ODD FELLOWSHIP AS IT IS.

It seems to be the general opinion of the uninitiated, or the world at large, that Odd Fellowship is in reality a mutual insurance society, from whose fund any member may receive, under certain considerations, in proportion to the amount of his semi-annual assessments; and whose officers, from the highest to the lowest, fill their places of trust without compensation, merely for the honor and opportunities of advancing the cause.
So far as concerns the higher or Grand Lodge officers, their salaries in most cases are quite liberal.

The great fabric of Odd Fellowship, which is rapidly becoming so gigantic in its proportions, whose stately temples and princely halls are to be seen in almost every village of any consequence in this broad land, from Atlantic's storm-beaten coast to the gentle slopes of the grand Pacific, and whose membership, numbering hundreds of thousands and composed of almost all classes of men, now stands a monument of such imposing grandeur, that even its great founder in his wildest dreams never could have anticipated, nor could he now recognize in the bearded, blustering manhood of Odd Fellowship, the modest youth with whom he parted years ago, so great has been the change.
The open-hearted, sympathetic and benevolent earnestness of youth is succeeded by the pride and selfishness of maturer years.

It is an old saying that money makes the man, and it is a saying that holds good in almost every organization known to man, and especially will it hold good in Odd Fellowship. Money is the sure foundation of its superstructure, and the laws requiring its payment are as inexorable as fate. That brother whose only sin is poverty, and whose inability to pay the required sum annually assessed against him, is cut off from the privileges of his lodge and the companionship of his fellows, although he may, in more prosperous days have contributed hundreds of dollars to the building up of the order and the acquisition of property to his lodge.

Benevolence and Charity, how sadly and unmercifully are you belied; how often are your benefactions directed from the high and noble mission of relieving the unfortunate and distressed, and poured into coffers already full to overflowing.
Many lodges, while very strict in requiring the payment of dues, even from a brother in reduced circumstances, will not hesitate to give some grand present to a rich officer who by his wealth has attained to a high position in the order.
Thus it is the very object of the association is lost sight of. To relieve the distressed, visit the sick, bury the dead, and educate the orphan, was the grand mission of Odd Fellowship instituted.

Lodges in their character take form from the characters of the men who rule them. Many lodges are ruled by whole-souled men whose sympathies when aroused, by being brought face to face with the needy and destitute, do not hesitate to relieve, with alacrity, the wants of their brother, whilst other lodges are ruled by entirely different characters.
Men whose sole aim seems to be the financial success of the lodge and their own aggrandizement; who make it a rule to collect to the utmost farthing, and never to vote benefits to a sick brother if the brother can possibly get along without. Many good men are driven from the order by the grasping and illiberal disposition of their respective lodges, who reserve to themselves the right to give or withhold that which rightfully belongs to a sick or distressed brother, ignoring all claims he may chance to present by reason of the fraternal ties which bind him to the order.

The character of the order for its principles of benevolence is such that very many, through pride, never present their claims for benefits in person, trusting wholly to the action of their lodge and the justice of their claims upon it. And the consequence is that the money which ought to have been paid out in its proper place, is retained in the lodge fund, thereby working a grievous injustice to very many excellent men, who have contributed hundreds of dollars to that fund, but in sickness or adversity have never received to the amount of one dime as an acknowledgment even of their membership in the order, to say nothing of those rights for which they have paid so dearly.

Every Odd Fellow should remember the solemn admonition contained in the teachings of true Odd Fellowship, and that Charity, which is said to cover a multitude of sins, should begin at home, in your own lodges. You need no far-fetched objects on whom to bestow your benefactions. Search your own circles, and you will no doubt find ample opportunity for benefiting each other and thereby forwarding the great work of reformation in the practical workings of the principles of Odd Fellowship.
Albany, Feb. 8th, 1869.

"William, these know I never call anybody names; but, William, if the Mayor of the city were to come to me and say, "Joshua, I want thee to find me the biggest liar in all Philadelphia." I would come to thee and put my hand on thy shoulder, and say to thee, "William, the Mayor wants to see thee." Charleston complains bitterly of the cold weather.

