Grant on the Third Term.

President Grant has written a letter to Gen. Harry White, President of the late Pennsylvania Republican State Convention, In which he says most emphatically that he is not a candidate for a third term. We are glad that the President has at last unbended far enough to answer the blockheads who have been continually howling about Casarism and the third term, by positively asserting that he is not a candidate for re-election to the Presidency. But even after this letter from the President has been printed in every paper in the Union, there will still be those who will continue to howl and tear their hair and declare that, no matter who asserts to the contrary, Grant is certainly a cardidate for a third term. Not that they believe it themselves, but as they asserted it before of Grant's denial, they must still assert it to keep up their reputation as belonging to the knowing ones, and because they think there's political capital in it. Every man who can read, and is gifted with common sense, after carefully perusing the President's letter, will see that he means just what he says—he is not a caudidate. Here's the letter:

Here's the letter:

WASHINGTON, May 29, 1873.

Dear Sir: A short time subsequent to the presidential election of 1873, the press, a portion of it hostile to the Republican party—particularly so to the administration—started the cry of Cesarism and third term, calling lustily for me to define my position on the latter subject. I believed it beneath the dignity of the office which I have been twice called to fill to answer the question, before the subject should be presented by competent authority to make a nomination, or by a body of such dignity and authority as not to make a reply a fair subject of ridicule. In fact, I have been surprised that so many sensible persons in the Republican party should permit their enemy to force unon them and the party an issue which cannot add strength to the party, no matter how met by a body of the dignity and authority of a party convention to make nominations for State officers. The second State in the Union having considered the question, I deem it not improper that I should speak. In the first place I never sought the office for a second, nor even the first pomination. To the first I was called fro a a life position, one created by congress expressly for me for supposed services rendered to the republic. The position vacated, likked. It would have been most agreeable to me to have retained it until such time as Congress unlight have econsented to my retirement with the runk and a portion of the emoluments I so much retained it until such time as Congress might have consented to my retirement with the much and a portion of the emoluments I so much speed, to a home where the balance of my days might be apent in peace and the enjoyment of domestic quiet relieved of the cares which im. of oppressed me constantly for fourteen rears; but I was made to believe that the mubile good called me to make the sacrifice. Without seeking the office for the second term the nomination was tendered me by the unanimous vote of delegates of all the States and Territories selected by the Republicans of each to represent their whole number for the purpose of making of delegates of all the States and Territories selected by the Republicans of cach to represent their whole number for the purpose of making a nomination. I cannot say I was not pleased at this and the overwhelming endorsement their action received at the election following, but it must be remembered that all sacrifices except that of counfort, had been unde in accepting the first term. Then, too, such a fire of personal abuse and slander had been kept up for four years, notwithstanding the conscious performance of my duties to the best of my understanding, though I admit, in the light of subsequent events, many times subject to fair criticism, that an indorsement from those who, alone govern the republic was a grafification that it is only human to have appreciated and enjoyed. Now for the third term. I do not want it any more than I did the first. I would not write nor utter a word to change the will of the people in expressing and having their choice. The question of the number of terms allowed one executive can only come un fairly in the shape of a proposition to amend the constitution—a shape in which all political parties can purticipate in fixing the length of time or number of terms for which one person shall be restricted in their choice by resolution, further ilan now restricted as to age, nationality. &c. It may happen in the future bistory of the country that to change the executive because he has been eight years in office will prove unfortunate if not disastrous. The idea that any man could elect himself, is preposterous. It is a reflection on the intelligence and particitism of the people to suppose such a thing possible. Any man can destroy his chances for the office, but no one can force an election or nomination were it tendered, unless it came under such already and the convention over which you presided for the harmony which prevailed and for the excellent ticket put in the field, and which I hope may be triumplantly elected.

With great respect, your obedient servant,

Senator Booth, in a late speech delivered in San Francisco, plainly indicates the political position he will occupy in the future. That position will be one of the utmost hestility to the Republican party. He proposes of himself and by himself to effectually wipe out the great Republican and Democratic parties, and out of their ruins build up a great and harmonious National party, which, with the all-conquering Booth at its head, shall once more bring the Government back to its virgin days of purity and virtue. This is quite an undertaking for one little man, to be sure, but then, no doubt, the mighty genius of a Booth, a Senator at that, is equal to the occasion, and ere long we may expect to see this wholesale liquor dealer, late Governor and present Senator, with a "proof-tryer" in one hand and a copy of the Constitution in the other, triumphantly marching over the wrecks of what were erstwhile the great controlling parties of this nation. Senator Booth has no special ambition-that is, he didn't brenk with the Republican party, that gave him all the prominence he ever attained politically, simply because he saw, or thought he saw, greater advantage to himself to be secured by such a course. Oh, no! He only asoires to be President of the nation simply ause he saw, or imagined he saw, that iential timber was getting alfired and he prefers to sacrifice himself in direction rather than that the dear shall not have a great and compe-ned in the Executive chair! Ah! in the Executive chair! An: heart is there, my countrymen! ik, too, if we may be allowed to eastiful and appropriate a simile! can doubt the result of any unOur Missinsippi Letter.

