Plain Language by Truthful Jane

Which I wish to repeat, And my language is plain, That in ways of deceit, And in tricks that are vain, The "Girl of the Period" is lively, Which the same I would rise to explain.

Lilly White was her name, And I need not deny, In regard to the same, What the name might imply; But her cheeks were provokingly rosy, And bewitchingly provoked her eye.

'Twas in Lent, third week, With most penitent skies, Which it might be inferred, Lilly White was likewise; Yet she humbugged Johannes, my lover, In a way I shall always despise.

Which we had a small game Called by some hide and seek; 'Twas flirtation. The same She thought sinful and weak; But she smiled as she ogled Johannes, With a smile that was salty and meek.

Yet the game it advanced, In a way I detest, And my sorrow enhanced At the state of John's vest, Which heaved like a wave of the ocean, When the same has a turbulent breast.

But the tricks that are played By the girl of the P., And the progress she made, Was alarming to see, Till she twirled on her left hand fore-finger, What Johannes had promised to me.

Then I looked up at John, But he looked not at me; And I rose with a groan, And said, What do I see? We are ruined by harmless flirtation, And I went for the girl of the P.

In the scene that ensued, John, amazed, did not speak; For the floor was bestrewn, In the height of my pique, With the "cards" Lilly White had been playing, In the game she thought "sinful and weak."

Of whose "exquisite charms" I laid bare in a trice, "Paddings," "paniers" and "forms" Of most cunning device; And there fell with her tresses so airy, What is frequent in hair-rats and mice.

Which is why I repeat, And my language is plain, That in ways of deceit, And in tricks that are vain, The "Girl of the Period" is lively, Which the same I am free to maintain.
