HORSE TAMING.—Mr. R. H. Tapp, who opened a school in this city the first of the week in which the art of training horses is thoroughly taught, invited us to come to his school-room on Wednesday afternoon to see him train and educate horses that had, through improper handling, become almost unmanageable. A large, muscular, nervy, fine-looking bay horse was first handed over to the Professor. The owner remarked that he had a very bad fault, among others, of throwing himself when hitched to a wagon, nearly always breaking the tung and tearing the harness to pieces. The Prof. turned the horse loose, and, with only a whip in his hand, compelled the horse to come to him at his call, and stand until bridled. Then, after a short time spent in educating to the proper point, he hitched him up, and he went off as though he had never taken the "studs" or thrown himself. A sorrel was brought in that was an accomplished artist in the "bucking" line. In less than two minutes the Prof. was on the animal's back, and the animal, although looking terrible vicious and as if he would like to spitch around a few, moved off in good style without an effort to dislodge the man on his back. The Professor then dismounted, threw a saddle upon his back, and again bestrode the animal; but there was no effort at bucking—the horse had found his master. Quite a number of horses, which the owners have hitherto been unable to drive or ride because of some vicious habit or habits, have been taken to the Prof. during the week, and in every case he has not only ridden or drove them himself, but he has taught the owners as well how to handle and control them. The system taught by Prof. Tapp seems to be founded on good sense, and a great improvement over any other we have ever witnessed. It is humane, the first principle laid down being to never abuse or illtreat an animal. It is simple, an hour or two at most being sufficient to give any one a thorough understanding of how to train and educate a horse properly. The knowledge thus gained, at the insignificant sum of one dollar, is worth many a dollar even to the man who rarely uses a horse; every farmer in Linn county should attend the school, and we are satisfied they will, after learning their lesson thoroughly, feel that they never expended a dollar more judiciously. The Professor can be found at the stables on corner of Washington and Second streets.

BODY FOUND.—On Sunday, as two young men were walking along the banks of the Willamette, in the eastern suburbs of the city, just below Mr. Baltimore's they discovered the body of a dead man among some drift-wood lodged against the south bank of the river. They came immediately into the city and gave the alarm. Early on Monday, Justice Hannon, acting Coroner, summoned a jury, the body was hauled up out of the water, and an examination had to identify the corpse. The witnesses summoned failed to recognize the body. The body was very much swollen and far advanced in decay, making protracted stay near it almost an impossibility. The corpse measured about five feet six inches in height, was solidly built, had long chin whiskers and mustache of a sandy color, as was his hair. The hair didn't make much of a showing until passing pretty well toward the crown of the head, giving him the appearance of being baldheaded. The clothing was good, of some dark colored cloth. His clothing, undershirt, drawers, overshirt, vest, pants, stockings, coat, paper collar and boots were all of good quality, and had been neatly put on, and pants, vest, etc., properly buttoned. In the back pants pocket ten bits (ten cent pieces) were found; also a part of a rubber comb—nothing more. No card, envelope, nothing whereby to identify the dead man could be found. The verdict of the jury, was in accordance with the above statement.

IN HOT PURSUIT.—Walter Brown, who killed a man named Hurt, in the Sprague river country about the last of July, passed through Benton county Wednesday of last week, and is supposed to be somewhere in this neighborhood at the present time. A reward of $500 is offered for his arrest, and parties are in hot pursuit. When the murder was committed the two brothers were together, and they are thus described: John W. Brown is about 28 years of age, dark hair, moustache and chin whiskers; heavy dark eyebrows; black eyes; square shoulders; stout build, and about 5 feet 8 inches in height. Walter A. Brown, the one who done the shooting, is 22; dark complexion; hazel eyes; moustache and chin whiskers a light brown; long armed, square shouldered, but slender build, and about 6 feet in height. If the reports be true, Brown committed an atrocious, cold-blooded murder, and every exertion should be made to secure him.

"ITEMIZER"—Is the name of the paper published at Dallas, Polk county, by Casey & Hammond. It takes the place of the Republican. The boys get out a very creditable paper indeed, and if they keep up their lick in the local line, we see no reason why they should not receive a living patronage. We wish Casey & Hammond the fullest success with their Itemizer.

