REMEDY FOR PAINFUL WOUNDS. Take a pan or shovel with burning coals, and sprinkle upon them common brown sugar and hold the wounded part in the smoke. In a few minutes the pain will be allayed, and recovery proceeds rapidly. In my own case a rusty nail had made a bad wound in the bottom of my foot. The pain and nervous irritation were severe. This was all removed by holding it in the smoke for fifteen minutes, and I was able to resume my reading in comfort. We have often recommended it to others with like results. Last week one of my men had a finger nail torn out by a pair of ice tongs. It became very painful, as was to have been expected. Held in sugar smoke for twenty minutes, the pain ceased, and it promises speedy recovery.—Country Gentleman.

A Washington dispatch dated April 9th says:

Secretary Fish has written a letter relative to the paper filed by Justice Cockburn in the record of the Geneva Arbitration, which claims that England's action during the rebellion was internationally legal. Mr. Fish severely condemns the paper, and charges that its tone justifies apprehensions of future difficulties with England, and virtually ignores the idea of any settlement of the principle which was affected by the Geneva Conference.
