There is a hearty vigor about Omaha journalism which suggests that that city is not yet an enervated center of effete civilization. The editor of the Omaha Herald says that the wall-eyed scullion who fiddles and dances in the Plattsmouth Herald, delivered a temperance lecture a few nights ago, and that he is glad the lecturer was partially sober at the time, and not dripping drunk as usual.

The city of Providence, Rhode Island, has chosen three women to its School Board. Providence is on the side of the women.
