Car Trunk Makes Good Darkroom; Has Bad Feature

Ernie Morley, Argus handyman reporter and photographer, says the trunk of an automobile makes a dandy impromptu darkroom. He made that discovery at the Sun-Set chamber of commerce Bar-B-Q Sunday when in desperate need for a place to make a quick change on film.

Ernie says next time he tries to make better arrangements for an exit, however, he learned the trunk of a fellow's automobile and extracted the promise that the gentleman would "free" him in 10 minutes. That was the dilemma. The happy-go-lucky fellow just disappeared leaving Morley beating his fists against the trunk in a vain attempt to attract somebody's attention.

The imprisoned newspaperman finally found a loose wrench in his dark cell and forced his way to daylight and freedom. He'll think twice before doing it again. He thinks all automobile trunks should have inside latches.

Pacific to Begin Night Study Plan

Special evening classes to serve teachers, students, or persons who wish classes for after-hours instruction will be held at Pacific University this fall, according to Vice President Edwin Ingles. He states that the classes will begin in conjunction with regular fall session classes.

Ingles said the university would fulfill requirements toward a masters, bachelors or fifth year teacher's certificate. Each class will meet once a week from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. instead of once an evening. Regular university instructors will teach the courses.

The evening classes will include courses in secondary and elementary education, English, sociology, literature, political science, Spanish, and instruction, where the need is requested.

Registration for the evening courses has been set for September 19, the same day as the regular Pacific university registration. Persons also may register anytime during the first week of school. Further information on the evening classes may be obtained by contacting Chairman Gene Darland of the graduate school or vice-president Edwin Ingles.
