MEDICINES.

TRY THE

MOUNTAIN BALM COUGH MIXTURE.

W. H. PARKER, OF JACKSONVILLE, OREGON, HAS discovered a remedy, composed of the Extract from Mountain Balm, which grows in Jackson County, and other Vegetable ingredients, which has enabled him to furnish the afflicted with a purely vegetable—a perfectly harmless, and yet the most Powerful Lung Remedy ever discovered. It is good for Coughs, Colds, Croup and Bronchitis, and is an Aque Preventive, Blood Purifier, Invigorator and Appetizer, and is noted for all Nervous and Bilious ailments. Many letters might be adduced to show what the medicine has done (if necessary), but try a bottle, and it will recommend itself wherever introduced. For sale at all Albany Drug Stores, and by all dealers in patent medicines. Prepared by W. H. PARKER, 15m3 Independence, Oregon.

DR. VANCLEVE'S Galvanic Abdominal Supporter

UTERINE REGULATOR.

THE MERITS OF THIS INSTRUMENT I consist principally in the support it gives to the abdomen and spine. The belt is broad, supported by suspenders passing over the shoulders, and kept in shape by self-generating Galvanic Plates, which give a pleasant current. The Regulator is also Galvanic; its Cup and Nozzles are made of Silver; its Stem, of Copper and Zinc, is hollow, that injections may be thrown through it, or into the neck of the Uterus. It can be so regulated by its thumb-screw as to meet any mal-position of the Uterus, and is unequalled in meeting any form of female disease. Price, $25. Patented August 15, 1871, by W. S. VanCleve, Centralia, Illinois. Territory for Sale, or will receive Royalty for manufacture.

For State or Territorial rights to manufacture and sell on the Pacific Coast, apply to COLL. VAN CLEVE, Albany, Oregon.

Among the Cannibals.

ADVENTURES OF THE LATE DR. COOK IN THE TONGA ISLANDS—COOK PREPARED FOR COOKING—A VERY GOOD YARN.

We recently published from the Albany Evening Times the announcement of the death of the celebrated surgeon, Dr. Cooke. W. B. Dolmage of this city, who has been an intimate friend of the Doctor's for many years, informs us that Dr. George Cooke was 92 years old on the 8th of March last; that he first came to this country in 1812, as surgeon of a British war ship; that he went back to England at the close of the war with this country, and returned to New York in 1820. He then went to South America for a short time, returned to New York, and, in 1830, located himself in Albany, and established a dispensary and attained

FAME AND WEALTH.

For many years past he made frequent and long visits to this city, where he had purchased a delightfully located residence on the Oswego river. This property he afterward sold to Mr. Dolmage, but continued his periodical visits to the Dolmages and enjoyed their hospitality. Mr. Dolmage relates many thrilling incidents in the early and venturesome life of Dr. Cooke, one of which we give in the veritable words of the relator:

"In 1807 Dr. Cooke, then surgeon of the British man-of-war Belcher, which was cruising off the Tonga Islands, went ashore with twelve of the crew to gather herbs for medical purposes. They were all captured by the natives, who proved to be cannibals. They were immediately bound with strips of bark and thrown into a sort of hole or cave in the side of a hill and kept there until the next morning. During the night the unfortunate victims heard

THE YELLS OF THE SAVAGES,

Who were preparing for the horrible feast of the morrow. In the morning they were brought out into the light, unbound, stripped entirely naked, again firmly bandaged, trussed, and laid upon their faces on the ground in two rows and about four feet apart. The male savages who had assembled from the surrounding islands in large numbers, formed a circle, the inner diameter of which was about sixty feet, and the woman and children were placed inside the circle. The latter beat tom-toms and yelled in fiendish chorus, while the males performed a devil's dance for fully an hour. This done, twenty-six brawny and naked savages—the whole gathering of demons, old and young, male and female, were perfectly nude—twenty-six powerful savages advanced; two of them seized each of the victims by the hair and dragged them about 2,000 feet to a sandy beach, upon which

THE COPPER-COLORED SUN

Sent down its fierce, quivering, broiling and unobstructed rays. Here was gathered wood in thirteen piles—one for each victim—and the savages were seating themselves in groups around each pile. Another ring was formed around Dr. Cooke and his companions, and a short dance was performed, when, at some signal from the chief—a magnificent brute, nearly eight feet tall and made in proportion advanced—there was a dead silence. The hungry-looking savages sank on their haunches upon the sand, licking their chops like famished wolves.

