Galvanic Abdominal Supporter
-AND-
UTERINE REGULATOR.

THE MERITS OF THIS INSTRUMENT consist principally in the support it gives to the abdomen and spine. The belt is broad, supported by suspenders passing over the shoulders, and kept in shape by self-generating Galvanic Plates, which give a constant current.
The Regulator is also Galvanic: its Cup and Nozzles are made of Silver; its Stem of Copper and Zinc, is hollow, that injections may be thrown through it, or into the neck of the Uterus. It can be so regulated by its thumb-screw as to meet any mal-position of the Uterus, and is unequalled in meeting any form of female disease.
Price, $25. Patent August 15, 1871, by W. S. VanCleave, Central, Illinois.

Territory for Sale, or will receive Royalty for manufacture.
For State or Territorial rights to manufacture and sell on the Pacific Coast, apply to COLL. VAN CLEVE, Albany, Oregon.

Laughing.

Laugh, boys! a hearty, joyous, ringing laugh, that sends the blood gaily coursing along the veins and arteries, giving life and vigor to every nook and corner of the system. "Laugh and grow fat," and plump, like the gay lambs that frisk and gambol on the hillside in the joyous spring, or like the rollicking kittens, as they roll and tumble on the mat, as if to show their proud mother, sitting near, and watching their movements, how easily and naturally they learn their first lessons in cat gymnastics.
Laugh; but you need never indulge in a coarse "hor-e-laugh,"—a simple, reminding one of the bray-ing of a donkey, or a steam whistle!
Laugh like a boy, a wide-awake, stirring boy, one ready for business, labor, errands; ready to bring a pail of water for mother, gather flowers for sister, or any honest and useful labor, physical or mental.
Laugh, but not simply to make a noise, or because it is expected that you will, but because you cannot help it; because you are overflowing with good-nature, with not a cubic inch more of room to contain your joyous feelings,—a most ready to burst; filled with kindly feelings towards brothers and sisters, parents and friends, schoolmates and playmates, all with whom you come in daily contact.

Yes, and let the girls laugh, and expand the chest, inflate the lungs, rouse the energies, enkindle kindly emotions, encircle the whole countenance with an ample wreath of smiles. Give me the boy or girl that smiles as soon as the first rays of the joyous morning sun glances in through the windows, gay, happy, and kind. Such a boy will be it to "make up" into a man—at least when contrasted with a sullen, morose, "crabbed" fellow, who snaps and snarls like a surly cur, or growls and grunts like an unamiable hyena, from the moment he opens his red and angry eyes till he is "comforted" by his breakfast.
Such a girl, other things being favorable, will be good material to aid in gladdening some comfortable home, or to refine, civilize, tame, and humanize a rude brother, making him more gentle, affectionate, and lovable. It is a feast to even look at such a joy-inspiring girl, such a woman bud, and see the smiles, flowing, so to speak, from her parted lips, displaying a set of clean, well brushed teeth, looking almost the personification of beauty and goodness, singing, and as merry as the birds, the wide-awake birds that commenced their morning concert long before the lazy boys dreamed that the glorious sun was approaching, and about to pour a whole flood of joy-inspiring light and warmth upon the earth. Such a girl is like a gentle shower to the parched earth, bestowing kind words, sweet smiles, and acts of mercy all around—the joy and light of the household.

It has been well said, "there are two muscles to raise the upper lip, one in laughter, and only one to draw it down; therefore we should laugh twice to cry once." There may be a time for weeping, and even for mourning and melancholy; yet cheerfulness, good nature, and joy are far more favorable to the health of the body and mind. Excessive grief often arrests the action of the stomach, and produces disease. The cheerful and hopeful are far more healthy than the morose, the sour, the fretful, and the scolding mortals; who never see the sunlight of cheerfulness or sociability, but who scow-l and frown, "look daggers," and feel two edged swords towards all who dare to come within reach of them.—Oliver Optic's Magazine.

Kinderhook, Illinois, possesses the champion preacher. A few Sundays since he preached an eloquent sermon, and at the conclusion exhorted his hearers to embrace the opportunity presented. None came forward, and after waiting some time the minister, raising his voice to the highest pitch, exclaimed, "Well, sit there and be damned!" On the same Sunday he called out to the janitor, "Open that window; I don't like to preach in a barrel with the bung drove in!" a private pocket, and don't endeavor to show it unless you are asked what o'clock it is.

Eggs vs. Meat.

Would it not be wise to substitute more eggs for meat in our daily diet? About one-third of the weight of an egg is solid nutriment.
This is more than can be said of meat. There is no bones and tough pieces that have to be laid aside.
A good egg is made up of ten parts shell, sixty parts white, and thirty parts yolk. The white of an egg contains eighty-six per cent. of water; the yolk fifty-two per cent. The average weight of an egg is about two ounces. Practically an egg is animal food, and yet there is none of the disagreeable work of the butcher necessary to obtain it. The vegetarians of England use eggs freely, and many of these men are eighty and ninety years old, and have been remarkably free from illness. A good egg is a live. The shell is porous, and the oxygen of the air goes through the shell and keeps up a sort of respiration. An egg soon becomes stale in bad air, or in dry air charged with carbonic acid. Eggs may be dried and made to retain their goodness for a long time, or the shell may be varnished, which excludes the air, when, if kept at a proper temperature, they may be kept good for years. The French people produce more eggs than any other, and ship millions of them to England annually. Fresh eggs are more transparent at the center, old ones on the top. Very old ones are not transparent in either place. In water in which one-tenth of salt has been dissolved, good eggs sink, and indifferent ones swim. Bad eggs float in pure water. The best eggs are laid by young healthy hens. If they are properly fed the eggs are better than if they are allowed to eat all sorts of food.

