A communication, directed to the officers of the State Agricultural Society, requesting them to invite the Hon. Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, to deliver the anoual address .. before the Society this full, has been published. The officers of the Society could not do a better thing than to heed this request-it will be a paying investment; and if it be true that the exchequer of the Society is depleted, here is a most fensible plan for filling it to overflowing. Let the people of Oregon understand that Mr. Greeley is to deliver an address for their benefit on the occasion of the annual Fair, and there'll bardly be room enough within the pr enclosure, large as it is, to hold the people-they will flock from the uttermost ends of the State; and not only from this State, but from all portions of the coast. A better "card" to secure a full house could not be selected. If the officers are the far-seeing, enterprising gentlemen we are led to believe, this suggestion. The fact that Col. Taggart has 13,000 been invited to deliver an address before the Society, and the probability that he will accept, is no reason why Mr. Green ley, should not be invited also-it would make the Fair doubly interesting. As suggested by Maj. Francis, one might deliver the opening and the other the closing address. If, however, the of-10 000 ficers of the State Agricultural Society fail to do their duty in this matter, well hope the officers of the Line Co Agricultural Association will waltz in 13,500 and secure the prize, securing such an 10.000 attendance as they cannot obtain in any other way, and showing they have the ..$550.003 "nerve" and "sand" to runa Fair. In addition to the other is a neat well-house, a wood-hase and all other necessary outhouses. There is a meadow, large pacture, or chards, gurden, &s., &e. It is susceptible of lecing divided into four farms, all of them having good soil, fuel and rail timber, and three of them having stock water.

Thos. E. Bramlette, late Governor of Ky.: II. corral, and it is supposed, seized a calf. The bellowing of the frightened calf and the presence of the panther demoralized the cattle, and a stampede ensued. The terrified drovers, awakened from deep sleep by the terrific bellowing of the stampeding cattle, left their warm blankets in a hurry, seeking safety in flight. One of them, Mr. Benj. Stratton, of Washington courty, was so unfortunate as to get among the cattle, who knocked him down and run over him, bruising and lascerating his body, tearing his clothes, and leaving him in a bad plight for traveling. Our townsman, Jo. Grav. was found, after the excitement had somewhat subsided, some distance from the corral on a log, not having the least idea how he got there or what was the matter. John says he never was so bad scared in his life. The cattle scattered through the mountains in overy direction, and when Mr. Claypool left, a large number of them were still "absent and unaccounted for." Bon Voyage.-The irrepressible and jolarious vender of leather and leatherfindings, Mr. J.
