AGRICULTURAL.

TRANSPLANTING FLOWERS.

Many of our readers who have plants in the open ground such as geraniums, fuchsias, lobelias, roses, etc., may be anxious to preserve them and want to know how to do it.

We will suppose that our geraniums have been growing thriftily all summer they will now (if Jack Frost has not hurt them) be very large plants, with masses of succulent green shoots and large foliage, and you wish to practice the best plan to get some flowers from them during the dark months, at the expense of the plant's health.

Have in readiness some good sandy soil (with as few worms in it as possible) in some six-inch pots, no larger; place in the bottom of each an inch or so of broken rocks or cinders for drainage, and then fit your plants, with all the roots you can get shake off the soil, prune away some of the strongest and greenest branches, and cleanly cut the points of the roots where broken or bruised.

Do not be alarmed that the pots are too small, but tenderly work the plant around and around with a determination to make it fit, work in the soil gradually, giving a smart shake every now and then to "settle," and leave space enough between the collar of the plant and the top of the pot to allow for good watering.

Your next care should be to ripen what green wood you have left on your plants, and to do this expose them to all the sun and air that you can without frost or frosty wind keeping them rather dry at the root, and checking too rapid evaporation, when they seem to flag badly, by partial shading or sprinkling the foliage with lukewarm water.

Lobelias and new rembergias will have formed "tufts" of growth; take these tightly in one hand, and with the other slice off two-thirds; under this you will see a number of healthy shoots will form your choice for winter flowers—if you attempt to save all, you will lose all. These will not bear so much sun, and will need more water than geraniums, and should be shaded for some days.

ANIMALS THAT CHEW THE CUD.

Ruminating animals gather their food rapidly, give it a few cuts with the teeth, and swallow it. It goes to an interior receptacle, where it is moistened; this is very essential if it be dry hay. When the animal has filled himself, he masticates the food thus stowed away in his stomach, raising it end by end. When a portion is completely masticated, it passes to another receptacle, and the progress of digestion goes on. Thus an ox, if left to himself, will raise and masticate all the food thus stowed away in his stomach. If he be pushed and worked hard, and does not have much time to masticate, he falls off in flesh his health is poor, his digestion incomplete. The horse, on the contrary, however much in a hurry he may be, must masticate each mouthful before he swallows it. A hungry ox let into a meadow will fill himself in twenty minutes, while a horse would want at least an hour and twenty minutes to take the same amount of grass. The ox, deer, sheep, goat, chamois, and rabbit, being the natural prey of ferocious beasts are endowed with the extra stomach in which hastily to stow away the food without mastication. This may be regarded as a wise provision of nature, enabling them to sally forth where the food is plenty and in a short time fill themselves and retire to a place of safety, to ruminant their feed at their leisure.

A New-York city paper, having hired an agricultural writer says that a farmer never should buy super-phosphate till his chemist tests it—as though a farmer keeps a chemist the same as a dog.

VELOCIPEDICAL.—Says the Oregonian:

A gentleman of this city recently addressed a letter to Messrs. Palmer, Knox & Co., velocipede manufacturers of San Francisco, to ascertain the cost of the vehicles. He last evening received a reply containing some information which will doubtless be interesting to not less than fifteen thousand people of this State who have velocipede on the brain. The manufacturers say they make velocipedes with thirty-two inch driving wheel, for $60; of thirty-four and thirty-six inch driving wheel, for $65; of thirty-eight inch wheel for $70. The thirty-four and thirty-six inch wheels are most used, being as we infer, most nearly suited to the average length of legs. They weigh, complete, about forty-five pounds. They say they have on hand now nearly a hundred advance orders for velocipedes and that orders are crowding in rapidly. The Pacific world seems to be agog on the velocipede question.

WOMEN'S RIGHTS.—The women's rights paper at Chicago goes after the monster man in good style, giving the following warning and advice to women. It says:

"The contest between the masculine and feminine power is going to be terrible and desperate. Man has resolved to see the world destroyed before he will yield one inch of real power to women. Women will be drawn into the vortex, unless they get their eyes opened. Live on fruits and vegetables, and avoid meat and stimulants, and constantly look to the Lord for help. This is earth's greatest time of trouble."