Eggs are best when cooked about four minutes. This takes away the animal taste that is offensive to some, but does not so harden the white or yolk as to make them hard to digest. An egg if cooked very hard is difficult of digestion, except by those with stout stomachs; such eggs should be eaten with bread and masticated very finely. An excellent sandwich can be made with eggs and brown bread. An egg spread on toast is food fit for a king, if kings deserve any better food than any body else, which is some than boiled ones. An egg doubtful. Fried eggs are less whole-dropped into hot water is not only clean and handsome but a delicious morsel. Most of people spoil the taste of their eggs by adding pepper and salt. A little sweet butter is the best dressing. Eggs contain much phosphorus, which is supposed to be useful to those who use their brains much.—Herald of Health.

A Female Atrocity.

A gentleman in the city of London, after having buried six husbands, found a gentleman lady enough to make her a wife once more. For several months their happiness was mutual, a circumstance which seemed to pay no great compliment to the former partners of her bed, who, as she said, had disgusted her by their softness and infidelity. In the view of knowing the real character of his amorous mate, the gentleman began frequently to absent himself, to return at late hours, and when he did return, to appear as if intoxicated.

At first reproaches but afterward menaces were the consequences of this conduct. The gentleman persisted and seemed every day to become more addicted to his bottle.
One evening, when she imagined him dead drunk, she unsewed a leaden weight from one of the sleeves of her gown, and, having melted it, she approached her husband, who pretended still to be sound asleep, in order to pour it into his ear through a pipe.

Convinced of her wickedness, the gentleman started up and seized her; when, having procured assistance, he secured her till the morning, and conducted her before a magistrate, who committed her to prison. The bodies of her six husbands were dug up, and as marks of violence were still discoverable upon each of them, the proof of her guilt appeared so strong upon her trial that she was condemned and executed.

Death of the King of Smokers.

Mr. Klaes, known by the name of "King of the Smokers," died recently near Rotterdam, Holland.
Mr. Klaes had, according to the Belgian papers, amassed a large fortune in the linen trade, and one portion of a mansion he had erected near Rotterdam was devoted to the arrangement of a collection of pipes according to their nationality and chronological order. By his will, which he executed shortly before his death, he directed that all the smokers of the country should be invited to his funeral, and that each one should be presented with ten pounds of tobacco and two Dutch pipes of the newest fashion, on which should be engraved the name, arms, and date of the decease of the testator. His relatives, friends and funeral guests were strictly enjoined to keep their pipes well lighted during the funeral procession and ceremony, and afterwards empty the ashes from their pipes on the coffin. The poor of the neighborhood who attended to his wishes were to receive annually, on the anniversary of his death, ten pounds of tobacco and a small cask of good beer. He further directed that his oak coffin should be lined with the cedar of his old Havana cigar boxes, and that a box of French caporal and a packet of old Dutch tobacco should be placed at the foot of his coffin. His favorite pipe was to be placed by his side, with a box of matches, a flint and steel, and some tinder—for, as he said, there was no knowing what might happen.
It has been calculated that the deceased gentleman during his eighty years of life, smoked more than four tons of tobacco, and drank about 500,000 quarts of beer.

The Fascination of Chewing Betel Nut.

There is a fascination in betel nut more extraordinary than tobacco passion. The consumption of the latter in chewing alone, in the United States, is a modern phenomenon. An invertate chewer may have moral resolution enough to break off the habit, though it rarely happens that an effort is made to do so, as an apology is found for continuing a practice that is positively destroying the foundations of health. Once addicted to chewing tobacco, to abandon it is an achievement few have the happiness to overcome, notwithstanding the melancholy mortality in the meridian of life who are constantly being destroyed by the subtle influence of that strange plant on the nervous system. Thus sudden palsy of the heart, palsy of a limb, palsy of one half the tongue, and even instantaneous death, are traceable by physicians to excessive use of tobacco.
But the vice of betel nut chewing, however, is still more remarkable.
When the habit is established there seems no retreat. Each victim, when out his teeth, gums, digestion, and dies with an insatiable longing for another quid. Betel nut trees thrive in most parts of tropical India, the Indian archipelago and the Philippine Islands. They grow up gracefully about thirty feet, rarely more than eight inches in diameter. It is a palm, areca catechu. Penang is the universal name of the nut in those parts where it is produced, hence penang means a betel nut island. At six years of age they commence bearing nuts the size of a small pullet's egg, of a bright yellow color, enclosed in a husk similar to the cocoa-nut; within is a spherical nut, very much like a nutmeg.
Broken, a bit of it is wrapped up with a piece of unsalted lime in a peculiar leaf, the siri betel-piper, paper, extensively cultivated for that purpose.
The gums and mucous membrane of the mouth are quickly stained a brick-red, the teeth crumble to a level with the gums, and in that condition an inebriate betel chewer is wretched without a supply. There are large plantations of betel nut trees in Java to meet the demand for home consumption and distant provinces. To augment the pleasure, those who can afford it add tobacco to the lime. A morbid craving for either betel nut or tobacco are sources of immense revenue to many governments. Neither reasons nor appeals to the intelligence of chewers, who are shortening their days by an excessive indulgence, have ever had the slightest influence in convincing them that they were violating a law of organic life. Science fails to explain the cause of our intense morbid craving for vegetable narcotics so potent as tobacco and betel nuts.—

A Topka merchant mixes business and pleasure by announcing on his sign—"John Smith, dry goods; wishes to get married."

The entire assets of a recent bankrupt were nine children. His creditors resolved to act magnanimously, and let him keep them.

"It isn't hard work when I do it for mamma," she said softly.
How true it is that love makes labor sweet.
