HON. E. L. APPLEGATE'S LECTURE .-On Monday night, as announced last week, Hon, E. L. Applegate delivered his great historical lecture entitled, "The Koreish-Mohammed and Al Koran," at the Court House in this city, the proceeds to innure to the Albany Collegiate Institute. A very good audience was in attendance-not as large, however, as we hoped and expected to see, or as the merits of the lecture demanded-and from the strict attention given to the lecturer throughout we should judge they were all amply repaid for the time and money thus spent. Having devoted thirty years of his life to literary matters, Mr. Applegate comes before an audience with a miffl well stored with facts, and his great command of language, his inimitable gestures, manner and style of delivery, are so unique, so entirely different from the "orthodox" style, that he at once enlists the whole and undivided attention of his entire audience. We believe that ninety-nine men out of every hundred who have heard Mr. A. lecture, would give him the preference over any other they have yet him the preference over any other they have yet heard on the Pacific coast. We are sorry that we have not space at this time for a fuller and more complete notice of this excellent lecture. In the hands of Mr. Applegate the subject under discussion assumed an entire new phase, and was clothed with an interest that hitherto we had entirely failed to discover. We believe Mr. A's "heavy smit" is besturing and he will fail to do. "heavy suit" is lecturing, and he will fail to do his whole duty if he does not devote at least a portion of his time to it.

At the request of friends and admirers, Mr.
Applegate consented to deliver a lecture at the Congregational Church, on Tuesday evening, on the subject of "The Book of Job—Its origin and Doctrines," but the audience being small, owing to the stream of the to the stormy weather and other causes, the lec-ture was not delivered; Mr. A., however, trested those present to one of his charming and most entertaining "talks," of probably an hour's du-ration, giving a general outline of the subject as he would have treated it had the lecture been de-livered.

NON-EXPLOSIVE KEROSENE LAMPS .- Mr. D. J. Quimby, of Marsten & Quimby, Portland, Gen-eral Agents for Oregon, Washington Territory as to the cause of this sudden faiality. and British Columbia, for the sale of the Non-explosive Kerosene Lamp, has been canvassing the city for orders for this new lamp. It has been claimed for these lamps-and the claim is backed by voluntary testimony of the best men of the East, where they have been thoroughly triedthat they are perfectly non-explosive; that it the proceedings of the Chy Concellas published in that gives twice as much light as an ordinary lamp; this number of our paper; also, to the ordinance that it uses 38 per cent, less oil than other lamps; in relation to licenses, passed by that body at its that it gives out no bad odor, even when turned down very low, and that being made of brass, it will last a life-time. These are only a few of the advantages his lamp possesses over others, but we should think them sufficient to create a large demand for the lamp. Mr. Quimby informs us that he has received a large number of orders from this city, which will be filled soon. Knowing the danger incurred by the use of ordinary lamps, the great amount of property destroyed and valuable lives lost anoually by their use, certainly people everywhere will half the advent of a new burner that is not only entirely safe, but cheaper and better in every respect, than those now commonly in use. Mr. Quimby will be pleased to exhibit the lamp to all who have not seen it. Mesers. Marsten & Quimby have appointed Mesers. Blain, Young & Co., their agents for this city, where a supply of the lamps will bereafter be

SHALLPOX NEAR SCIO .- We learn that Mr. Hubbard Bylas, living some seven miles east of Seio, has been down with the smallpox, resulting in the loss of one eye. There are six or seven others in the family, all of whom are said to be afflicted with the loathsome disease. As the first physician called in pronounced the disease scarlet fever, and as no precautions were used in conse-quence of this, it is feared the disease will spread BEEF CATTLE SCARCE .- Mesers. Harris & Co., of the City Market, report beef "critters" extremely scarce, and their shop has been closed the greater portion of the week. They report offering seven and a half cents per pound with no takers. As soon as suitable beef can be obtained the market will be opened again. The Franklin Market is in full blast, having secured a band of cattle across the river on Wednesday.
