MASQUERADING IN Boy' CLOTHES.—A dispatch dated Little Rock (Ark.), July 10th, says: A Marshal of Jacksonport, in this State, has just returned from Allenville, Missouri, having in his custody a young girl named Mollie Sherwood, who for intervals during the past two years, has been passing for a boy, under the name of Bill Henderson. About two years ago her parents, residing in Cape Girardeau, Mo., died. She was then thirteen years old, and her two brothers placed her out to work in a hotel at Allenville, Becoming tired of this employment she donned boy's clothing, called herself Bill Heuderson, and applied for and received a situation as post-boy to carry the mail to and from Allenville. For one year, unsuspected, she fulfilled the functions of this post. Then her sex was suspected; at Alleusville she was placed under arrest and was compelled to assume the female garb. After this she tried working in a hotel as maid servant, but soon tiring of this, again resumed the trowsers and worked as a farm hand. Subsequently she came to Augusta, in this State as a drover's assistant, and thence went to Jacksonport to work in a livery stable. After s while the men and boys about the stable, believing her to be a woman began to call her names, and, so she says, in order to get away from the place, she took certain horses sumes the Home Office. Brace is to be longing to the stablemen and made off with them. The Marshal followed her and overtook her with the horses at Allenville and arrested her on a charge of horse stealing. The people there knew her well, and were inclined to prevent the officers from arresting her. Pistols were drawn on both sides, but finally the girl went of her own will with the Marshal. She is now in the Jacksonport jail awaiting trial for horse stealing. The girl is a pretty blonde, and during all her vicisitudes her virtue has never

THE LION'S FEAR OF MAN.—Lich-enstein says that African hunters avail themselves of the circumstance that themselves of the circumstance that the lion does not spring upon his prey till he has measured the ground, and has reached the distance of ten or twelve paces, where he lies crouching upon the ground, gathering himself for the effort. The hunters, he says, make it a rule never to fire upon the lion till he lies down at this short distance so that they can also directly and two injured. It was caused by distance, so that they can aim directly at the head with the mest perfect certainty. He adds that if a person has the misfortune to meet a lion, his only hope of safety is to stand perfectly still, even though the animal cronches to make a spring—that spring will not be hazarded if the man has only not be hazarded if the man has only not be hazarded if the man has only nerve enough to remain motionless as a statue, and look steadily at the lion. The animal hesitates, rises slowly, retreats some steps, looking earnestly about him, lies down, again retreats, till having thus by degrees got quite out of what he seems to feel as the magic circle of man's influence, he takes to flight in the utmost haste.
