- 1. The Union Republican party of Oregon, in convention, makes this declaration of its principles and policy: 1. Monopoly Alarmists.

The Democratic party in Oregon, in their journals and public speeches, are making a hue and cry about monopolies and monopolists. They appeal to the people in the most pathetic language to be guarded against them. They pretend to see in Ben Holladay a most gigantic monopolist conspirator against the material interests and prosperity of the State. He is represented as "grinding the very life and soul out of the shipping business of Oregon;" he, assisted by the Republican party, is to turn the people over body and breeches into the grasp of a railroad monopoly, and thus enslave the people, absorb all of their lands, pocket all of their monies, destroy all of their temporal interests, and, possibly, send them all screeching like so many lost spirits, into Pluto's dark dominions. He is represented as having gulped down the Republican party of this State, body and brains, and now it speaks only as he dictates. All of this is simply transparent bosh and buncombe. He neither owns the Republican party, nor is he working against the interests of the State or people, if what he has done in the past may be taken as a criterion. He has certainly done more by his railroad projects and financial schemes to develop the resources of Oregon, than the combined influence of many, if not all of these would-be alarmists. While he has opened to the cities, towns and farms of the valley, safe and speedy transportation of their goods and productions to and from the marts of trade, at a reasonable compensation, thus increasing their value, and the value of their property, these same alarmists, these same Democrats, in the Halls of Legislation, have enacted laws by which a favored "ring" could pounce down upon the poor man's little possession of swamp land, and sweep him from its ownership; they have conferred the right upon a few select Democratic journals of the State, to extort from the "hard earnings" of the yeomanry thereof, a price for legal printing, which is from two to four times more than it is worth. It comes with ill grace from these "Litigant" monopolists, to be shrieking out "monopoly," "conspiracy," "treachery" and all that sort of thing against Holladay, or anybody else, while they are fattening from the proceeds of the most unjust and tyrannical extortion that was ever peddled off on a free people. It looks well in Democratic orators and writers to be mouthing out "sordid autocrat," and writing such epithets as "mercenary traitors," while all of them uphold, and many of them, possibly, claim possessions under the "Swamp Land" monopoly, which takes away the little patch of land with its years of labored cultivation from the poor settler, and turns him and his family out to poverty, and maybe beggary! Don't it look well for such men, for such a party, to "cry out and spare not" against monopoly, while they are watching and eagerly waiting for the opportunity to pounce down like hungry cormorants and rob the poor settler of his home? The assertion that Holladay dictated the platform of the late Republican Convention, and controlled its action, is utterly without foundation in fact. There never has been a convention held in this State, where the action was more free from dictation, and where the results gave greater satisfaction to the whole party, than was the case in the recent Portland convention; and this charge, that the Republican party in Oregon has placed itself at the mercy of Holladay, is simply an electioneering trick of the Democracy.

Schurz Collapsing.

Carl Schurz is said to be a high-toned gentleman. If so, egotism, domination, selfishness and vanity must form the principle constituents. Such a being must be very sensitive; and if sensitive, the chagrin of this high-toned German, just at this writing, cannot be very infinitesimal. His high-toned estimate of his own "greatness, grandeur and glory," lead him without hesitation, to arrogate within the parview of his own controlling the entire German influence of the country. His capacious pocket had but to be opened, and the German ballot would pour in mustily, for him to pour out at his own pleasure, or caprice. However, this tremendous wind-bag which he has blown up for himself, is being punctured very rapidly, and if he does not perceive the gas escaping, every body else does. Mr. Hessing, the leader of the German Republicans of the Northwest, gives the bag an effectual cut, when he says: "I do believe he (Schurz) is making a very great mistake in opposing the Administration in the manner in which he does. We cannot afford to be delivered over to the Democracy, which I believe will be the final result of the course he is pursuing. That has been our opinion. I do not mean to say that I think that will be the final result of his course, but merely that that is the tendency of what he is doing." This was published in the columns of the Tribune. This, however, is a "mild-pannered" cut in comparison with the tearing rip, rent in the bag by the Westliche Post, one of the most able and influential journals in the country, which is published at St. Louis. That journal recently had this item: "A GOOD ANSWER.—Among eighty answers to a prize question of the Lyceum at Athens, to-wit: Who is the nearest fellow? Casper Altmer won the prize by the following definition: 'He who, under the mask of a friend, insinuates himself into the confidence of a certain party, discovers its secrets, family affairs and sores, and then makes a weapon of them in order to keep in check that party which gave him its full confidence.'" The "unkindest cut of all," however, and one which seems to our thinking to let that wind-bag of egotism and assumption down to the limps of a shirt on a bean pole, was received, by his high-toned excellency, while on the French Arms committee. He was there asked to translate an editorial from a German paper printed in Berlin, which he acknowledged was the official organ of the German Government. The editorial set forth, "by authority," that the German Government "takes no interest, or at most a negative one, in the question Mr. Sumner has brought before the American Senate." In other words, the German Government has no complaint to urge against the American Government for permitting arms to find their way into the French nation, and has no words of thanks to offer Schurz, or anybody else for trying to kick up a fuss between the two nations.

