A pretty fair compliment from the London Graphic:

"By far the most pleasant companion you can have is an American. You cannot travel far without meeting one, and if you show the slightest disposition to be sociable, it is probable that he will turn out to be a highly agreeable companion. As a rule he is thoroughly well informed; knows all about the country, the best hotels, and the price of everything; is talkative without being garrulous, freely gives you his opinion, but, adhering to his national feeling of independence, is not in the least put out if it is not taken. Not that he is perfect: he is proud to a fault of his country and her doings, and is rather apt to bore you with inviolable comparisons. He contests that nothing is impossible of achievement, and some years ago, at a Parisian table d'hôte, an intelligent New Yorker seemed quite hurt that the writer questioned his statement that a Transatlantic tunnel would be begun and finished by his countrymen within eighteen months. Thus, proud of his nationality, our American imagines that every one, from the guard of a railway train to the master of a monster hotel, must carefully respect the stars and stripes in the person of his own humble self; and certainly an American does manage to secure a much greater amount of attention abroad than members of other less fortunate countries. His invariable response, when annoyed by the too close scrutiny of an official, or when in an unexpected difficulty, is, 'I am an American; send for my consul.'"

A model village is in course of completion in one of the suburban districts of London, for clerks, artisans, laborers, and others of small means. For the first seventy houses there were two hundred applications. All are built on the most approved sanitary and architectural principles. Schools, a lecture-hall, baths and wash-houses, play and cricket grounds and churches, are provided for. The houses are commodious, and each has a garden. The rent of a house of nine or ten rooms is from $90 to $100. The situation is one of the best in London.

VERY PLAIN.—The New York Evening Post lets off this: "To expel the protectionists and the 'starry-grabbers' from the Democratic party would be to beat out its brains and amputate its legs. The inquiry is still in order: 'What is the policy of the Democratic party?'"

The trial of Nick O'Neil in Deady's court in Portland, recently, excited a good deal of interest. Of course the prosecution labored for a verdict, but all without avail, as the jury were but fifteen minutes in returning a verdict of not guilty.

A Southern paper, speaking of a man who was kicked by a horse, says: "His life was extinct for a short time, but recovered so that he reached home on Saturday night."

Emperor William, of Germany, remains very ill at last dates. Reports of his death were in circulation, but they were denied by authority on the 23d.

On the 24th, the jury in the trial of ex-Mayor Hall returned a verdict of not guilty. The verdict was received uproariously by the spectators.

A little girl was once asked the following question: "What is faith?" She replied, "Doing God's will and asking no questions."

COLEMAN'S EUCALYPTUS. No better evidence of the efficiency of Dr. J. S. Coleman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus can be desired, than the following summary of cases, treated by this remedy alone, by that eminent physician, Dr. DAVID WOLSTEN, in the U. S. Marine Hospital, San Francisco, reported in the August No. (1872) Pacific Medical Journal:

Table with 2 columns: Disease, Cures. Rows include: Remittent Fever (5), Chills and Fever (19), Typhoid Fever (9), Inflamm. of Kidneys (4), etc.

It will be found very efficacious in obstinate cases of Dyspepsia, Bronchitis, Hacking Cough, Chronic Sore Throat, Leucorrhoea, etc., and in nausea during pregnancy.

Dr. Coleman's Double Extract of Eucalyptus is a special preparation for the treatment of FEVER and AGUE, and is warranted to cure every case treated according to directions, without the injurious results of the usual Quinine and arsenical remedies for that disease.

The standard remedy for Coughs, Inflammation, Sore Throat, Whooping Cough, Cramp, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Bleeding of the Lungs, and every affection of the Throat, Lungs and Chest, including Consumption.