AGRICULTURAL.

FARM PROVERBS.

Use diligence, industry, integrity and proper improvement of time, to make farming pay.

Do not keep more live stock on your farm than you can keep well.

House all things as much as possible animals, utensils and crops.

Sell when you can get a fair price, and do not store for rats and speculators.

The more comfortable you can keep your animals, the more they will thrive.

A good cow is a valuable machine; the more food she properly digests, the greater the profit.

A few roots daily to all the stock are as welcome as apples to boys and girls.

Iron shoes or sleds last a lifetime.
They are really cheaper in the end than wooden ones.

Replace all the wooden bars where you often pass by strong gates, and then wonder that you didn't do so before.

Although in draining land thoroughly your purse may be drained, yet the full crops that follow will soon fill it again.

Always give the soil the first meal. If it is well fed with manure, it will feed all else—plants, animals and men.

A borrowed tool, if broken, should be replaced by a new one. A nice sense of honor, in such matters, is much to be commended.

FOR THE TEETH.

Dissolve two ounces of borax in three pints of boiling water, and before it is cold add one teaspoonful of spirits of camphor, and bottle for use. A teaspoonful of this mixture, mixed with an equal quantity of tepid water, and applied daily with a soft brush, preserves and beautifies the teeth, extirpates all tartarous adhesion, arrests decay, induces a healthy action of the gums, and makes them look pearly white.

BEEF BALLS.

Mince finely a piece of tender beef, fat and lean; mince an onion with some boiled parsley; add grated bread crumbs and season with pepper, salt, grated nutmeg, and lemon peel; mix all together and moisten it with an egg, beaten; roll it into balls; flour and fry them in boiling fresh dripping. Serve them with fried bread crumbs or with a thickened brown gravy.

JOHNY CAKE.

Three cups of Indian meal, one cup of flour, one-third of a cup of molasses, a little salt. Mix the whole with buttermilk or sour milk, with a teaspoonful of soda dissolved in it. The batter should be rather stiff. Bake in a quick oven.

HARD SAUCE.

Two table-spoonfuls of butter; ten of sugar. Work this till white, then add wine and spice to taste.

VALUE OF READING.—The following

should receive the careful attention of every parent, as well as every young man in the country:

A child beginning to read, becomes delighted with newspapers, because he reads of names and things which are very familiar, and he will make progress accordingly. A newspaper, in one year, is worth a quarter's schooling to a child, and every father must consider that substantial information is connected with this advancement. The mother of a family, being one of its heads, and having a more immediate charge of children, should herself be interested. A mind, occupied becomes fortified against the ills of life, and is braced for any emergency. Children amused by reading or study are, of course, considerate and more easily governed. How many thoughtless young men have spent their earnings in tavern or grog-shop, who ought to have been reading? How many parents, who never spent twenty dollars for their families, would gladly have given thousands of dollars to reclaim a son or daughter, who had igno-rantly and thoughtlessly fallen into temptation.

A LADY THIEF SMOTHERED WITH AT- TENTION.—A certain lady in this village whom we shall call Mrs. Jones, because that is not her name, has some goods stored in the cellar of one of our stores.

A few days since she visited the cellar with the evident intention of obtaining some articles, and while there one of the clerks had occasion to visit it also, for the purpose of getting a few pounds of butter for a customer. He noticed that the lady in question stood close to a quantity of eggs, and that her crinoline had assumed undue proportions. He apparently paid no attention to her, however, but hastened back to the store and informed one of his fellow clerks of what he had accidentally discovered. A consultation was immediately held, when one of the clerks resolved to ascertain the correctness of their suppositions, viz: that Mrs. Jones had a number of eggs concealed in her dress. In order to do this, the clerk seized an axe handle and commenced flourishing it near the entrance to the cellar. As soon as Mrs.
Jones made her appearance in the store, the clerk addressed her thus: "Oh, Mrs. Jones, there is a spider on your
