TREADWELL & CO.

with the old standard

HARVESTING MACHINES

so popular with all California farmers, with all the latest improvements, and many new ones for the harvest of '72.

The Wood's Prize Mowers

and Wood's Improved Self-Rake Reapers.

These machines are indisputably THE BEST IN THE WORLD. As a harvester, the Wood's Improved Prize Mower is confessedly without an equal yet before the country. These machines have been improved since first introduced, until they are now almost entirely a new machine. They are made by Walter A. Wood the largest manufacturer of Farming Machinery in the world—a man who keeps "up with the times," and who now builds and sells over twenty-five thousand of the World's Prize Mowers annually. It led the world at the Paris Exposition, and has found no peer since.

The Wood's Improved Prize Mower is especially adapted to Oregon. It has a folding or jointed bar with hand levers, two wheels, spring seat, and is made almost entirely of malleable iron, hard wood and steel. It is heavy, strong and durable, and though compact and powerful, is of lighter draft than the other machines of equal weight. It is every way just the Mower for Oregon, as every farmer will say who has one. And its price $110 is from $25 to $30 less than is asked for any other make. Farmers, will you pay that difference? Investigate before you buy, and see if you are getting anything for that extra price!—for if a profit, as no Mower costs more to build than does Wood's, send for a pamphlet before buying.

"Buy the Best."

Buy the Wood's Improved Prize Mower!

We offer also the

from 10 to 13 feet cut, improved by Walter A. Wood, having not only all the advantages of the old Illinois machine, but Wood's improvements, and also Doane's Adjustable Reel.

No other Header has these improvements, and no other parties sell them. They are made especially for this coast, by Wood, at Hoosick Fall, N. Y.

The Kirby Self-Rake Reaper and Mower.

These machines are too well known to need description. Also the "KIRBY CLIPPER MOWER," price $75—the cheapest and for many purposes the best in the market.

A Doctor's Trick.

If we have any cross-eyed boy readers, perhaps they will like to read this little incident which is related in the Evening Mail:

A surgeon of this city was once driving home, with a medical friend, from one of the large up-town hospitals. He had just been performing a critical operation upon the eye. As he passed one of the villages of shanties that we have described he noticed a company of ragged children playing upon the rock—unkempt little rascals—who gambolled like so many wild goats upon the broken ground. One of them was cross-eyed. The surgeon cast a professional glance upon him, and immediately conceived the idea of playing a scientific joke upon the youngster for his benefit. Reining up his horse, he said:

"See here, my boy; don't you want to have your eyes straightened, so that you will look like the other boys?"

"Yes, sir!" answered Mickey.

"Then jump right up here, and I'll straighten them for you in a half a minute."

And the doctor slyly opened his case of instruments, taking care that the little fellow should not see what he was doing.

Mike approached the carriage with the suspicious step of childhood, but the commanding air of the surgeon magnetized him, and he began to climb the steps of the brougham. Just then he caught a glimpse of the glittering steel and endeavored to retreat, but he was too late. The two doctors seized their struggling prize and pinioned him between them. The other youngsters looked on, a ring of horrified spectators, as in a twinkling the sharp scalpel flashed in the face of the captive. His screams were of no avail; the adventurous surgeon instantly made the necessary incisions, and in less than sixty seconds he had performed, somewhat hastily, it is true, the operation for "convergent strabismus," had straightened the boy's eyes against his will, and had set him down among his playmates again. Then touching up his pointer the doctor whirled off around the corner before the indignant parents could arrive upon the scene.

The Great Mission of Woman.

Blackwood's magazine, one of the most popular literary publications that emanate from the press of the Old World, thus gives its estimate of the work assigned to woman:

"Great indeed is the task assigned to woman! Who can elevate it? Not to make laws, not to lead armies, not to govern empires; but to form those by whom laws are made, armies led, and empires governed; to guard against the slightest taint of bodily infirmity, the frail, yet spotless creature, whose moral, no less than physical being, must be derived from her; to inspire those principles, to inculcate those doctrines, to animate those sentiments which generations yet unborn and nations yet uncivilized will learn to bless; to soften firmness into mercy, and chasen honor into refinement; by a soothing care to allay the anguish of the body, and the far worse anguish of the mind; by her tenderness to disarm passion; by her purity to triumph over sense; to cheer the scholar sinking under his toil; to be compensation for friends that has passed away. Such is her vocation. The couch of the tortured sufferer, the prison of the deserted friend, the cross of the rejected Saviour—these are the scenes on which her greatest triumphs have been achieved. Such is her destiny; to visit the forsaken; to tend to the neglected when monarchs betray, when justice prosecutes, when brethren and disciples flee to remain unshaken and undaunted, and to exhibit in this lower world a type of love, constant, pure, inflexible, which in another we are taught to believe the best of virtue.

FOR CHARLIE'S SAKE.—"Some years ago, in war time," said Mr. Moody, "a well-known Judge, who interested himself for the welfare of the suffering soldiers, resolved that while a certain case was pending, he would turn away all applicants for charity, that he might devote himself wholly to the duties of the profession.

One day a soldier came into his office, poorly clad, his face bearing the deep lines of suffering. The Judge, pretending not to notice him, continued his work. The soldier fumbled in his pocket for a long time, and then in an uncertain, disappointed voice, as though he saw that he was unwellcome, "I did have a letter for you." The Judge acting against the prompting of a warm, generous heart, made no reply. Presently a thin, trembling hand pushed a note along the desk. The Judge raised his face slightly, and was about to say, "I have no time for such matters as those," when he discovered the writing was that of his own son, a soldier in the army. He took up the note. It read in substance:—"Dear Father: the bearer is a soldier, discharged from the hospital. He is going home to die. Assist him in any way you can, for Charlie's sake."

All the tender emotions of his soul were laid open. He said to a friend afterwards, "I took the soldier to my heart, for Charlie's sake; I let him sleep in Charlie's bed; I clothed him, and supplied him with every comfort, for the sake of my own dear boy."

My friends, God will never turn the needy away without a blessing, for his dear Son's sake—for Jesus' sake; and a believing prayer, offered in his name will ever prevail before the throne."

Honest and courageous people have very little to say about either courage or honesty. The sun has no need to boast of his brightness, nor the moon of her effulgence,