DEVILISH.—Evil disposed people there are in almost every community whose greatest delight seems to be to stir up strife and create enmity and hard feelings, where before friendship and neighborly goodwill prevailed. These blots upon manhood and womanhood—for these characters are to be found among both sex alike—will torture and twist language and actions, however plain and natural, into something entirely foreign and never intended by the subject of their spleen—they will, by their devilish ingenuity, by hints and innuendoes more than by outspoken and direct charges, such as would be made by a fearless, outspoken man or woman conscience of truth and rectitude of purpose, make mole-hills appear like mountains, and concoct a scheme of most damning villany from a lightly spoken word. A word spoken in jest, caught up and extended by these rotten-hearted fiends, grows into a monstrosity, creating divisions in families, dissensions and turmoils in neighborhoods, and creating ill-will and hatred between lifelong friends that often culminate in bloody tragedies. The most despicable and hell-deserving among these leprous-souled serpents is the writer of anonymous notes, containing charges that the white-livered and cowardly author dare not openly make. Although wise as serpents and full of cunning, they will eventually over do the matter, leaving ear-marks so plain that they can easily be detected—and when once detected they become, as they should, a mark at which the finger of every honest man is pointed with scorn and contempt. There are, we are told, in some neighborhoods even in Linn county, characters such as we have feebly attempted to describe in this article—scribblers, illiterate, gross animals, who have been sending out their gaugered and lying effusions in the shape of anonymous letters. Patience has ceased to be a virtue when applied to such low, groteling characters, and if the efforts now being made to detect them shall prove successful, they will be made to feel the utmost rigor of outraged law, and held up to the scorn and derision of an outraged community. Verbum sat sapienti.

GOOD BOY.—Last week Mr. Cundiff got through his job of "putting heads" on the two cisterns on First street, but the street looked as though it had been struck by lightning, so rough and uneven was it. Our City Marshal, not liking the looks of the thing, and there being no appropriation from which to draw to hire some one to readjust the matter, concluded to give the city a benefit, went and got a broom and proceeded to clean up the street and make it look something like it did before it was torn up. He done a very creditable job, too, before he got through, did Parley; and for our part of it we tender him full thanks.

LABOR-SAVING.—The Climax Washer gives the highest satisfaction to all the ladies, large numbers of whom have signed certificates attesting the fact, which have been published. There's no disputing the fact that it's a good institution.

QUARTERLY MEETING.—For the M. E. Church South, came off at the Congregational Church in this city last Sunday, Rev. Jos. Emery, pastor.

TEMPERANCE AND MAGNETISM.—Dr. Haskell, assisted by a young lady, at the Opera House on Monday night, gave an entertainment for the benefit of the Albany Brass Band. As almost everybody has gone to the mountains, the attendance was not as large as it otherwise would have been, and the boys did not have more money than they could carry away after paying expenses. However, the crowd in attendance appreciated the show, as they attested by frequent and prolonged applause. As a temperance lecture the Doctor is unique. His voice is pleasant, his utterance clear and distinct, and he seemed at no loss for words in which to express himself. All who attended enjoyed a good hearty laugh, which is one of the best aids to digestion.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS.—Saml. E. Young has gone. He got up and dusted on Wednesday, overland, for San Francisco, to interview the big wholesale dry goods firms in that city, to the end that he might secure the first choice in laying in a magnificent stock of goods for the fall trade in Linn county. Relying implicitly upon Sam's good judgment and taste, we promise his customers the latest and gayest in lady's dress goods, millinery, etc., and the freshest styles in men's clothing, underwear, hats boots, shoes, as well as groceries, glassware, etc. New goods will commence arriving in a few days, and continue until the huge store shall be crammed and running over with attractions. Success to Sam-ivel.

TEMPERANCE LECTURES.—Dr. Haskell delivered a temperance lecture at the Court House in this city on Sunday evening, to a large audience. He was introduced to the audience by the Eminent Comander of the Red Crossers, Dave Taylor. It was an interesting address, as full of jolarity as the sacredness of the day would allow. At the Opera House, on Monday evening, he got off one of the funniest pieces ever delivered here. The Dr. sang a stanza or two, also, to the great edification of all present—or at least he would, had he have been asked.

AT HARRISBURG.—The recent fire at Harrisburg, destroyed Benj. Windom's wagon shop, Jos. Morris' blacksmithshop, and Andrew Condra's paintshop. Windom's losses foot up $1,000; Morris figures his at $700, while Condra loses $1,200—a total of $2,900. We believe there was no insurance. A subscription was started to raise a sufficient amount to enable the gentlemen burned out to start in again, and at last accounts over four hundred dollars had been pledged.

THREE LINKER.—Nate Baum has been heard from in San Francisco, where he is at present, up to his eyes in business, wading through oceans of dry goods, clothing, etc., etc., selecting with care the best and most attractive goods to be found in that great mart, with a view to meet the wants and desires of his Linn county customers. If Baum don't have an elegant and attractive lay out to attract custom when his purchases arrive, we shall miss our guess.

Layton Btain and wife are expected home from their mountain trip to-day.
