Galvanic Anemia Supporter
—AND—
FURINE REGULATOR.

THE MERITS OF THIS INSTRUMENT
I consist principally in the support it gives to the abdomen and spine. The belt is broad, supported by suspenders passing over the shoulders, and kept in shape by saturating galvanic plates, which give a pleasant current.
The Regulator is also Galvanic; its Cup and Nozzle are made of Silver; its Stem of Copper and Zinc; in hollow, this instrument may be thrown through it, or into the neck of the Uterus. It can be so regulated by its thumb-screw as to meet any malposi-tion of the Uterus, and is unequalled in meeting any form of female disease.
Price, 25c. Patent August 12, 1871, by W. S. VanCleve, Centralia, Illinois.

HARD YEARS.—A lot of young fellows were trying their skill at story telling a few days ago. Among the numerous stories told on the occasion were the following hard crust kind of yarns:

Bill said: I know a tree that seven men chopped at for seven weeks, and they took a notion to go round and look at the other side. They traveled four days and then came to a party of forty, who had been chopping at it for four months and had not got half way through.

Tom said: I remember it well. It was an oak, and five millions of hogs were fattened yearly on the acorns that fell from it!

Sam said: The tree was at length cut down and five hundred saw mills have worked on it for two years and it is not half cut up yet. Two new towns, five bridges, and nearly a thousand barns, have been built with the lumber it has produced. The chips in cutting it down when closely heaped, measured four million cords, and have supplied two furnaces with charcoal for the last two years.

Jack said: Deacon Brown afterwards dug out the stump and turned the place into a pasture field. He kept so many cows on it that he made a million pounds of butter and nearly as much cheese every year.

Now came Joe Moore's turn. Drawing himself up, he said: Wa'al, I dunno how many pounds of butter and cheese Deacon Brown makes a year; but I do know that he runs the five hundred saw mills Sam mentioned by butter milk power.

ROLLING STONES.—Many of our readers have doubtless heard of the famous traveling stone of Australia.
Similar curiosities have also been found in Nevada, which are described as almost perfectly round, the majority of them as large as a walnut, and of an iron nature. When distributed about the floor, table, or other level surface, within two or three feet of each other, they immediately begin traveling toward a common centre, and there huddle up in a bunch, like a lot of eggs in a nest. A single stone, removed to the distance of three and a half feet, being released, at once started off, with wonderful and somewhat comical celerity to join its fellows; taken away four or five feet, it remained motionless. They are found in a region that is comparatively level, and is nothing but bare rock. Scattered over this barren region are little basins, from a foot to a rod in diameter, and it is in the bottom of these that rolling stones are found. They are from the size of a pea to five or six inches in diameter. The cause of these stones rolling together is doubtless to be found in the material of which they are composed, which appears to be loadstone or magnetic iron ore. "Rolling stones gather no moss." —Scientific American.

WHY SOME ARE POOR.—Cream is allowed to mould and spoil. Silver spoons are used to scrape kettles.
The scrubbing brush is left in the water. Nice-handled knives are thrown in hot water. Brooms are never hung up and are soon spoiled. Dishcloths are thrown where mice can destroy them. Tubs and barrels are left in the sun to dry and fall apart. Clothes are left on the line to whip to pieces in the wind. Pie crust is left to sour instead of making a few tarts for tea.
Briar fruit is not taken care of in season, and becomes wormy. Vegetables are thrown away that would warm for breakfast. The cork is left take of the molasses jug, and the flies take possession. Bits of meat are thrown out that would make hashed meat or hash. Coffee, tea, pepper and spices are left to stand open and lose their strength. Pork spoils for the want of salt, from floating on the top of the brine, and because the brine wants scalding. —California Farmer.

Gen. Sigel, who is too well known in Missouri to need an endorsement, and who has many friends here who are just as willing as ever to "fight mit Sigel," has no idea of being carried around in Schurz's breeches pocket.
A recent New York letter says:
"Senator Schurz's efforts to alienate the Germans from the President have not been successful in this quarter.
Gen. Sigel is a warm friend of the administration, though he holds no office under it. He has done all in his power to neutralize Senator Schurz's endeavors, and the Germans in New York are with him. Schurz's complete breakdown in his efforts to prove that the administration sold arms to the French Government, has placed him in an unenviable position before his own countrymen. He has been set down as a dangerous mischief-maker, who, to gratify his personal revenge, would, if possible, involve his adopted country in war with his native land." —St. Louis Democrat.

A mild-mannered Missouri writer says of the opponents of the passive policy: "Ha! ha! Their ears would do for steeples to nigger meeting-houses. All this bust-head oratory, this gabbling on the defunct whinies of twenty years ago, is simply windmill charging—if persisted in; only rattle of the clois on their own, our own political collins—only the slashes of the crazy spades that will dig themselves a sepulcher, from whose bottomless depths no legion of Gabriels, though with a heaven-cracking blast, shall ever resurrect them."

The next transit of Venus across the sun will occur in December, 1874.
This will be in the second year of Grant's second term.

ASK MY WIFE.—A correspondent tells the following in the Albany Argus:

Riding horseback just at night, through the woods of Saginaw county, Michigan, I came into a clearing in the midst of which stood a log house, its owner sitting in the open door smoking his pipe. Stopping my horse before him the following conversation ensued:

"Good evening, sir," said I.
"Good evening."
"Can I get a glass of milk of you to drink?"
"Well, I don't know. Ask the old woman."

By this time the wife was by his side.
While drinking it I asked:
"Think we are going to have a storm?"
"Well, I really don't know. Ask the old woman—she can tell."
"I guess we shall have one right away," said the wife.

