

Speaker Says Smart Planning Needed in Region

The northwest is going to become greatly industrialized and the citizens of this region must recognize this with smart planning, Dr. D. D. Darland, dean of students at Pacific university, told Hillsboro Lions at their last Wednesday noon luncheon meeting at the Methodist church.

Planning and development must recognize regional needs and not stop at state boundaries, Dr. Darland stated, pointing out, however, that regionalism need not knock out state lines. Regionalism is socially accepted now and used in many ways.

The big question is not whether government should be in business, it is, Dr. Darland pointed out, the question as to which business is government in and is it occupied in fighting wealth or in creating it? If the many people in government are working toward creating wealth, it is a good sign, the speaker stated.

Dr. Darland said everyone concerned with national welfare should study all they can about the Hoover commission's report. He said its recommendations are good and are being followed in part.

Manager Plans County Clinic

W. W. Winans, Hillsboro chamber of commerce manager, proposed a plan to unify county projects and promotional efforts between Washington county communities at a recent meeting of the Retail Trade bureau. He suggested that the plan be called "county clinic" with a representative from each county community meeting every three months at the local chamber of commerce rooms.

Winans said that the community plan would discuss activities planned for the respective communities. He explained that the group could coordinate activities so that a program in one area might not conflict with some function in another community. The chamber manager indicated that such a central group might also help erase traditional differences that have existed sometimes in the past.

Winans said that if the Retail Trade bureau only realized good relationships with neighboring cities and farm people, the project would be well worth the time and endeavor.

Reid Cottrell presided in the absence of President Mervin Brink.

Nut Drier Ready For Year's Crop

The 38-foot drier drying shed for walnuts and filberts on Pumpkin Ridge road will be remodeled and enlarged next summer so that 150 tons can be handled each season, according to A. W. Lightbody, owner.

Improvements on the property are being postponed until after the current crops of walnuts and filberts are harvested by the farmers, said Lightbody. The drier shed is located near North Plains, about three and a half miles out on Pumpkin Ridge road, and approximately 500 feet from White's mail box. His equipment will take care of about eight tons at one drying.
