NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

"GAY" NEWS.
Farmers Can Ride and Plow, BY SECURING ONE OF THE
"GAY" PLOWS,
Manufactured and sold for the very low price of $65 and $75.

THE simplicity and practicality of this new Plow commends it favorably to the special notice of every farmer. It possesses a decided superiority over all other plows now in use. The wheels are four feet in diameter, and run on the unplowed land. Its entire construction is in no way complicated. The plow is managed in every manner with ease, and requires only two levers to be used in making any alteration. The superiority of the "Gay" Plow will be clearly shown by the following certificate:

We, the undersigned, citizens of Linn county, Oregon, having purchased and used upon our farms the "Gay" Plow, hereby certify that the same has given us entire satisfaction. Its facility for adjusting to suit the depth of furrow without moving from the seat, is simple and easy. We like the plow for its draft, because the same is brought to bear directly upon the plow-beam instead of the carriage; also, because it is strong and durable. It is a decided improvement over land and in plowing, not having to make the necessary changes in the machinery, and the seat is always level, not the wing the driver forward or sideways as in other plows. Better work and more of it can be accomplished by the use of this Plow than by hand.

We take pleasure in recommending the "Gay" Plow to our brother farmers, as one having no superior in Oregon.

ESSICK'S
CLIMAX KNITTER!

IN presenting the claims of this NEW KNIT-TING MACHINE to popular favor, we aim at no more than a brief and candid statement of its actual merits. We confidently claim that the CLIMAX KNITTER is superior to all other machines in the following respects:

1. Simplicity of construction and operation.
2. Completeness and excellence of work.
3. Convenience of shape, size and weight of machine.
4. Durability of machine.
5. Rapidity of work.
6. Cheapness.

It is so simple in its construction and in its working, that less than half the time is required to learn to knit on it than on others. With it the children of the household can do all the knitting.
It is made entirely of iron and steel. A man's sock can be made in sixty seconds. It makes the regular old-fashioned knitting needle stitch or loop, (with several others desired) and turns the heel, making it of as good shape as by hand, without any sewing, narrow or wide, at the pleasure of the operator, and makes a perfect toe. Any article that can be knit by hand can be manufactured on this machine.

Persons who wish to see the machine in operation, are requested to call on the Agents for Oregon.

Picnic on the Fourth of July.

EDITOR REGISTER:—Principally to avoid more laborious work on this enervating and lacy occasion, and partly to please a number of friends who shared the immeasurable delights of our excursion, I prepared to give you an account of it, which may be lengthy or otherwise according to my resolution or lack of it on such a withering, scorching day as this fifth of July, one thousand eight hundred and seventy.

There is no need of my telling any of you how hot and vivid and glaring the sun was; how dusty and rough the road was; how stifling and close the air was; —you could know something about all this and stay at home, or go to Salem to celebrate; but you that did either of these have but a faint conception of our Picnic at the Soda Springs.

Most of us left home at six o'clock A.
M., or as near that time as possible. In the early morning the ride was delightful.
Such diversity of scenery as our eyes enjoy during the ride from here to our before-mentioned place of rendezvous can be in no where else so often found as in this favorite State of Oregon. To describe it accurately would be impossible, to attempt it altogether unnecessary. As we drove along the merry prattle of the delighted children tuned itself to my meditations as I gazed for an hour at Mary's Peak on our right, and mused upon the day just three months previous, when from the bosom of the broad Pacific I looked upon it from the other side, and by its aid was enabled to mark the dear spot where home lay nestled. In front of us, a score of miles away, rose the mountains that daily bathe their feet in the classic Santiam, their sides clothed in green and their summits crested with a darker shade of the same rich hue, while what seemed the last of the long ridge, opposite which has been planted and grown the village of Lebanon, rose a bare, ungloriously exposed which, try as I would, I could not imagine to be anything else but a huge loaf ready any moment for the surgeon's lance. All around us was the horizon fenced out with mountains, while the dear valleys, clothed in waving folds of living grass and grain, bejeweled with farm houses, and flocks, and flowers, and fruits—but I am trying to run this thing into a description, which I believe I said a while ago would be impossible. I think so still.

