Portland, January 19th, 1870.

LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS.

COUNTY AND PRECINCT CONVENTION.—The Republican County Central Committee, to whom was left the time for calling the County Convention of Linn county, decided on Thursday, April 21st as the time, and Albany as the place for holding said Convention, and recommended that the different precincts hold their Conventions for the election of delegates to the same on Saturday, the 16th of April. The County Convention is for the purpose of putting forward candidates to fill the various county offices and members of the legislature, and to elect a County Central Committee to serve the next two years. It is hoped that a full attendance of delegates will be had on the 21st.

OUR DISTRICT SCHOOL.—The yearly term of the Albany district school expired on the 25th inst. Pressing engagements prevented our attendance at the closing exercises, but the directors and others who were in attendance give a most satisfactory account of the manner in which they were conducted. It is generally conceded that the principal of the school during the year just expired, Mr. Theo. G. Taylor, is a thoroughly competent gentleman, and has proved the most successful teacher ever employed in this district. We are glad to hear that Mr. Taylor intends remaining in the school, as we know that the directors would be puzzled to secure his equal as a teacher.

DEMOCRATIC PRECINCT CONVENTION.

The Albany Democratic Precinct Convention met on Saturday afternoon, and organized by the election of Judge Cranor, Chairman, and A. N. Arnold, Esq., Secretary, and Dr. Stone, Assistant Secretary. The Chair having announced that the business of the meeting was to select ten delegates to represent the precinct in the County Convention, (which assembles to-day) to nominate candidates for county offices, Mr. Jones offered a resolution that the vote be taken viva voce, and that each member upon voting for his choice of delegates should also announce his choice of candidates for the offices of Sheriff and County Clerk. This resolution met with the most violent opposition, and a large portion of the afternoon was taken up in denouncing, on the one hand, and supporting, on the other, this innovation of the time-honored and cherished customs of the Democratic party. Several amendments were offered and lost, but an amendment or substitute offered by A. N. Arnold, and accepted by Mr. Jones, was at length passed, which provided that the election should be by ballot, and that each voter should write upon the back of his ballot his choice for Sheriff and Clerk. A large majority of the Democratic voters of the precinct were in attendance and much feeling prevailed. Following is the result of the balloting: Of the two candidates for Sheriff, Jos. Nixon obtained 67, and Bob. Irvine, present incumbent, 164 votes—majority for Irvine, 97. For County Clerk—Fred. Hill 80, and John Hackleman 91—majority for Hackleman, 11. Richard Powers and Isaac Hayes were nominated as Justices of the Peace for Albany precinct, and Jas. Sperry and Geo. Masterson as Constables. The delegates elect to the County Convention are: E. Knox, J. McGee, John Davis, Olney Frye, D. M. Cook, L. Cox, A. W. Stanard, A. Parker, J. Layton, C. Westlake.

NEW STOCK.—Ed. Freeland, at the Post-Office book store, is in receipt of new books, letter and cap papers, etc., which fill up his shelves, make a neat appearance, and enables him to better fill all orders in his line.

Our friend Geo. Settlemeir, druggist, in the same building, has also ordered a fresh assortment of goods in his line, and is determined not to be undersold by anybody. George is on it, square-toed, when it comes to the drug business.

THE POT TAT.—A Democrat informs us that, as the Benton county delegation threw off on the Linn county candidate for the State Printership, and thus sided in his defeat, the Linn county "importations" will be withdrawn, and thus leave Benton county in the hands of the Republicans. All we can say is, they deserve it—they should have stood by their friends.

THE COUNTRY FOR POOR MEN.—

Oregon is the poor man's paradise. Her soil is the richest in this world, producing fabulous crops with little labor. Her timber is unequalled, and as a stock raising country she cannot be approached. Until very lately Oregon has labored under the disadvantage of facilities for transportation, except in the immediate vicinity of her navigable streams. The railroad now in course of construction on the east side of the Willamette, and the contemplated road on the west side, will soon place all points of the State in close communion, affording facilities for the rapid transportation of produce, which will accelerate all branches of industry, bring an increase of population, and soon double and treble the price of real estate. At present real estate is offered at figures and on terms at which a poor man can buy and build up a comfortable home. The time to secure a home is the present. This golden opportunity is rapidly vanishing, and it will soon be too late to take advantage of it. But we started out to relate a cordwood story, just related to us by a gentleman of veracity, that illustrates the cheapness and ease with which a poor man may become possessed of rich lands in this neighborhood. A gentleman living in this city sold a tract of thirty-six acres, lying a mile or two from this city, for seventy-five cords of wood, to be delivered. One fir tree on the land made thirty-four cords, or nearly half the total amount to be paid for the land. After cutting the 75 cords, it is estimated that there is left timber standing for over 500 cords of wood, besides 100,000 feet of lumber. Thus, after paying for the land, the owner has left $450 worth of wood and lumber, and 36 acres of rich land, which, in a few years, will command a good price. And there are many such chances for poor men in Linn county, who have the will and energy, to hew out for themselves and families a good home, even if they have not one dollar when they arrive here. A man possessed of ability and industry will have no trouble, with proper management, in acquiring a competence in Oregon in a very brief space. Oregon needs muscle and energy to develop her vast resources, and men of this stamp will meet a cordial welcome on their arrival here.

