SAN FRANCISCO—AGRICULT.

In the Field Again.

TREADWELL & CO. with the old standard HARVESTING MACHINES so popular with all California farmers, with all the latest improvements, and many new ones for the harvest of '72.

The Wood's Prize Mowers

These machines are indisputably THE BEST IN THE WORLD. As a harvester, the Wood's Improved Prize Mower is confessedly without an equal yet before the country. These machines have been improved since first introduced, and they are now almost entirely a new machine. They are made by Walter A. Wood, the largest manufacturer of Farming Machinery in the world—a man who keeps "run with the times," and who now builds and sells over twenty-five thousand of the World's Prize Mowers annually. It led the world at the Paris Exposition, and has found no peer since.

The Wood's Improved Prize Mower is especially adapted to Oregon. It has a folding or jointed bar with hand lever, so that it can be sprung out, and is made almost entirely of malleable iron, hard wood and steel. It is heavy, strong and durable, and though compact and powerful, is of lighter draft than the other machines of equal weight. It is every way just the Mower for Oregon, as every farmer will say who has one. And its price ($120) is from $15 to $25 less than is asked for an inferior machine. Farmers, will you buy that difference? Investigate before you buy, and see if you are getting anything for that extra profit. It is a profit, as no Mower costs more to build than does Wood's. Send for a pamphlet before buying.

"Buy the Best," Buy the Wood's Improved Prize Mower!

We offer also the GENUINE HAINE'S HEADERS, from 10 to 15 feet cut, improved by Walter A. Wood, having not only all the advantages of the old Illinois machine, but Wood's improvements, and also Doane's Adjustable Reel. No other Header has these improvements, and no other parties sell them. They are made especially for this coast, by Wood, at Hoosick Falls, N. Y.

The Kirby Self-Rake Reaper and Mower.

These machines are too well known to need description. Also the "KIRBY CLIPPER MOWER," price $75—the cheapest and for many purposes the best in the market.

ALL SIZES Hoadley's PORTABLE Engines TREADWELL & CO. Sole Agents

"The Hoadley" is the perfection of the Portable Engine. As a Threshing Engine they have long led all others, until now scarcely any other is to be found.

Russell's Thresher, (IMPROVED)

they make the most complete set of threshing machinery in the world. "The Russell," as improved, cannot be equalled in the country. We are sole agents for the sale of these celebrated threshers, and have had them built expressly for this coast. Ask any farmer who has a Russell Thresher, what he thinks of it.

Home Words.

Kind words cost nothing, yet how prone men forget them! Often one goes on his weary way, full of care and full of grief, feeling that for him all is trouble and all is toil, when but a simple word of encouragement or a look of sympathy would cheer his soul, and rouse him from despair. A child will often dry its tears when kindly spoken to, and soon will fade away its childish sorrow.

Each one of the sons of men would only speak a single word of kindness or of consolation in a fellow mortal's ear between the gray dawn of evening, how would the burdens of the cares of life lighten! how would the shadows flee from off men's brows? A gentle word can never lose its power. Its sweet fragrance will gently float along the coming years—long after the tongue which uttered it has moldered in the dust.

Often the despairing and hopeless being has been snatched from the very edge of the suicide's grave by the power of a loving word of cheer and sympathy. He stops and lists; the sound of a melodious human voice whispering its comfort break on his ear, and melt his hardened heart, as they float along like the strains of far-off music on the calm air of night. He turns; the abyss of despair no longer yawns before his stumbling feet, and he is saved. An erring one may be reclaimed from the paths of sin, and almost from the regions of the lost, by an arm of love stretched out for rescue. Speaking a kind word here and there is like scattering seeds upon the broken ground, which in due season will bear fruit.

How desirable is the presence of one who has ever laughing on his lips, ready for utterance, a word of love. His entrance into any place is like a bright dancing sunbeam, warming the hearts and reviving the spirits of all. Eyes sparkle with joy when he approaches, and shadows flee away. When death snatches one from our household, and we gaze upon the features of our departed dear one, then we will never regret the gentle words spoken and the kind acts done; but we will regret every unkind sentence that has ever issued from our lips.

Decorate Your Homes.

There is a reckless disregard of the many little attractions which may, in our State, be thrown around a home with but little outlay of time or labor. Evergreens are growing wild on our mountains in vast abundance, which may be easily transplanted, and which lend a charm to the dooryard, in winter, by breaking the dreary monotony which would otherwise prevail, as well as make a shady retreat from the heat of summer. Lumber is cheap, with which to build arbors and other resorts, picturesque and attractive, and surround all with a fence, neat and useful. There is nothing to hinder those living here, having their homes neat, attractive and inviting; and yet it is rarely that we see a home decorated with these adornments. Why is this so? Are our farmers more regardless of the happiness and pleasures of their families than those of other States? We incline to think not, but that they have rather become careless and negligent of these matters. Most fathers would, if they realized the attractions which a really handsome home holds to a child, spend the requisite time and money in its decoration, but having become used to the bare yards and dilapidated fences, pass them by unmindful of the duty devolving upon them. Many a child would be saved from an early abandonment of home and a life of dissipation by a little care on the part of the parents in this one particular.—Oregon Republican.

The Two Cups.