The Soda Spring (or springs; there are three of them, one only being in condition to drink from at present), rises from the hillsides, and originally, for no one knows how many ages, trickled down among rocks and rubles, appropriated principally by pigeons, which still flock in multitudes around the rude improvements of a recent era, wondering, no doubt, where white folks and carriages and Fourth of July originated.

Some dozens of vehicles and as many saddle horses, with their freight of life and strength and dignity and beauty had congregated and discharged the same by nine or ten o'clock. Then the fun began.
Nobody knew anything about the arrangements, or whether there were to be or had been any. The majority of us had taken the precaution to provide ourselves with provender. Those who had neglected this were bountifully supplied by mine host and lady of the Soda Spring Hotel, and nobody went hungry, though all of us were insufferably overheated.

A swing so planted in the valley that it might draw and concentrate the sun's heat, also attracted a goodly degree of patronage. And the people swung and fanned and purred and it led back up the hill for a "little more soda," and met old friends and laughed and gossipped, while the children cried and "wanted to go home" only to get shakes, and scolded, and fussed, and fed by tired parents in search of a holiday. We drank the spring dry, and were not yet satisfied. We unto the unfortunate philanthropist who sought to replenish our bright tin dipper! Better for him had been a shady nook in some quiet corner where his patriotism could get higher than his perspiration!

We had no tedious oration, no deflating cannon, no star spangled banners, no Declaration of Independence—nothing but swifiting, and sunshine, and a constant supply of soda water.

Mrs. Sawtelle favored us with a sweet and well read poem, entitled the "Convent's Mother," to which a few dozen languid excursionists deferentially listened, but which she almost spoiled by making a few remarks upon after reading it. Men do dislike being told on the Fourth of July that one-half of the human race are in legal thrall in these United States. The matter strikes them all the more unpleasantly from its self evident truth. With what self complacency do they condescend to assure us that we are mistaken! How they love to laugh at a delicate, plucky, nervous little woman who so far presumes upon her convictions of duty as to dare to doubt their judgment! And how women love to court the favor of their masters by cold assets and flippant innuendoes at the little enthusiast! All honor, however, to the noble men and women who can be found in every crowd where both do congregate who have the good sense to treat even a woman who may declare herself "strong minded," with deference and courtesy. Twenty years ago men would have hurried their wives and daughters from the vicinity of one of these reformers. The world moves. But why do active reformers of either sex allow themselves to become incorrigible bores? I have been in days gone by, I am mortally annoyed by some tract peddling enthusiast, that I have been compelled to read him a homily upon untimely persistence in his favorite hobby. He'd want his dinner, sure, and must have money for his gospel, and he couldn't afford to peddle it, but he would not accept the fact so patent to all practical people that there is no use in clothing anybody with fact. That if everybody would forego all other matters to attend to his particular hobby, his cash and dinner would both be minus. I believe in equal rights; know they are progressing, and bound to win; know we must work for them; but when I am out a-Fourth-ing and find myself compelled to fight the oppressive heat, I confess I am not enthusiastic.

At last came welcome four o'clock.
We had a bumpy horse and a peevish, tired, four-year-old boy along for nuisances, but the sun was slowly descending and we revived and took a urage. We didn't get much soda water when ready to leave, but what little our perspiring friend could dip for us was cool and sparkling, and we hold his philanthropic efforts in our behalf in grateful rememberance to this hour.

I could not help thinking, as we toiled homeward in the oppressive heat, of Mark Train's idea of an excursion to the Holy Land; 'T was not lively enough for a pleasure trip, but if we had only had a corpse along it would have made a noble funeral excursion.' I dislike these levities, but somehow this one seemed appropriate. Again in sight of Mary's Peak! Think of the cool breeze and the blue ocean beyond it, while there, on our left, among the many beautiful sights that challenge our admiration, looms up that forest-clad mountain, over against Lebanon, upon whose summit rises that exorcising, looking more than ever, in the shimmer