A LUCKY FELLOW.—A gentleman informs us, says the Herald, that H. C. Coulson, formerly county clerk of this county, went to White Pine this winter, and shortly after returned to San Francisco, having made $12,000 while there. If this is true, Harry is certainly in "big luck."

VARIOUS ITEMS.

A need'woman's exclamation—Ahen! A Paris boatman objected to being placed in the lunatic asylum on the ground that he was a Seine (sane) mar.

Why are chickens' necks like door bells? Because they are often rung for company.

To what sect or fraternity do you think I belong? asked a contemptible little fop of a lady. "To the in-sec fraternity," was the reply.

A man in Indiana was choked to death by a piece of beef on Thanksgiving day, and his neighbors say that it was a judgment on him for not eating turkey.

A gentleman, giving a lecture to some boys was explaining how no one could live without air. He then said—"You have all heard of a man drowning—how does that happen?" The ready answer was, "Cause he can't swim."

"Wife, I thought you said you were going to have a goose for dinner?" "So I did, and I have kept my word." "Where is it?" "Why, my dear, ain't you here for dinner?" Smith couldn't see the point of that joke.

"I'll neither tell my age for census or the sovereign," said the cook, most resolutely, to her master, who was preparing for the enumerator. "Very well, I'll put down sixty-five," was the cool reply. "Upon my honor, sir, I was only fifty-eight last birthday," screamed the cook.

Mrs. Jones has long been wanting to visit Greenwood Cemetery, and in early summer she says to her husband, "You have never yet taken me to Greenwood." "No dear," he replied; "that's a pleasure I have yet had only in anticipation."

Uncle—"I dare say when I take you home again, Charlie, your mamma will have a nice present for you. What would you like best, my boy—a little brother or a little sister?" Charlie (after some consideration)—"Well if it makes no difference to ma, I'd rather have a little pony."

A New Orleans journal relates the following incident, which occurred at a recent trial in the Recorder's Court, of a case of assault:

"And you struck the man?" inquired the magistrate. "Bedad I did." "Then you did wrong." "You don't say so?" "But I do."

"If a man should call your honor a coward, wouldn't you strike him?" "No; it would be wrong." "Bedad, I believe it would!" replied the culprit, as a universal laugh evinced the appreciation of the crowd.

NEWS PARAGRAPHS.

The consumption of flour in Philadelphia exceeds eight hundred thousand barrels per annum. New Orleans forbids the erection of wooden buildings within the city limits. Catholic Bishop Grace threatens to disgorge those of his flock who consult Planchette. All the Cretan insurgents have submitted, and the uprising is completely at an end. Sixteen inches of rain have fallen in San Francisco this season. The value of last year's crops in Massachusetts is estimated at $40,000,000. The cost of the stalls to be occupied by the prelates at the ensuing Ecumenical Council in Rome amounts to $50,000. The Pope has given a divinity cap to Rev. Dr. Storrs, Vicar-General of the New York Diocese. The following novel intimations appear at the end of a recent invitation to a wedding—"No cards! No wine! No kissing the bride!" The Government has fully recognized as United States, Senora Islands, in the Caribbean Sea. Negotiations for their purchase have been concluded by citizens of New York. The snow-sheds of the Central Railroad are represented as very efficient. Avalanches of snow shoot over them from the hillsides, while they stand firm. People who are interested in the Holy Land will be glad to know that a macadamized road has been constructed from Jaffa to Jerusalem, and the latter city enjoys a steam mill. Yankees are responsible for both. News from Japan, via Shanghai, says the Mikado has received the Ministers of foreign powers at Yedo with great ceremony. He showed an earnest desire to maintain peaceful relations. The Independent says: Some thirty years ago R. B. Johnson, of this city, brought a velocipede from England to the United States, kept it at his home in the West until he started for California, and brought it along with him to Stockton, some eight years ago, and has it on his premises at the present time.
