SATURDAY, APRIL 2, 1870.

A GREAT GENERAL DEAD .- Major General George H. Thomas died in San Francisco on Monday night last. At the time of his death he was commanding the Military Division of the Pacific. General Thomas was born in Virginia in 1816, and entered the army in 1840. He was among the few noble men of southern birth educated at the expense Credentials: D. M. Thompson, J. W. of the country who refused to desert the noble old flag in the hour of its greatest from its inception to its close, and the precincts: recital of his glorious achievements in defense of his country's liberties against rebels and arch-traitors, forms a bright and thrilling chapter in the history of the great rebellion, unsurpassed in grandeur and glory by the achievements of any of the great soldier chiefs. The great chief is dead, and true men all over the land mourn the loss of a great soldier, a patriot and a true man.

KELLY ON REPUDIATION.-In a recent speech at Portland, Col. Kelly, for Miller, E. E. Wheeler. years past a standing candidate for the United States Senatorship, Representive in Congress, or Governor, declared that if the bondholders would not consent to the repudiation of half the debt by "equitable adjustment," the next demand would be for the repudiation of the whole of it. Why couldn't this P. Porter. honest exponent of "the only principle of Democracy" tell the truth, as Fay would say, once, just once, and acknowledge that he, as well as the great body of the party in Oregon, were for repudi- Committee discharged. ating every dollar of the national debt? this, and nothing less. And all the twisting and squirming of old worn out A. C. Hauseman. Democratic party backs will fail to conthat it is anything else but dishonesty; and no man who is an honest, upright party which openly and unblushingly avows such a principle.

THE MAIN IDEA .- A certain aspirant for Senatorial honors in the Democratic ranks, during the session of the late Democratic State Convention in this city, tried to impress upon the minds of his brethren that policy demanded a adopted as just the thing. While there is no disputing the fact that the leaders of the party are in favor of repudiation, there is still an honest element in the Democratic party of sufficient strength to defeat a ticket placed upon a flat-footed. outspoken, repudiation platform. And this was the argument used against adopting the eighth section of the platform as originally offered. Not that the principle of repudiation was dishonest or morally wrong. No. They endorsed it. But. there were certain men in the party who were troubled with conscientious scruples, and who believed that to endorse repudiation would be to cast reproach and dishonor upon the fair name of our Government. And for fear of driving off this vote, and thus meeting certain and overwhelming defeat, they were in favor of covering up the real and true meaning of the resolution, by a show of honesty. But honest men will not be deceived by any such clap-trap.

SUBSTITUTE.-As it is claimed by some Democrats that the substitute for the 8th section of the Democratic platform, offered by Mr. Cochrane, of Lane. did not look to repudiation of the na- Clark. tional debt, we append it below, so that all may read for themselves :

That as the people of the United States ought never to submit to be saddled with a permanent debt, to be handed down from one generation to another, to eat out their substance and sink them into alayery, therefore, we are opposed to the funding of the so-called national debt, except upon an equitable adjustment between the bond holder and the people, based upon the amount of coin originally paid, and the amount received and the immunities enjoyed by the holders thereof since their issue.

The substitute was lost-61 for, and 93 against. Taking the assertions of a est already paid has more than cancelled the original cost of the bonds, as the basis upon which to form a judgment justment," we are irresistably driven to the conclusion that it means a clean and entire repudiation of the bonded debt -nothing less and nothing more.

Don't LIKE IT .- Beriah Brown, of the Press, endorses the Democratic State ticket with the exception of the candidate for State Printer. He objects to his nomination on the ground that, as he is not a practical printer, only a bookkeeper, it is an insult to the craft, and a manifest wrong to the public. He therefore enters his protest against the precedent thus established.

OVERLAND MAIL CONTRACT .- The telegraph informs us that Theodore Lee whoever he may be, has been awarded the overland mail contract from Oroville the overland mail contract from Oroville to Portland, for the sum of $80,000 The importers couldn't pay, and the colpus annum, subject to the pro rata per annum, subject to the pro rata ony "busted," coming back to their ony " reduction as the railroad is finished.

CHRONICLES-Chapter 1.

How the unterrified of the land met in the city of Albany. How the people loved them. How they communed together. What they wrote upon parchment. How fear came over them. How they became fearfully and wonderfully mad. How they chose rulers. How they dispersed. How the people rejoiced because they were gone. And it came to pass in the beginning the second year of the reign of Ulysses, that there assembled in a certain city called Albany, certain of an unterrified and unwashed tribe called Democrats, that they might hold sweet communion. and choose from among their number those who shall hold the loaves and fishes. How the musicians of the city on the morning of the day made a loud noise, as of sounding brass and tinkling cymbals, as though their hearts were glad, though verily they had been bribed by pieces of silver. Yet the people of the city were filled with love for the unterri-Walter Ketchum, James M. Foster, D. fied. Yea, verily, one Robert the Irvine, who was Sheriff of the land, so loved one Turk, who had been sent hither from afar, that he put chains about him and put him away into a dark place. And the people reasoned among themselves Smith, J. W. George, A. Baltimore, saying, verily, verily, the rest should be made go with him.