THE NEW ARMY BILL.—

The new army bill now under consideration reduces the army to 20,000. It abolishes the offices of General and Lieut. General, and reduces the number of Major Generals to three, and Brigadier Generals to six, when the present incumbents vacate. In reducing the army, the President is authorized to discharge any officer applying for such discharge before September. Officers having served ten years are to receive two years extra pay and allowance; those having served five, and less than ten years, are to receive one and a half year's pay, and those who have served less than five years, one year's pay. It authorizes him to retire, on their application, any officer who may have served thirty years, and allows the retired list to be increased to three hundred. The enlisted men, which now number 32,000, it is expected will be reduced to 25,000 by the first of September, reducing the expenses of the army several millions. The House bill, as partially adopted, it is believed, increased instead of lessened the expense of the army, by several thousand dollars.

POINT OF JUNCTION.—

The bill called up by Howard, on the 25th inst., and passed, fixes the point of junction for the Union and Central Pacific railroads north of the principal meridian and base line in the Territory of Utah, section 36, township 7, range 2. It gives the company 6 additional sections, one section in each township being reserved for the benefit of schools in Utah, and these lands are to be paid for at the regular Government price, $2.50 per acre. The rights of private persons are not to be affected by this act.

THE TRAVELER'S GUIDE.—

Is the title of a new weekly, published at Portland, by Messrs. Russell & Perry, the great real estate and insurance agents of that city. It is neatly printed, contains valuable information for the traveler, and will prove a valuable auxiliary to the publishers in pushing their business.

A FEMALE LAWYER.—

Miss L. Barkalew, of Brooklyn, New York, a lady student in the St. Louis Law School, passed a severe examination before the Judge of the Circuit Court, and was admitted to practice. She received high encomiums from the Judge. She will commence the practice of law in St. Louis, Mo.

Simon Cameron is said to have fallen million-hair to his father-in-law.

For the Register.

Sabbath on the Pacific.
MARCH 15th, 1870.
How from the innermost depths of memory well up the deepest feelings of my soul as I reflected upon the vastness of this great, illustrious old ocean, whose snow-capped billows roll and radiate in the beautiful sunshine, just as they have ever done in days like this since first the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy.

Off in the east rises the dark-browed coast, shutting off the surging billows from the quiet dales in the dim distance where are nestled our quiet homes, and where live our darlings and our all of earth. Look to the north, and south, and west. Nothing is visible but the vast waste of dark blue and white-capped waters, now lashed into fury by the track of our steamer, and now subsiding into placid ripples, upon which flocks of sea-gulls light and ride with all the grace of fairies. But I did not imagine I should write like this when I began to scribble; and I must arouse myself from the reverie to tell you something of our journey.

I left home on the 8th inst., and, going aboard the Reliance, found myself for the first time in my existence as a traveler, without the company of a single acquaintance, except the captain. Nothing of interest transpired until we reached Canemah. The steamer was loaded with grain to the water's edge, and a strong breeze was blowing up stream, therefore the captain refused to land me at Canemah, and I had the doubtful pleasure of walking back from the Basin and juggling a basket over the old mule track, to my sister's residence, ordinarily a walk of a mile, but in my exhausted physical condition an interminable distance. I felt like doing a little scolding on my own account; but concluded to ask you to get the Mercury under the P. T. Company, and say no more about it myself. How convenient to always have somebody ready to fight one's battles!

