Republican Ticket for 1872

FOR PRESIDENT,

U. S. GRANT.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,

HENRY WILSON,

Presidential Electors,

A. B. MEACHAM, of Umatilla county.
W. D. HARE, of Washington county.
J. F. GAZLEY, of Douglas county.

Democratic Initiative.

It angers what used to be Democratic editors, now "Chappaquack" quill drivers, most intensely whenever a minister of the gospel happens to say or do anything favoring the political party to which an overwhelming majority of them, in the North, at least, belong, viz: the Republican party. They seem to think that a minister has no rights or privileges outside of the duties of the pulpit, which anybody, especially a Democratic "Chappaquack," is bound to respect. He may own property, and raise a family of children, and live in society, but he must not dare to take any interest in the questions and politics, which determine the law-making, and executive interests of the country. Not he. No matter how much corruption may disgrace the practical operations of politics; no matter how much it may be estranging the brightest and most promising youth of the country away from the path of right and virtue; no matter how the elements of good government, the making and enforcing of just and wholesome laws, may be growing weaker and weaker every day, the moral restraints and protections of society may be becoming less and less binding, he must not open his mouth. If he does, these Democratic "Chappaquacks" will pronounce him unfit to follow in the footsteps of the Savior of men. Now while we do not believe the minister of the gospel is authorized to make politics a specialty in the pulpit, or out of it, we do believe it to be not only his right, but duty, to point out the sins which are leading the people astray, and if in doing this he must touch upon the evils and sins growing out of political principles and practices, it is legitimate, and no one has a right to gainsay it. Again, a minister has as good a right to his political views as any other man, to think them, advocate them in conversation like other men, and vote them like other citizens, if he chooses in his citizen capacity to do so; and it does not become a Democratic "Chappaquack" to abuse him for it. We refer to this subject because we notice in the Salem Mercury, of last week, a very mean and contemptible stricture on the name and character of the Rev. J. F. De Vore, a Presiding Elder of the M. E. Church in Oregon, because he saw proper, while at the Philadelphia Republican Convention, to announce to that body the result of the late State election in Oregon. The announcement was a source of cheer to the Convention, and the Rev. Mr. De Vore had as good a right to make the announcement as any other man. The remarks of the Mercury in regard to the Rev. gentleman for this offending, are certainly of the "dog in the manger spirit," and any thing but creditable to that sheet.

Senator Wilson, our Republican candidate for Vice President, addressed a Republican mass meeting at Wilmington, North Carolina, on the 18th. He argued that the contest was not a personal one but one between the principles of the two organizations. A vote for Greeley, he said, was not only a vote for the defeat, but the extermination of the Republican party.

The Era and Guard.

The Greeley-Brown ticket has not yet been endorsed by the Democratic Era, of East Portland, nor the Eugene City Guard (Democratic). These journals take the consistent position, that as Greeley is not a Democrat, but on the contrary a Republican, to support him would be equivalent to giving up their Democratic principles, and would result in the entire destruction of the Democratic party. They are enemies to General Grant, and would rejoice in his utter defeat; but they are opposed to sinking the Democratic organization into oblivion, by merging it into a Greeley-Brown Republican faction, simply to accomplish the very improbable end of defeating Grant. If Greeley were a Democrat, or even stood upon a Democratic platform, the sacrifice would not be so great; but as it is, his endorsement involves the entire forsaking and giving up of Democratic principles and positions. It is simply giving up the party organization for the chance of substituting one Republican in the place of another. The chances of defeating Grant, by such a coalition, look entirely too slim for these journals to consent to so great a sacrifice. If political death must come to the party, the logic of their position is, let it go down with the sails spread and the old flag flying at the mast-head. So far as we are concerned, it affords us no pain to witness the last breath leave the body of the Democratic party. We have never seen the time when we thought it right in principle, and in practice we have always thought it most execrable. In its early history it was unprogressive in principle, narrow contracted and selfish in its views, and heartlessly oppressive and intolerant in its practice. The slaveholder's rebellion was but the culmination of its iniquitous teachings, and the fruit of its sectional and intolerant policy. The baptism of blood so freely made upon Southern soil in defense of human freedom and constitutional law, though in a measure compensated by their successful maintenance, yet calls for the entire destruction of those principles which demanded so great a sacrifice. The Democratic party, under whose training the South was led into the act of rebellion, by its death, can satisfy this call. Planting itself upon the Greeley-Brown platform, in effect, it dies to its old positions, and is incorporated in the blood and bones of its Republican enemy, who so recently conquered it. This is the logic of the act. If the heart of the party went with the act, and the Republican principles of Greeley were sincerely adopted by the Democracy, it would be well; but this does not appear. Although they forsake their old organization, and, on paper, openly endorse the new, they still covertly retain their old principles, hoping, if Greeley is elected, to influence him to make them paramount in his Administration. In other words, they pledge themselves openly to one thing, while secretly resolving, if successful, to do another. In this, of course, they are both treacherous and unprincipled towards the men and platform whom they pretend to endorse. In view of this covert treachery, the position taken by the Era and Guard is much more honorable, because more consistent with firmness and truth. Their refusal, however, if persisted in, of giving their adhesion to the Greeley-Brown faction, will not more than show their individual consistency in the maintenance of Democratic integrity. The great mass of Democratic journalists in the State and country have already granted their support to that faction, and the issue is now clearly drawn. No new name has as yet been definitely settled upon to designate the incongruous mixture—unless it may be "Chappaquacks"—but we know that whenever the party, of which Greeley and Brown are the leaders, is mentioned, it includes among its chief supporters what used to be the Democratic party.