And it further came to pass that when they had met they chose one Curry to be High Priest, and one Lane to make record of the acts of the unwashed.

And after each one had risen up and talked a little and showed himself and sunk back again amidst the multitude, then the High Priest chose one from every portion of the land to write parchment the reasons of the that was within them. And while they were writing the unterterrified departed into a place called Bascom's, where they made merry over wine and strong drink. And when they were full they returned. And lo, one McArthur, who wanted to be a Judge in the land, arose and read from off the parchment what had been written. And when he had read a portion he would stop and the multitude would beat upon the floor with the leather which covereth their feet, for they were glad that he was done. And some would ery aloud, for they had no leather upon their feet. And he read off of the parchment that the tribe had been good and faithful, and of the

And he furthermore read how the Democrats feared the Ethiopian and the Aborigine, and the man from China. Yea, verily, they were sore afraid that they could be no better than were these manner of men. And he read 13 portions. And when he was Porter; Waterloo, S. K. Clark; Orleans, done reading, lo and behold one Jaster James B. McCoy.

The Convention then adjourned till against the 8th portion, for verily Jasper who was John's son, arose and spake was not entirely corrupt.

Now it had already came to pass that there had been a war in the land of suant to adjournment. The House called Jonathan. than to repudiate. This it was that was written on the parchment.

And it came to pass that after Jasper had delivered himself and had subsided. that others arose and spake. And some likened Jasper unto a beast that has long ears and that brays, and Jasper likened them into something worse.

And the people wondered, for they saw that the unwashed were beginning to utter truth. And among those who arose was one Benjamin, whose surname is Dirty Shirt, because that article is never clean. And Jasper's counsels availed but little. And when they had quarreled about the space of four hours, they departed.

And on the morning of the next day they again gathered together. And they cast about for one to go to the mighty city called Washington, to make war upon the Radicals. And some spake of James the Slater. And the High Priest commanded them saying: If it so be that you want James to go, cry out in a loud voice. And they did so, and James was chosen. Then they cast about for one to rule over the land.

Now when the tribe called Radicals meet to cast lots, they write the names of the elect upon bits of parchment, but insomuch as the greater part of the Democrats cannot write, they cry aloud. And some cried for Grover and some for Chapman, and some for John the Fiddler. But the most cried aloud for Grover;

therefore he was chosen. And they furthermore chose Stephen the Chadwick to be Secretary of the land; one Fleischner, of the tribe of Israel, to hold the pieces of silver, and one Patterson, to print upon parchment.

And when they had divided the loaves and the fishes, they departed to their lands of abode. And when they were gone the people rejoiced greatly, and there was peace in the land.

Telegraphic Summary.

LETTER FROM COL. BAKER.—Letters were received at the War Department, March 28, from Col. Baker to Gen. Sheridan, in reply to a telegram from the latter for a more detailed account and statement of the Piegan fight. The Colonel says the whole number killed was 173, of whom 120 were able-bodied men and 53 were women and children. 140 women and children were afterwards captured and released. He says he believes every effort was made by officers and men to save non-combatants. That such as were killed were killed accidentally. He says the reports published in the Eastern papers are wholly malicious and false, and all that the officers demand of the authorities is a full and complete investigation, and that less than that can not be conceded them.

ESSICK'S

In presenting the claims of this NEW KNIT-TING MACHINE to popular favor, we aim at no more than a brief and candid statement of its actual merits. We confidently claim that the CLIMAX KNITTER is superior to all other machines in the follwing respects: Simplicity of construction and operation.

 Completeness and excellence of work.
 Convenience of shape, size and weight of achine.
4. Durability of machine.
5. Rapidity of work.
6. Cheapness.

It is so simple in its construction and in its workings, that less than half the time is required to learn to knit on it than on others. With it the children of the howsehold can do all the knitting. It is made entirely of iron and steel. A man's sock can be made in thirty minutes. It makes the regular old old-fashioned knitting needle stitch or loop, (with several others if desired); turns the beel, making it of as good shape as by hand, without any sawing; narrows or widens, at the pleasure of the operator, and makes a perfect toe. Any article that can be knit by hand, can be manufactured on this machine.

Persons who wish to see the machine in operation, are requested to call on the agent in this city.
