Audubon relates that he once saw toad undress himself. He commenced by pressing his elbows hard against his sides and rubbing downwards. After a few smart rubs his hide begins to burst open along his back. He kept on rubbing until he worked all his skin into folds on his sides and hips; and then grasping one hind leg with his hands, he hauled off one leg of his pants the same as anybody would; then stripped off the other hind leg in the same way. then took his cast-off skin forward between his fore legs into his mouth and swallowed it: then, by raising and lowering his head up and down, he stripped off his skin underneath, until it came to his fore legs; then, grasping one of those with the opposite hand, by a single motion of the head, and while swallowing, he drew it from the neck and swallowed the whole.

AGRICULTURAL.

TURNING MILK INTO BUTTER. Has any of our readers learned of the wonderful process by which the entire milk placed in the churn is converted into butter? The inventor has patented the process, and is now offering to sell rights for States and counties. Of course we don't pretend to know of what the patent process consists, but a correspondent of the A. I. F. Club says he has known how to produce the same result for many years. He gives the following as the process:

Three pints of milk fresh from the cow, or any milk, if fresh; put it in a stone churn-it is best to use the oldfashioned dasher-add three pounds of butter sliced thin, and three yellows of eggs, set the churn in a pail of hot water till you get the mess lukewarm or at blood heat, and about two minutes will turn the whole thing into butter, leaving no milk. It looks more like magic than anything I ever saw. It must be thoroughly chnrned after it has come to butter, or it will incline to go back to milk. I have no thermometer, and do not know what degree of heat is best. I wrote a letter for publication several years ago about this, but did not send it because I was afraid it would be a detriment to butter dealers, and consumers, as they might get inferior butter on their hands. If properly made, I believe it a good

If our lady readers will give the mode above described a trial and send us the result, we'll be obliged to them.

POULTRY.

A pullet hatched early in the Spring begins to lay at the approach of Winter, and pullets hatched late in the Summer begin to lay in the ensuing Spring, and it is by saving a certain proportion of pullets from the early and late broods, that you make sure of Winter eggs, a few early hatched chickens for catching the highest markets and a numerous flock of chickens in the warmer months, when rearing is less precarious. The hen continues in her prime for two, and at most, three years; therefore save every year pullets equal to a third of your brood stock, sell off at a trifling price until the new one is finished. the same number of aged hens, or offerfour years, for the sake of her stock. Many farmers grumble about their poultry from not paying attention to such a simple matter as their not looking over their broodstock once a year, drafting all the dames (known by the developed scales on their legs,) and reserving from the market basket the most promising pullets raised during the season.

HORSE RADISH.

This is a very valuable plant; and yet its cultivation has been very much neglected. A few plants may be found about some of our old homesteads, receiving no notice except when some of it is wanted for the table. It will grow in any soil, but prefers one that is rich and moist. It is very easily propagated from pieces of rcots, planted in rows, and covered five or six inches deep. If the land has been well prepared, after the second year's growth it will be fit for use. The large, straight, smooth roots are more valuable for the market as there is less waste in grating it. The time for using it is during the Winter and early Spring months, and it should be taken up in the Fall placed in the cellar and covered with earth to keep them moist, and prevent it from shriveling. It is said to possess healthful qualities which added to its agreeable flavor, when eaten in limited quantities with meat, render it very desirable. Every owner of a garden should be sure and raise enough of it for family use.

HOW TO CORN BEEF.

For each hundred pounds of beef use four quarts of butter, salt and four ounces of saltpetre; mix the substances well together and rub each piece of beef with the compound. I'ack the beef snugly in a barrel and add to it two quarts of molasses, or four pounds of nice brown sugar. Put a weight on the meat, but add no water; the juice of the meat will make sufficient brine to cover it. If designed for Spring or Summer use, the barrel may be placed where the meat will become very cold. As the weather becomes warm a little more salt may be added. Beef kept in this manuer will be tender and sweet, and its nutritiousness will not be impaired, as in the ordinary method of preserving.

By washing in water to which has been added a small quantity of ammonia, disagreeable perspiration will be remedied. just now.

VARIOUS ITEMS.

A merchant's advice in selecting a wife, is: "Get hold of a piece of calico that will wash."

Good short-hand reporters readily com-mand from $4,000 to $6,000 a year in the law courts of New York. The supply is scarce.

Somebody proposes the following remedy for sleeping in church: "Take a riece of horse-radish root of a good size, and of a finger's length, to the sanctuary, and the moment the sermon begins, put a piece in your mouth about the size of a common corn, bite and moisten it faithfully with the saliva, and the eyes will not only be easily kept open, but a tearful attention may also be promoted to the exclusion of drowsiness, till the sermon