MEXICO.

News from Mexico on the 7th announces that the States of San Luis Potosi, Sacerad and Durango are again in possession of the Government. The revolutionary cause is again thought to be hopeless. As a result of the revolution, most terrible anarchy exists throughout the country. The resolutions in the U. S. Congress created no sensation in the city of Mexico. The wife of U. S. Minister to Mexico, Nelson, died suddenly of heart disease on the 22d ult., in a railroad car, while on a pleasure trip. French of the city of Mexico have subscribed $41,000 toward the payment of the French indemnity.

Democratic State Convention.

Little Johnny Burnett, of Benton county, according to the dispatches received here on Thursday, has received the nomination for Congress at the hands of the Democratic State Convention. We were in hopes the Young Lion of Linn would receive the nomination, for then there would have been something to defeat—but Burnett, fough! But bring on your straws men if they are the best you have. Shaw, of Marion county, received the nomination for District Attorney for the third District. Lane, Gates and Helm are the Presidential Electors. PREVENTION OF SMALL POX.—A German physician is said to have lately stated the theory that the fatal disease of small pox originates from an excess of albuminous matter in the blood, and that this is to be prevented by the administration of common salt. It is further added that he holds views as follows: The habits of children in indulging over freely in sweetmeats is one great cause of this undue development of albumen, and coffee and tea, if highly sugared, tend also to excite it in adults. An organic acid, such as lemon juice, is the best means of freeing the blood when clogged up with too much albumen, and by taking these simple remedies in the way of precaution, he has, for upwards of twelve years, frequented or taken up his abode in the most pestilential small pox hospitals of Europe and North America with entire impunity.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The coal beds of Missouri are said to cover an area of 2,700 square miles, mostly in the north-west. The Louisville Daily Ledger has just given up the ghost after sinking from $30,000 to $4,000 in one year. Three Turks, ten Greeks, six Portuguese and five Sandwich Islanders, have an existence as citizens of Chicago. The Californians are luxuriating in strawberries and cream. There are over 20,000 Chinese now residing in San Francisco. The marine losses of the United States for 1871 amounted to $19,500,000. Col. King, of Texas, has a little farm of 84,132 acres, stocked with 65,000 cattle, 10,000 horses, 7,000 sheep and 8,000 goats. St. Louis claims an increase of 40,000 in population since the last census. The world is said to use 250,000,000 pounds of tea each year, and 748,000,000 pounds of coffee. China furnishes nearly all the tea, and Brazil over one half of the coffee. The Chicago Post says that Tweed expects to go to Saturn when he dies—so that he can join one of the rings. Fishback publicly announces that the Missouri Democrat, under his management, will support the renomination and election of Grant. A wretched old bachelor says: "After all, a woman's heart is the sweetest thing in the world; it's a perfect honeycomb—full of cells." A charitable society in the West has a novel and most agreeable method of raising money for various benevolent objects. Any man sufficiently blessed with courage and ready cash, takes his seat in the middle of the room and pays ten cents into the treasury for every lady that will kiss him. Of course the devotion of the ladies to the good cause is measured by the number of smacks that the man gets, and the "cash" must take all the credit and all the blame for the kissing—a very nice arrangement for shifting the responsibility. A handsome and agreeable man now we imagine, must needs be well furnished with dimes at these fair.