"The chief then approached the helpless victims and began a critical examination of the physical condition of each. He lifted their upper and lower lips, examined their teeth; drove his powerful thumb into their arm-pits; pressed his hand upon their ribs, felt of their legs and arms, all the while wearing the expression of

A BLOATED EPICURE.

"During the progress of this examination the thirteen fires were lighted, and added their heat to that of the relentless sun. The chief finally approached Dr. Cooke, turned him upon his back, wreathed his hand into his hair, and lifted him upon his feet. The savage marked with his finger upon the loins of the trembling Doctor the portion of the carcass he had selected for himself. As he did this the eyes of the savage and his dinner met. The Doctor inadvertently, and more by a spasmodic action of the muscles than otherwise, gave a semi-Masonic sign. The chief stared and gazed fixedly upon the Doctor's face. The Doctor repeated the sign. The chief answered it, and immediately uttered a cry of amazement, followed by some gibberish, which was received with a yell of disappointment from the whole gathering of demons, who sprang to their feet and rushed upon the Christians. The chief swung his ponderous war club and plastered the bound bodies of the Englishmen with the brains of a score of the heathen devils before you could articulate Jack Robinson. He then gave a command to a subordinate, who came up and with a sharp flint cut the bands of the white men and they were free.

"The bodies of the savages just killed were stewed down in six potash kettles which had been cast ashore from a wrecked vessel in 1804, and the horrible wretches glutted themselves upon the bodies of their late comrades. Dr. Cooke and his men stayed upon the island four days, during which time they were guarded with great care by the chief, whom the Doctor christened Chul Chug—which is cannibal for life-preserver. They were treated with great hospitality, and escorted by a long procession of savages to the beach, where their boat lay, when they took their departure. It seems some five years before the date of this narrative, an English Captain was cast ashore from a wreck, he being the only one saved. He managed to get into the good graces of Chul Chug and gave him the first two degrees of Masonry. During the four days that Dr. Cooke remained on the island he gave 'Chul' five more degrees—in consideration of which 'the heathen savage' was overcome with gratitude. The Doctor returned to the island in 1809. He found there a large and flourishing Masonic lodge, and two missionaries from England, one of whom was roasted and eaten in honor of his return."

Mr. Dolmage has heard Dr. Cooke say that whenever his mind recurred to that fearful scene on the sandy beach, he (the Doctor) could feel the stubby finger of the giant savage tracing the choice parts on his body.

American Wonders.

The greatest cataract in the world is the falls of Niagara, where the water from the great upper lakes forms a river three-fourths of a mile in width, and then being suddenly contracted, plunges over the rocks in two columns, to the depth of one hundred and seventy feet each.

The greatest cave in the world is the Mammoth cave of Kentucky, where one can make a voyage in the waters of a subterranean river, and catch fish without eyes.

The greatest river in the world is the Mississippi river, four thousand one hundred miles long.

The largest valley in the world is the valley of the Mississippi. It contains five hundred thousand square miles, and is one of the most fertile regions of the globe.

The largest lake in the world is Superior, which is truly an inland sea, being four hundred and thirty miles long, and very deep.

The longest railroad in the world is the Pacific railroad, over three thousand miles in length.

The greatest natural bridge in the world is the Natural bridge over Cedar Creek in Virginia. It extends across a chasm eighty feet in width and two hundred and fifty feet in depth, at the bottom of which the creek flows.

The greatest mass of solid iron in the world is the great Red Mountain, near Birmingham, Alabama. It is three hundred and fifty feet high, and fifty miles in length, of almost solid iron ore, the largest and richest deposit known in the world.

The largest deposit of anthracite coal in the world is in Pennsylvania, the mines of which supply the market with millions of tons annually.