Took dinner at the Cliff House—a very good house by the way. Its old proprietor succumbed to circumstances and whisky some time since, and Mr. Wm. Barlow and wife now run the "institution." Thirty-two imported voters were quartered there recently by one of the factory managers, who agreed to give them work and board until after election—they, of course, agreeing to go "Democratic straight." Their employers tried it a week, and then notified the landlord that he could no longer remain responsible for their board. Some persons had told the poor man that his voters were "selling" him, and he settled the bills, complaining that the rasals had already cost him $250. Said "rasals" left the hotel and went to work on the railroad. They will vote for whoever gives them the most whisky on election day. A pretty muddle you poor men do make of politics.
"Roll on thee deep and dark blue ocean, roll!"
There! I feel as famous now as did the California legislator who made a speech. Said he: "I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

A MODEL HUSBAND.—

The New York Herald, 4th instant, tells the following: An extraordinary instance of complicated matrimonial relations, occurring at Dobbs' Ferry, on the Hudson, appeared in the Herald a few days since, in which were portrayed facts in relation to a woman, who after obtaining a separation from her husband married his assistant, while the former head of the household consented to remain as a boarder. This outrageous disregard of the marriage obligation, coupled with the indifference shown by a husband and father to the wife of his bosom and the mother of his children, has had a fitting termination—on full accord with the press, unprecedented strides in this instance made toward the hideous goal of "free love."

It will be remembered that the woman (who is the wife of a blacksmith) after obtaining what purported to be a separation from her husband, proceeded with her new "affinity" to the residence of a clergyman in the village above mentioned, and was then and there united in matrimony with the employe of her husband, and that the latter offered no objection, but remained in the family as a boarder. The assistant, who had so strangely become the husband of his employer's wife, bore the responsibility placed upon him for about a week, when failing, it is said, to get control of some property in possession of his so-called wife, he deliberately packed his trunk and took passage on a westward bound train, making no secret of his intention to seek "fresh fields and pastures new." It is not stated that much opposition was offered by the "bride" of a week, who at once transferred her first husband from his ignominious position as boarder to his former status as husband and protector; and now, while the blacksmith's hammer continues to ring merrily on his anvil, peace reigns at his domestic hearth. "Shee, fly; don't bodder me!"

The shoe manufacturing towns in New England are going ahead faster than ever.

MARK TWAIN MARRIED AND SETTLED.—

By the last mail we received a delicate pink envelope containing still more delicate cards of a still more delicate pink, one bearing the words "Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Clemens, Delaware Avenue" and the other, "Olivia L. Langdon" and a note announcing the marriage on the 2d of February, in New York. So Mark and Miss Langdon have been made "Twain" according to the statute in such cases made and provided, and his host of friends will wish him joy at his good fortune, for the lady is spoken of as being beautiful, accomplished and amiable. And Mark has prospered financially, for his book yields him a handsome income, and his lecturing receipts show a more ordinary, if not a happy one. It seems Mark's father-in-law played an elaborate practical joke on him on the night of the wedding. The bridegroom, being busy with his lectures, and not finding a house for sale that suited his purse and taste, instructed Mr. Langdon's agent in Buffalo to secure him rooms and board in some nice family, where there would be but a few other boarders; and though the commission was exacted, Mark could not learn the name of the family or the street where they lived; and he privately determined to caution his father-in-law, as soon as admitted into the family, against continuing such a stupid agent in the management of his business. Finally, a dozen particular friends escorted the bridal party from Elmira to Buffalo, in a palace car, and on arriving proposed to call on the newly married pair in the morning. By some more stupidity on the part of the agent, the bride and groom were the last to leave the car, on account of the carriages being blocked in, and when Mark reached his "boarding house," he found all his friends awaiting him in a splendid mansion, ($40,000) elegantly furnished, stable, horses, coach, liveries for servants, check on the bank for a handsome amount—and all a present from the father-in-law. He said it only needed a drop curtain and a prompter to place the characters in position to make it seem like a scene in a sensation drama. In his letter he says: "I have read these absurd fairy tales, in my time, but I never, never, never, expected to be the hero of a romance in real life as unlooked for and unexpected as the wildest of them." In the postscript to his letter he says: "In the good old fashioned fairy tale, the hero would infallibly happen to notice an opal bled mother of pearl box on the centre table, and would leadlessly open it and find in it a deed for all the newly acquired property. But bless you, I never had any experience in playing hero in a tale, and so no matter who shoved that box toward me, or hinted darkly at its contents, my calm, untrifled stupidity was victorious every time, and at last they had to shove the box under my nose in the most unromantic way, and open it and display the deed and insurance papers. All hands laughed at and abused me, but I told them it was all so new to me—tackle me again with another house, and see how I would sail through my part. The check on the bank, accompanying the gift, was not necessary, for my book and lecturing kept me equal to minor emergencies!"—Alta.
