber and guests.

The speaker said that the soil conservation service is a new organization, but it is one of the most important in the world. It is the only one that is concerned with the soil, and it is the only one that is concerned with the future of the world.
