Rasmussen Gets Financial Aid From UO Group

Marvin Rasmussen, former University of Oregon basketball player who was injured in a Sunset highway accident in Washington county March 26, perked up a little bit in Veterans hospital in Portland Friday night.

Two of his ex-Duck teammates, Roger Wiley and Ken Seeborg, presented him with a $1200 check which was the product of a drive by the Order of the O, lettermen's organization on the Eugene campus.

Rasmussen has been encased in a cast which covers all but his head and shoulders. He was transferred to Portland April 13 from Jones hospital here, where he had been a patient since the accident.

Since the accident and before her son was transferred to Portland, Mrs. Rasmussen stayed in Hillsboro with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Amacher in order to be near her son.

The purpose of the drive, for which the lettermen have set a $2000 goal, is to help Rasmussen pay his hospital bill and aid him in starting back to school.

Seeborg is a brother of Arnold, former Argus news editor.