SARDIS, Miss., May 14, 1875. On the first day of April I started Eastward on a little jannt, and after visiting Washington Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, spend ing most of my time in the two latter, I reached home three days ago, and am now rested. I met with little of unusual interest in my trip, for Congress, and even the extra session of the Senate, had adjourned, and though I came up with sundry political evictorities I doubt if I arned anything thereby which would interest you or your fur away readers.

The Beccher trial, like the Modoc war, is more exciting three thousand miles away than where it is going on. I attended it one day, and though I remained three weeks in New York, and was in Brooklyn several times, I felt impelled by neither interest or curiosity to visit the court-room a second time. Beecher will be-acquitted, however, mark that ! In New York I met Senator Mitchell and Mr. Ben Holladay. The former returned to Washington and the latter remains in New York, spending his time alternately on his fine farm up the river, and at the James Hotel in the city. I hardly think either of them will visit Oregon this summer, though the Senator spoke of doing so in a few weeks, when I saw him. The resignation of Attorney General Williams seems to have been a very unexpected event outside of the inner circle at the capital. For a scems to have been a very unexpected event outside of the inner circle at the capital. For a wonder, it had not been foreshadowed or predicted by the correspondents of the press located at the seat of Government, and created quite a sensation when authoritatively announced. Among the reasons given to the public for the act are, first, the purpose of the Attorney General to open an office for the practice of law in Washington, and second, his intention to go to Oragon and enter upon a vigorous campaign for a seat in the Senate at the expiration of Senator Kelly's term. Mr. Ben Holladay don't think he can get luto the Senate, and he is regarded as a knowing one, if not a power in such matters. "We shall see what we shall see," and that's all I can say about it.

Although Senator Sargent, of California, has spoken out for the President on the "third term," it is regarded in the East as still an open question—nobody seems to know what the views of His Excellency are upon the subject. This much I can may, however: Before I went east I believed him to be the strongest man in the party, whereas, I am now convinced that I was mivitaken, and that he could not be re-elected in 1876. Gen. Sherman, Mr. Biaine, Mr. Morton, Mr. Conkling or Gen. Bristow would be a strong et ticket, and of these the first is decidedly the strongest, while the second is next. It is eme to be pretty generally conceded that the Pacific St. tes should have the Vice President, and Senato. Jones, of Nevada, is freely snoken of in that a meeting. Vice President Wilson has been, and is still, on a pretty extensive tour, and if it thought his eyes are turned toward the Clast just above him; but I havn't seen any one who thinks he will do more than gaze at, and long for it. The old gentleman will never reach it.

In the Democratic nomination New Yorkers talk about Tilden, Ho. man and Seymour, while Western Democrate to more the sum of the centure of the conventions. Of this one thing you may rest assured—thore will be no doubtin or "compromise" candidat

The emigration fever has not subsided at all.
On the contrary, it is on the increase, but is very much retarded, unfortunately, by the great depression in the real estate market. Several parties have already gone forward from Mississippi, and others are busily engaged with their preparations. As your are without railroad connections, however, Oregon will not get her share of the moving musses. Mer can venture on the overland or sax voyage, but somen are bard to move, and you know, it is true of a woman that When she will she will, and you may depend

And when she won't she won't, and there's an end on't."

And we all knose that the men are not going to separate from the dear creatures, even though they do torment their lives out of them sometimes. Oh, for that railroad! Every man in Oregon ought to put his shoulder to the wheel and push it through somewhere, to some point, I care not where so it sirikes another railroad, thus affording a continuous line from the Central Puclandon into the delightful elimate where thunderstorms and earthquakes are equally strangers.

Spring has opened up beautifully at last, and the farmers are as busy as bees; and well they may be, for, as a general rule, they are poorer to-day than they were when the war daded in 1853, last ten years ago, while taxes are ever us and, like death, sure to come along. The recent cold smap has done considerable damage to the young corn.

The spelling mania has gotten here, and tonight is to be held the second grand contest. One of the parties have selected for their leader the father of one of your young townsmen, and the other is beaded by another member of the legal profession. These matches are participated in by all the most prominent and leading citizens as well as the prettiest girls, and the Court. House was crowded at the first which was held during my absence, and it is expected will be more so ionight. Webster's Primary spelling Books are used, and these have because moraing, with a brief account of what I see to-night.

SATURDAY MORNING, May 15th. As I expected, I found the Court House crowded last night to such an extent that many ould not get seats. The "match" embrae thirty laties and gentlemen—fifteen on each side—and after a contest of more than two hours Miss Minnie Crump was left alone in the field and declared the victor. The battle was well and warmly contested, and the hearty applause which greeted the triumph of the young ady evinced unmistakably the satisfaction of the large audience with the result. There is to be another match next Thursday night.

The sociable on Tuesday evening at the Opera House was a success, although the attendance and the receipts would have been greater had the weather been more propitions. As it was, many were no doubt detered from attending by the coolness of the weather, which operated, also, against the sale of ice cream. Taken altogether the Hoclety have reason to be proud of their success in securing so large an atendance despite all the drawbacks. The Washington county Independent says: Tuesday night Jas. Tollman, who lives on the mountain nine or ten miles west of Hillsboro was indicted by the grand jury for rape on the person of Eva Miller, daughter of Ada M. Miller, of the same neighborhood, and only six or seven years' old. He was arrested and held to answer in the sum of $350, George Smith and J. D. Shorb giving bonds for his appearance. Toliman is 73 years old and is living with his second wife. The story would seem almost incredible.
