"You said you wanted some annuals, and here they are," Then Mrs. Beggs burst out laughing and said :

Fisher

"Why, you old fool, you"-we have been married twenty years, but Mrs. B. calls me per names yet-"the aunuals I meant are flowers, such as verbenas, pansies, morning glories and the like, to set out in our front yard.

Then she took all the annuals I had been at so much pains to collect, and set them out in the back yard among the other rubbish.

The next morning she asked me if I thought I could get the roses for the front yard. Told her I knew a man who had got a lot of early rose potatoes, but it wasn't the right time of year for getting them out. (I have an idea that ground is much better employed in raising a potatoe then in raising a flower, unless it be a barrel of flour. Wife said I hadn't a bit of taste. She then gave me a memoran-da of recess she wanted. I was busy all day, but just as I was about taking car for home I thought of the roses

I referred to the memoranda and p found the following :

"Get a few geraniums, fachias, heli-trope, roses, bourbon running rose, "Prairie Queen," golden tea-plant, vines, English ivy, "Wandering Jew," seeds, etc."

I studied it hard, but it was slightly incomprehensible. She had evidently got things mixed up. However, I went to a florist's and told him what I wanted. Said J:

"Give me a few geraniums, and a few shes, and-"

"A few what?" asked the flower man, looking puzzled. "A few shes," said I turning very red. I know, for I couldn't tell for the life of me what my wife wanted of a few shes about the place, as she never could live in the same honse with another woman.

As the florist looked more staggered than ever, I handed him the memoranda, when he burst into a loud laugh.

"Why, man," he eried, "its fachias she wants!" And then he roared again... "Well, whatever it is, give me a comple of yards of it anyhow, front and back yard, too." Your see I was mad.

I got the things the memoranda seemed to call for at the vario is places.

and went home. "Here, Mrs. Boggs," said I testily, are the things for your front yard," "Why, what is this?" she cried, as I thrust a two-gallon jug upon her among other things.

"Bourbon, my dear. I found it on the memoranda. Pretty thing to set out in the front yard, though. How long do you s'pose it'll stay there with the neighbors were got ?"

PROKEN ON THE WHITEL.

MENT FOR A HORBIPLE CLIME.

There is no State in Europe in which the barbarous punishment of breaking on the wheel is inflicted on criminals except Servia, of the semi-dependencies of Turkey. In Servia thay have three methods of punish-ing murderers, highway robbers, and incendiaries. In the most aggravated crises, execution by breaking on the wheel is inflicted. In other cases the emprits are tied to charst, and the headsinan runs a sharp kulfa across their threats and then breaks their spine. If there are peculiar circunspine. If there are peculiar circum-stances of mitigation, the culprits are shot by a file of soldiers. One of the most revolting crimes ever committed in Servia was the as-sassination of the whole' family of a wealthy farmer named petrestisy, in the Bialin District, about twenty miles from Belgrade, the capital of Servia. On the 24th of April, Detrestisy, a man of 40 years of age, his wife, Susta-uah, 29 years old, and his three children, Frances, Kathinka, and Andreas. aged respectively 12, 9, find 4 years, were found in the house murdered. It was also discovered that the mother and the two daughters had been out-raged. All the victims bad been beaten with bludgeons, and then stabbed.

An active search was at more made for the perpetrators. Two days after-ward they were discovered in a forest about four miles from where the mmder was committed. They were Se-bastulos Alexity, formerly a noncom-missioned officer in the army of the Sultan of Turkey, and Moses Alexander Werthstein, an Austrian Jew.