I Did It With my Bran-New Ax.

Whether Horace Greeley in his juvenile days ever rivaled the Father of His Country in owning a "little hatchet," and in hacking his father's trees, and then being so truthful in confessing it, we are not posted enough in his youthful history to know. Late developments would lead us to infer that no such episode ever occurred in his history. Knowing the value of a reputation for honesty and truthfulness, and associating with these ideas the story of Washington and his little hatchet, the youthful philosopher of over three-score summers, hid himself away to the forest glades of Chappaqua, and with his bran-new ax, all ready for making the chips fly, called out cheerily for his Democratic admirers to come and see him "chop wood." They went; and we presume Horace pointed to the trees he had cut down, and possibly up, and exclaimed: "I cannot tell a lie, my friends, I did it with my bran-new ax." Since then Democratic papers have been profuse in their encomiums on his honesty, truthfulness, etc.

Our Colored Citizens for Grant.

Our African citizens have always been enthusiastic admirers of Gen. Grant. They can never forget the invaluable services he rendered to their race upon the field of carnage. They will not soon forget the many tokens of strong and friendly regard which he has not failed to exhibit towards them in the Executive office. Nothing as yet has transpired which would indicate that the vote of that race has been divided. Solidly, as a unit, will it be cast for General Grant. Of the 1,200 colored votes in San Francisco, the Chronicle says "there is not one that may not be relied upon to vote for Gen. Grant." This paper still farther says: "We undertake to say that there cannot be produced one intelligent, sober, honest African, who does not oppose the election of Greeley."

Honest Greeley's Opinion.

Our Democratic "Chappaquacks" are loud in their praises of Greeley's honesty. "No one," effusively says the Portland Herald, "ever laid the charge of a want of integrity at his (Greeley's) door." If Greeley has been regarded by these journals as always so honest, his former opinions of, and sayings about, their party will, of course, now that they have selected him as their leader, be entirely endorsed by them, as he has not retracted any of these opinions or sayings. Let the Herald and the rest of the "Chappaquacks" throw up their hats for Greeley, if they can, after they read the following "honest" opinion from the distinguished Sage: "If there were not a newspaper nor a common school in the country the Democratic party would be far stronger than it is. Neither elementary instruction nor knowledge of transpiring events is necessary to teach the essential elements of the Democratic creed: 'Love run and hate niggers.' The less one learns and knows, the more certain he is to vote the regular ticket, from A to Izzard."—Horace Greeley.

Sublimest Patriotism.

Nothing but the sublimest patriotism and the most unselfish zeal for the weal of our country could have animated the Great Democratic heart to pursue the course it has in this contest, and with something of that patriotic sentiment animating our heart we now announce our adherence and support to the Baltimore Convention.—Albany Democrat. "Sublimest patriotism" is a new name to be applied to that controlling influence, which, in other relations, is denominated force of habit. The spirit, or rather act, which has induced as many of our "old-time" Democratic contemporaries to endorse the nominations of the Baltimore Convention, appears to us to bear a very strong resemblance to that which induces a flock of sheep to follow blindly the bell-weather. Our contemporaries follow because it is their training to be led, and in the act of blindly following, do they seem to estimate their "sublimest patriotism."

An Irishman went into a Chicago store, and says he, "Faith, and did you put in the papers you wanted a man?" "Yes," said the storekeeper, "and I distinctly stated all applications must be made by mail." "And faith, and its meself that's a male sure," says Pat, and he was hired.

A BIG VICTORY!

FOR THE

New Wilson

Underfeed Sewing Machine!

IT WILL DELIGHT THE MANY friends of the

NEW

Wilson Improved Sewing Machine,

To know that in the stubborn contest for superiority in samples of work, at the great Northern Ohio Fair, their favorite has carried off the two great premiums—the Medal for best six specimens machine work, and the Diploma for best embroidery. As the great competition was in these two classes, it will be seen that the Wilson's victory is complete. We know this would be so; it could not be otherwise. There is no taking down the fact that the New Wilson is the best Family Sewing Machine now manufactured—capable of doing the best work on any kind of goods, under all circumstances.

This award of the highest premium should and will silence the talk of that large class of sewing machine men who have made this machine the object of their special enmity, simply because it is a moderate priced machine and undersells their expensive ones.

Go and see the Premium New Wilson Sewing Machine, the best in the world, now on exhibition at Snow & Ross Art Gallery, 74 First Street, Portland, Oregon, and remember you can buy this premium machine for $50.

Agents wanted.
