C.), in February last, the Executive Committee was charged with the selection of a new location for headquarters in one of five Western States named-the change to be made within six months from flie 1st of March last. Indiana heads the list with 2,027 Granges; Missouri, 2,006; Iowa, 2,004; Illinois, 1,484; and Kentucky, 1,559. The total number of Granges in the United States is 23,500, with an estimated aggregate membership of 150,000. The decision in the Tweed case, although taking the public by surprise, is acquiesced in, as much probably from the fact that it is positively asserted Tweed will be arrested on other charges as soon as he sets his foot outside of the prison walls, as from any belief that the decision of the court is good law. It is asserted that if Tweed should eventually succeed in being restored to free air and synshine, he will find himself a beggar, his home despoiled, his old associates scattered, and his friends ashamed to own him.

Rlessed is the writer who can boil it down. The man who knows so well what be wants to say that he can come to it in a few short, pleturesque sentences, is the readable and quotable journalist of these days. People cannot wait, with the patience they used to have, to get at the pith of things. The railroad has educated them out of all patience with slowness. The telegraph has completed that education, and the same time incapacitated them from the endurance of words. When we have to pay a fixed price-so many cents for a word-for every word we employ to express our meaning, we are apt to learn to husk the sentence down to the kernel and to value the art of expressing a thought with the husks off. We want the naked idea. Words are nothing. Language would be nothing if there was anything briefer to take its place. But, since it cannot be abolished. bail it down.

> A correspondent of the Leavenworth Times thinks that in view of the fact that grasshoppers seem indigenous to the soil of Kansas, the best thing the people of that State can do is to secure the best breeds of chickens and turkeys and convert it into one vast hennery. ### What are Freemasons?

One of the late literary sensations in France is the publication of a pamphlet entitled the "The Freemasons-What are They?" which is scattered broadcast by tens of thousands all over the excitable country. It is issued by the library of the military hospital of Toulouse. The author solemnly declares that the Freemasons are possessed of a secret which is the secret of the devil, and that they peform a devil's mass on the altar lighted by six candles; that every one after having spit on the crucifix tramples it under toot, the diabolical ceremony terminating by each one ascending the altar and striking the holy sacrament with a poignard. The pamphlet also asserts that there are female Freemasons of bad character. This is bolder nonsense than the whole gridiron, greasedpole and great traditions of the jocular popular stamp. The writer ought to have reflected that Louis XVIII, and Charles X. and most of the nobles and noblemen of their reigns belonged to the brotherhood. This stuff is published in the interests of religion. It it does the Church any good, all right. It certainly cannot do the Freemasons any harm in rany country which promulgates such corre at literature.
