SEWING MACHINES.

THE CELEBRATED
Buck Eye Sewing Machine.

Price $45; without table, $25

Eight reasons why the Buckeye Sewing Machine is superior to all others:

1. It is the simplest shuttle machine made.
2. It has less wearing parts than any other.
3. It has no small springs or compound cranks.
4. It is better adapted to a large range of work without change.
5. It has less pieces of machinery.
6. It is less liable to break needles than any other machine.
7. The shuttle will wear longer than the shuttle in any other machine.
8. That it has the best feeding device, which will never wear out, get out of order, break needles, feed unevenly, slip on starched goods, or pucker the seam so that some part of the fabric will be out of shape than the other, which all other feeds are liable to do. It makes every stitch of an equal length. It is stronger than other feeds. We can take a strong piece of cloth, and put one end in our machine and the other end in any other machine, and notice that our machine will take the cloth from the other, in consequence of the superior strength of the feed.

It is the only feed strong enough to feed thick sole leather, sewing on shoe soles. No sewing the cloth or any other aid is required.

It has no complicated machinery, and therefore is available to get out of order. It is a beautiful movement, making nearly two thousand stitches per minute. The Buckeye Sewing Machine makes the lock stitch, the same as the Howe, Wilson, Singer, and Florence, alike on both sides. We offer a premium of one hundred dollars for any machine on this coast that will make a stronger or more elastic stitch than the Buckeye. For full particulars address, MINER & PEARSON, Gen. TRUE GENIUS.—Alexander Hamilton once said to an intimate friend: "Men give me some credit for genius. All the genius I have lies just in this: When I have a subject in hand, I study it profoundly. Day and night it is before me. I explore it in all its bearings. My mind becomes pervaded with it. Then the effort which I make the people are pleased to call the fruit of genius. It is the fruit of labor and thought."

A TEMPERANCE COON.—A prominent liquor-dealer in one of the towns of Rhode Island adopted recently into his family a young coon. As it increased in age, evidently it became a question with him how to do missionary work in the household. So on a certain night, when his master was asleep, he turned the faucet on a barrel containing the best liquor in the establishment, thereby flooding from the cask some twenty gallons. The next day this earnest worker fell a martyr to his temperance zeal.

A Sanguinary Picture of a Possible Contingency.

That will be a sad and gloomy day in all this community when the Fool Killer comes to San Francisco. No accurate prediction of the time of his arrival can be made, but the immense accumulation of material upon which he may be called upon to exercise

HIS SANGUINARY CALLING
 Would seem to indicate strongly that the day cannot be far distant. Assuming that he arrives by the train from the East he will no sooner step his foot upon the trolley than he will find subjects ready-made to his hand. As the steamer nears her slip all that crowd of men and boys who press forward ready to rush and crowd and jostle for the privilege of falling overboard in order to gain a second's time in getting ashore will be ruthlessly smitten down. The herds of eager insolent hucksters and runners who will hound him as he lands will necessarily

BE INSTANTLY DISPATCHED.
 Should he, as he probably will, wear his working clothes, and approach the immaculate dignity of the "gentleman and efficient" of one of our first class hotels, his reception will immediately compel him to order a funeral and prepare the corpse. If he goes out on Montgomery street, there will pass him scores of women bearing on their backs costly apparel, and upon their hands glittering gems, to procure which toiling husbands are trembling on the verge of bankruptcy, and to enjoy which all pure domestic life is forfeited and forgotten. He will see

FLAUNTING VICE
 Nodding and leering its way through the admiring crowd, and innocent adolescence imitating it that it too may be admired. And the result of his labors and observations will be manifested in long lines of hacks and hearse on their way to Lone Mountain. He will reach Montgomery and California streets at noon, and will mingle with the crowds of swaying brokers, holding high carnival over the fictitious value attached to some fancy stock. He will note that the sidewalk is no longer a thoroughfare, and the

RIGHTS OF PASSERS
 Null and void. He will see with regret, possibly, that able-bodied men refrain from demanding and conquering a right of passage, but stepnearly into the mud that these men may yell "Bayer 30! sold!" and after he has seen these things the gutters of Montgomery street will run with blood, and California street be filled with

GHASTLY FILES OF THE SLAIN.
 He will enter a theatre, and, becoming fairly entranced in rapt admiration at the denouement of a well-acted play, be aroused at the most intensely interesting point by the noise of putting on overcoats and furs. He will see half that audience rise to depart, and in sheer disgust he will be in their midst where they stand. He will go into

A FASHIONABLE CHURCH
 And hear a preacher, clad in broadcloth, with costly watch and jeweled chain, while clasping his dainty fingers, and rolling upwards his saintly eyes, dictate to the Ruler of the Universe an improved plan for the regulation of worldly affairs. He will listen to a carefully prepared sermon, setting forth the palpable