When they were arrested, the officers found several hundred zequins and the watch of the murdered man in their possession. They were taken in irons to Bucharest. Upon being brought before the examining magistrate, they denied any knowledge of the crime : but the lash, which is there still used upon the mendacious criminals, was not long in eliciting a confession from the circumstances-he continued his the tortured Werthstein. After receiv- yells, and it was not until the execuing fifty lashes on the bare back, he tioner gave him three heavy blows confessed that Alexiry and he had on the abdomen that all was quiet, broken into the house of the farmer in and Servian justice was satisfied. order to rob him of three hundred zequins. They succeeded in forcing their way into the house, but were contronted by him, whereupon a desperate scuffle ensued. The farmer fought vallantly, but they clubbed him, and then finished him with their dirk-knives. Alexity refused to confess, and remained firm, even under the forture of the lash, freely administered by order of the magistrate. Both Alexiry and Werthstein were fully committed. Their trial before the tull bench ot criminal judges came off on the 11th of June. It lasted but one hour. Both were found guilty of murder, without externating circumstances, and sen-tenced to be broken on the wheel. There was loud applause in the court when the sentence was pronounced. Alexicy listened to it without emotion. Werthstein, however, broke into loud screams, tore his hair, and yelled for mercy. The officers of the court had to drag him back to his cell. The 14th of July was fixed for the execution. They were to explate their doom on the old glacis of the fortress of Belgrade, upon which Prince Edward of Savoy made once his famous assault. The execution was to take place at 8 A. M., and an enormous concourse assembled to witness it. The scaffold was circular, of wood, and the only distinctive feature about it was a St. Andrew's cross slightly elevated above the platform. About half past seven the execution-ers arrived. One was a heavybuilt man, and the other almost a giant. Both were dressed in green flannel jackets, and had their arms bare. When the clock on St. Mary's steeple at Belgrade struck 8, there emerged from the gate of the fortress a proces-sion headed by four horsemen. Next followed the carriage in which the judges and the pricat were seated. As the procession, emergedifrom the gate loud shriels were heard. They were those of Werthstein, who, chained as he was, hand and foot, screamed to Heaven for help. Under ordinary circumstances his appeals might have had some effect upon the people. But, knowing the fearful crime which he and his accomplice had committed, there was not a voice raised in his favor, and the soldiers were rather encouraged to punch him with the butt and of their maskets. After the criminals had been brought on the platform every slitch of cloth-on the platform every stitch of clothing left upon Alexiry was torn off, and he was firmly tied to St. Andrew's Until this moment he had pre-CTOSS, served his equanimity ; but now the executioner drew from a green bag a sort of Iron club, with a knob at its head. The fistened criminal looked wistfully at the man who was to torture him, and then put him to death, The executioner raised the iron club The executioner raised the from chib and crushed Alexicy's right shoulder. The murderer gave a shriek, and made a desperate effort to free himself. He struggled desperately in his agony, but the next blow which the execu-tioner gave him—on the knee pan— elicited from the culprit a scream of pain that caused the blood of the spec-tations to freeze. After this influence pain that caused the blood of the spec-tators to freeze. After this infliction he seemed insensible, and the other blows that crushed his joints, and the finishing strokes on his belly, were given as to a dead man. Meanwhile, Werthstein, in his chains, had to look on. He sent the out with his human and man

'nir with his lamentations, and came near fainting away when the execu-tioner dealt Alexiry the firstblow. He flung himself to the floor and begged pitconsly for his life; but after the lifeless corpse of Alexiry had been detached from the fatal cross, the jew was dragged to it, and, in spite of his invocation, fastened to it like his ac-complice. He yelled even before he received the first stroke with the iron club; but when the instrument of torture descended upon his shoulder-joint, he gave an uncarthly scream, and the executioner's blow upon his knee-pan made him how! still worse.

Borg's Gardening.

The "Fat Contributor" relates the following interesting experience :

We have recently moved into a house that has a front yard. We have always lived in houses whose front yard was the street. Children will play in the yard whether there is a street running through it or not. After two or three of them had barely escaped being run over by the teams that insisted on running through our front yard, wife said we must rent a house that hadn't any street in it. So we did. But Lord! the children don't make any account of it. They are in the street as much as ever, accumulating their daily supply of narrow es-

Wife said the yard looked bare withont shrubs, and flowers and vines. hinted that a little grass would help it, too. She asked me if I knew where could get some, and I told her I knew a little grass widow on the next street, if she would do. I retreated to the door, followed by the rolling-pin.

One morning, as I was going away, wife asked me to br ng her a tew "annuals" when I came back. 1 wondered what she wanted of annuals as I rode down town in a street car; but I am accustomed to a blind obedience to her requests, so when I went home at night I brought per some annuals, at right 1 brought her some animals, There were "Dr. Jayne's Medical Al-minae," I remember, and "The Odd Fellows' Animal Offering," and a "New Year's Address" for 1862 and the "Birth-Day Gift," and numerous annual addresses before Agricultural interaction between animals of the second of the theory assumption of the second of the Associations that had accumulated on my hands.

My wife carried it arm's length, and threw it into the stove. Then sho took the jng of Bourbon and emptied it into a gatter: While she was gone I concested Afexander Dumas" "Wan-dering Jew," which I also had pur-chased, for I began to see that I had made a terrible bunder in filling that order. CANNED FRUITS .- The impression. pevails among those who use freely fruits which are put up in the conthat they are injured thereby, and this impression is in many cases correct. We have long contended that all preserved fruits and vegetables should be stored in glass, and no metal of any kind should be brought in contact with them. All fruits contain more or less of vegetable acids, and others that are highly corrosive are often formed by fermentation, and the metallic vessels are considerably acted upon. Tin cansare held together by solder; an alloy into which lead enters largely. This metal is easily corroled by vegetable acids, and poisonous suits are formed. Undoubtedly many persons are greatly injured by enting tomatoes, peaches, &c., which have been placed in the crus, and we advise all our friends who contemplate putting up fruits the present summer to use only glass jars for the purpose,-Journal of Chemistry.