Again I asked:
"How much land have you got cleared here?"
"Well, really I don't know. Ask the old woman—she knows."
"About nineteen acres," said she again answering.

Just then a troop of children came running and shouting around the corner of the shanty.
"All those your children?" said I.
"Don't know. Ask the old woman—she knows."

I didn't wait to hear her reply, but drew rein and left immediately.

RETURNED TO STAY.—Lately when the body of George Kirk was lying at Wilson & Brown's undertaking establishment on B street, Virginia City, a man who appeared to be a stranger in the city, seeing something of a crowd about the door, approached and looked in at the body lying in the coffin.
"Man dead?" asked he of a person standing near.

"Yes, sir," shortly answered he who was questioned.
Fidgetting a little, the stranger tried again, "How did he die?"
"Hung," was the laconic reply.
"Hung! Ah, hung himself?"
"No; he was hung by the Vigi-lantes."

Stranger again—"What did they hang him for?"
"He had been notified to leave the town, and he came back."
"When a man has been notified to leave, can't he come back here again and stay?"
"Yes, sir."
"Yes! Then how is this?"
"Well, he came back, and—pointing to the coffin—"you see he stayed."

A SHORT SERMON.—Here is a bit of philosophy worth reading. It is an exposure of a very common delusion. It is a good rendering of an old idea:

"Two things ought to be strongly impressed upon young people of our country. The insecurity of riches, even when acquired, and their unsatisfying character. There is no fallacy so universally cherished as the notion that wealth is surely a means of happiness. The care of a large property is one of the most burdensome of earth's trials. The only material good which comes from any estate is to be made out of a moderate income far more easily than a large one, and with fewer attendant disadvantages. Few thoughtful men would undergo the entire stewardship of a large estate on a positive bargain that they should receive no more for taking care of it than ordinarily falls into the lap of the owner. The scramble after wealth is due to a wrong estimate of good when it is gained."

DO NOT RIDICULE CHILDREN.— Children often seem to say very absurd things, for which they are ridiculed or abashed. Nothing, however, can be more cruel than this, for the child has merely done what many a philosopher has done before him, jumped to a wrong conclusion; and if instead of being ridiculed and made to distrust himself, and avoid the venturing of his little speculations before us in future, had we been at the trouble of examining his notions, we should have discovered how naturally, perhaps, the idea had arisen, or how ingeniously, through a lack of knowledge, the little mind had put together incongruous things.

The following is not a new story, but is a true one and will bear repeating we think:

Years ago into a who'sale grocery store in Boston walked a tall, muscular-looking, raw-boned man, evidently a fresh comer from some back town in Maine or New Hampshire. Accosting the first person he met, who happened to be the merchant himself, he asked:

"You don't want to hire a man in your store, do you?"
"Well," said the merchant, "I don't know; what can you do?"
"Do," said the man, "I rather guess I can turn my hand to almost anything. What do you want done?"

"Well—if I was to hire a man it would be one that could lift well, a strong, wiry fellow; one for instance that could shoulder a sack of coffee like that yonder, and carry it down."

"There now, captin'," said our countryman, "that's just me. I can lift anything I hitch to; you can't set me. What will you give for a man that can suit you?"
"I tell you," said the merchant, "if you will shoulder that sack of coffee and carry it across the store and never lay it down, I will hire you for a year at $100 per month."
"Done," said the stranger, and by this time every clerk in the store had gathered around and were waiting to join in the laugh against the man, who, walking up to the sack, threw it across his shoulder with perfect ease as it was not extremely heavy; and walking with it twice across the store, went quietly to a large hook which was fastened to the wall, and hanging the sack upon it turned to the merchant and said:

"There now, it may hang there till doom's day; I shan't never lay it down. What shall I go about?
Just give me plenty of work and $100 a month and its all right."
The clerks broke into a laugh, but out of the other sides of their mouths, and the merchant, discomfited yet satisfied, kept to his agreement, and to-day the green countryman is the senior partner in the firm, and worth a half-million dollars.

Payment of Small Bills.
The payment of small bills is a matter of much more importance than is generally attached to it.
There are not a few who, in times when business is a little depressed and the prospect for the future seems more than usually unsettled, will hold on to their cash in hand and tell all the collectors who wait on them with overdue bills to "call again," while the payment would not give them any serious inconvenience and would accommodate a large and deserving class of creditors. Indeed, we know of nothing that in a quiet way would go so far to give animation to the markets throughout the country as the universal fulfillment of obligations at the first opportunity. If all the little debts for the discharge of which the debtors now have the cash actually on hand were paid at once, the wheels of business would be lubricated and a "general jollity" soon prevail throughout the land. The first serious effect on trade of any public excitement comes from the sudden check of those little streams. It is true the large transactions are arrested, but if every body went to paying these little debts the check would be momentary, as business would be forced along the current thus continually renewed. Let every man whose eyes fall on these lines pay out his ready money for bills he knows to be due, and not stop until his pocket-ets are emptied. Probably before this is realized the return current will reach his pocket, too, and he be able to fill his obligations.
There is as much money as ever; as much currency as ever. Who stops its flow? Let it move on for a prompt payment of bill's now due, and new business will catch the inspiration and start off upon a fresh gallop. —New York Journal of Commerce.

On the 28th, a very pleasant occurrence took place in the Illinois State Senate. Lieut. Gov. Dougherty was made the recipient of a very fine silver coffee urn, in token of the esteem in which that gentleman is held by them.
The presentation speech was made by one of the pages, and was neatly answered by the Lieut. Governor, who was taken entirely by surprise.
