The Albany Register. The Real Issue.

The Albany Register, which, after severely upholding human slavery, as the corner stone of free institutions, and struggling to the last to overthrow a mild and equitable government which promised to curtail in the Territories of the United States the precious right of the Southern gentlemen of selling at the auction-block the mother of his colored children, with her offspring, which established a system that was the degradation of slave and slave-holder together, and the foul stench and disease of the American name, which was utterly foiled in its hope of destroying the Constitution and government of the republic of the United States, to rear upon its ruins an empire of slavery—now begs its Democratic friends and allies not to open the "wonderful institution," known as Tammany, but to turn all their energies upon the Jacobin tyrant who sits enthroned at Washington, to the terror of all patriots, and to the peril of free government.

The precise feeling of the Southern element of their party, upon which the Democratic leaders rely for success in their present campaign. We fire no shots into Tammany, but we aim at the rebellion. Its one passionate hope is the destruction of the results of the Union victory. All its illustrations spring instinctively from its most familiar associations. Be friends! Be friends! it cries to its allies. Don't underrate the power of Tammany. Tammany is the right lever of the Democratic strength. We fire no shots into Tammany, while it stands a bulwark of strength, an adamantine wall, between the Empire State and the Jacobin traitor to the Constitution of his country. What would have been thought of Lee's men firing into Stonewall Jackson's blucher corps when it came up to sweep the gray-coats on to victory on the Chickasaw? The Democratic press and politicians would do far better to initiate Tammany, than in making war upon this Stonewall wing of the grand Democratic party.

This is no insignificant newspaper nor unceremonious sound. It is the voice of what Democratic authority calls "the most influential journal now published in the State." Americans! Republicans! it is with the same old rebel cries and aims, it is by gladly and proudly identifying itself with the lost cause, that the Democratic party enters upon the Presidential campaign. We appeal to every intelligent man of every party in the land, what advantage to the peace and prosperity of the country can be hoped from its success? The policy of disturbing the settlements is the only policy it proposes. Those who demand it are those who have always dominated the party, who will contemptuously leave to Tammany and its lackeys the plunder which they desire, and to Stonewall and his lackeys will be absolutely subservient. "It's voice," says the World, speaking of the Mobile Register, "will be heard and heeded in the councils of the conservative men." Certainly it will. It was precisely the same voice that was heard and heeded in the Democratic National Convention of 1856, and which then, as now, declared the settlements of the war to be "revolutionary, unconstitutional and void."—Harper's Weekly.

POSITIVE FACTS.—Jane Clark, an old lady of seventy-five years of age, residing in Janesville, Jefferson county, Ohio, two weeks ago gave birth to twins whose joint weight amounted to 48 pounds. Mr. Clark who is in his eightieth year, is employed as porter in Simpson & Co's dry goods store on First street.

A curious freak of a cat, lately come to our knowledge. A favorite cat belonging to Miss Zigger of this city, last its kittens about a week ago and has since adopted a brood of young canary birds which it tends with all the affection of a mother.—Batleborough Republican.

A bright little boy of seven years of age, the son of Judge Stompton of Cattleville, Blommer county, Iowa, two years ago, by accident, swallowed a snake with which he was playing. Since that time his hearing has gradually been getting defective until at last he was completely deaf. Last Wednesday he complained of intense pain in the head and at two o'clock in the afternoon a large snake crawled from his left ear. His hearing is now quite restored. The boy's ears are un-naturally large for one of his age.