At a recent communion service, before passing the cup, over which thanks had been given, the pastor said, "There is a cup of which we read in the Scriptures, concerning which it is said, 'Look not upon the wine when it is red, when it moveth itself aright, when it giveth its color in the cup. At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.' That cup, through a terrible mistake, has frequently found its way to the Lord's Table! The cup which we now pass to you, my brethren, contains no alcohol, no serpent, no adder. This liquid which you now put to your lips is the unfermented juice of the grape, similar to what our Savior used when he instituted this sacred ordinance, and which he called, as if to avoid mistakes, 'the fruit of the vine.' The other cup we would not dare to offer you. It contains alcohol, poison, death; and is no fit symbol of the Savior's blood, which has life in it; nor did our Lord intend that such wine should be supplied by his followers at his table or anywhere else. Some of you have been reclaimed from intemperate habits. You need not fear to put this cup to your lips. In it there is no alcohol to set your veins on fire, and awaken the appetite which a divine grace has conquered."—Not. Baptist.

A poor lame lady was once obliged to send her little boy, only eight years old, on an errand, late at night. On his return, he came running into the house, quite frightened, and on being asked what was the trouble, said, "There were two men behind me, and I could smell tobacco-smoke all the way, and just as we turned the corner, they began to swear, and I ran away from it." That's it, boys, run away from it; and you can not run too far nor too far. When you run away from smoking, drinking, and swearing, you are sure to be running away from many other bad things. Run away from tobacco, and whisky, and swearing before they run away with you.—Youth's Temperance Banner.

The Japanese Embassy.

The Japanese are evidently an enterprising people, and are blessed with a government which is fully aware of and determined to possess the advantages of western civilization. Their dignitaries, including the young emperor, in their speeches, frequently term the Christian people of the world "the more enlightened nations," a very suggestive fact, contrasted with the opprobrious epithet of "out-land barbarians" applied to us by the Chinese. The embassy numbers forty-nine persons, and is almost entirely composed of young men, whose ages do not average twenty-eight, one of the oldest being Iwakura, who is only forty-seven.

While the heads of the embassy mostly remain in Washington, or flit back and forth to Japan, involving only seventeen thousand miles of travel, the subordinates are busy as bees, examining the routine of business in the departments at Washington, and traveling over the country, acquiring information of all matters relating to our American civilization, which, like bees, they will carry home to their Japanese hive, there to be worked into and improve their own institutions, so far as it may be adapted thereto.

Recently, three of the embassy, Messrs. Yasuba, Deputy Commissioner of Revenue in Japan; Wakayama, of the Japanese Treasury, and Kawage, Third Secretary of the Embassy, spent a couple of weeks in the study of the internal revenue system of the United States, under the instruction by direction of our Commissioner of Internal Revenue of brother William H. Armstrong, Assistant Secretary (for many years a member of the National Division.) He found them to be gentlemen of refinement and ability, exceedingly intelligent, and quick to apprehend and remember everything explained to them.

Brother Armstrong took occasion incidentally to mention that, although they saw much of intemperance in America, there was nevertheless a very large and respectable body of the people, numbering nearly three millions, and constantly increasing, who totally abstained from all intoxicating drinks.

One of the Japanese, on brother Armstrong referring to the large proportion of crime and pauperism occasioned here and in England by liquor drinking, showed his quick comprehension of the logic of the facts, as applied to the business he and his associates had in hand, by exclaiming in reply, "How great the taxation!"

The popular drink in Japan is sake, a fermented liquor made from rice. It is very generally drunk, and while the evils of intemperance are probably not so great there as in our own country, they must necessarily prove a drawback to the prosperity of the Japanese people.

It is to be hoped that among the best of the advantages of our improved "western civilization" which the embassy will take to their country, will be the practice of total abstinence from all that intoxicates. It is fortunate for Japan that the still has not yet been introduced there, and it is to be hoped that it never will be. Efforts to secure its prohibition should be made with the present embassy, who are men of powerful influence at home.—N. T. Advocate.

We met Scroggins this morning with a bundle of nuts and raisins under his arm. We asked him if he wasn't getting luxurious. "I've got six ministers at my house," he said. "But you don't feed them on nuts and raisins?" we rejoined. "No," said he reflectively; "but when I get about half done, at meal time, I shove back, and they follow suit. Then I come down stairs, and fill up between meals. By this means I save about one man's board, and it is better for the minister not to eat too much."—Wiscasset Oracle.

TREATMENT OF WHISTSTONES.—When first putting a new whetstone into use, try water upon it, and if this keeps the surface from being glazed or burnished, oil will not be needed. Some stones work better with water than oil. A dry stone is very apt to give a wire edge. It has been said that a little carbolic acid added to water will increase the friction on either a whetstone or a grindstone.

Parson: "What's a miracle?" Boy: "Dunno." Parson: "Well, if the sun were to shine in the middle of the night, what would you say it was?" Boy: "The moon." Parson: "But if you were told it was the sun, what would you say it was?" Boy: "A lie." Parson: "I don't tell lies. Suppose I told you it was the sun, what would you say then?" Boy: "That yer wasn't sober!"

An Irishman in describing America, said, "You might roll England thru it, an it wouldn't make a dent in the ground; there's fresh-water oceans inside that ye might drown old Ireland in; and as for Scotland, ye might stick it in a corner, and ye would never be able to find it out, except it might be by the smell of whisky."

A Physician being asked by a patient if he thought a little spirits now and then would hurt him much, replied, "I do not know that a little occasionally would hurt you much; but if you don't take any, it won't hurt you at all."

Josh Billings says, "Most men concede that it looks foolish to see a boy dragging a heavy sled up hill for the 'fleetin'' pleasure of riding down again. But it appears to me that boy is a sage by the side of that young man who works hard all the week and then drinks up his wages on Saturday night."

"Tis strange," muttered a young man as he staggered home from a supper party, "how evil communications corrupt good manners. I've been surrounded by tumblers all the evening, and now I'm a tumbler myself."

A Chicago actor, who was greatly given to the "flowing bowl," was locally alluded to as a living specimen of the mellow drummer.