ABSURDITY OF GOD'S ORIGINAL PLANS.
 And the immense value of his particular creed's improvements on them. He will see the congregation, rustling with silks and weighted with coin, bow down and join in solemnly thanking their Creator that they are not as other men. He will see those billy deacons pass round the plates and hear the tinkle of gold and silver as it falls, therein, making merry music to the parsimonious ears; and he will take his stand in the door as they come out, and

SLAY THEM ONE BY ONE.
 He will enter a saloon and see men of all classes and conditions

POURING DOWN
 Their threats by the gill. He will see their hard earnings going into the proprietors' pockets while their wives and little ones cry for bread, and he will take the bottle and smell of its contents and enter upon his memorandum book this note: "No need to kill these men; this stuff will do it fast enough." He will go to a political meeting and hear some windy frothist spout out his love of country and his disinterested patriotism while his fingers are in his pockets gently playing with the "piece" for which he has been bought and he will see the gaping crowd swallowing his every word in eager belief, and a pile of mangled corpse will attest the fidelity with which he has done his work. He will start down Clay street, but midway in the block, between Leidesdorff and Sansome streets, among the editorial and reportorial forces of our morning and evening contemporaries there assembled, there will be so fearful

A SCENE OF SLAUGHTER
 That the pen refuses to depict its horrors and as the groans and shrieks reach our ears in warning tones we shall take our hat and leave for Santa Cruz.—Chronicle.

A clock is like a man; it has two hands, a face, an inside and an outside. Sometimes the hands point to the truth, but it is not ashamed to show its face when it don't. It is a useful piece of machinery—so is man. It often gets out of order—so does man. It is often wound up—so is man. It strikes—so does man. It is not always to be relied on—no more is man.

Hutton, the antiquarian, whose knowledge of books was deemed remarkable, was slow to learn when a boy. He was sent to a school to a certain Mr. Mead. He thus tells his story of beating his head against the wall, holding it by the hair, but he could never beat any learning into it.

It is exceedingly bad husbandry to harrow up the feelings of your wife.

RIVER IMPROVEMENTS.—Two of our leading sawmill firms, Messrs. Kuhn & Bro., and A. Parker & Co., have been for the past two weeks, and are still engaged, in cutting the drifts and obstructions that impede the navigation of the Calpoola river, from its head to this city, their intention being to float their logs down the stream to their mills, both Co.'s intending to put up mills on the banks of the river just above the Magnolia flouring mills. Large quantities of the finest lumber can be obtained on the headwaters of the river, and as the cost of getting logs to the mills will thus be reduced to a nominal figure, lumber of the best quality can be offered at a much lower figure than heretofore. But this undertaking of these gentlemen should receive the hearty co-operation of all parties owning lands along the river, as the clearing of the river of log-drifts will stop the accumulation of logs, brush, etc., which have heretofore more or less annoyed parties owning low lands, fronting on the river; it will save their fences from being washed off during high water, and be productive of other beneficial results which will readily suggest themselves to those interested in the matter. At last accounts, the party headed by Harry Kuhn, were making good headway, and in a few days hope to have all the drifts cut, so that they may be swept down by the first "rise" of Winter. We hope the undertaking may prove successful in the highest degree.

DARK NIGHTS—GHOSTS.—Latterly we have been enjoying superlatively dark nights—the very perfection of the "blackness of darkness"—darkness that could be felt, yea, almost cut with a knife—a density of blackness that softly fell down around you like a wall, shutting out all visible things. In all our experience heretofore we never undertook to penetrate such unutterable blackness. One of our oldest and most staid and sober citizens, got lost in going from the post-office to his residence, and was forced to call at the residence of another citizen and request his aid in finding his house. And this happened between six and seven o'clock in the evening. No wonder that ghosts are around, sending terror to the hearts of the timid, and making the strong use a little more expedition when passing the ghost-haunted territory. The nights have been really splendid for ghost manifestations; and as long as they continue, we may look for goblins, and spectres, and ghosts, singly and in platoons, the only thing remarkable about the matter being that but few are fortunate, or unfortunate, enough to get a sight at the show. We hope the ghosts will think better of it, and give the general public a chance to see 'em before they shut up shop.

GRAPES.—Friend Kezartee left, on our table, on Monday, a fine assortment of grapes, kindly sent us by Mr. Millard. They were raised in the splendid nursery owned by Mr. Millard just on the southern edge of the city. There is no man in the country that takes more delight in making his friends happy, than this same Millard, as we know from ocular demonstration, this not being the first time he has visited us with his bounty. If the warm thanks and the hearty good wishes of the print-shop will add to the happiness of our friend Millard, he most assuredly has a profusion of both.

PERSONAL.—Dr. Golden and family have been absent during the week, visiting relatives in Marion county.
